TOOMBS STILL RESISTS HIS EXTRADITION TO ST. LOUIS

His Attorney to Plead in Springfield That Client Is Needed in Chicago to Untangle Affairs.

HIS BANK IN ILLINOIS CLOSES ITS DOORS

Accused Financier Will Allege Sellers of International Life Co. Tried to Fleece Him.

With the collapse yesterday of the third and last financial institution controlled by Roy C. Toombs, his Chicago attorney prepared to go to the Illinois capital tomorrow to resist efforts to extradite Toombs to St. Louis on four felony charges growing out of his manipulation of at least $3,562,000 of cash and other assets of the International Life Insurance Co.

Meanwhile, in St. Louis, the Insurance Commissioners of nine states, who have been studying the insurance company's affairs, agreed unanimously to urge acceptance of a re-insurance plan by which the Missouri State Life Insurance Co. of St. Louis would buy the stock of the International Life and take over its $303,000,000 of insurance.

The extradition hearing will be held at Springfield before Assistant Attorney General A. E. Rodenburg, representing Gov. Small. Assistant Circuit Attorney George Jones of St. Louis will represent Gov. Baker, and Toombs will be represented by his own counsel, Eugene L. McGarry of Chicago. The charges are contained in four requisitions to cover legal technicalities, but are based on Toombs' alleged mishandling of funds.

Bank Closes Doors.

The State Bank & Trust Co. of Downers Grove, Ill., did not open its doors for business yesterday morning, having been closed by order of the State Auditor of Illinois who put bank examiners at work going over its affairs after stating he thought the bank in good condition.

The State stepped in after the directors of the bank, at a meeting Friady night, had expressed fear of a run. There have been steady withdrawals from the bank since the exposure of Toombs' difficulties in the International Life Insurance Co., and in Toombs & Daily, his Chicago investment house, both of which are in receivership.

Toombs was president of the bank until ten days ago, when he resigned. Its affairs were directed by his brother, George Toombs, who is treasurer of the International Life. Both the brothers resided in Downers Grove, a suburb of Chicago.

The bank had a capital and surplus of $185,000 and deposits of about $800,000. Persons familiar with the affairs of the International smile as they recall that Toombs at one time proposed to exchange approximately $7,900,000 of cash and securities of the International Life for certificates of deposit in this small town bank.

Toombs Eludes Officers.

Toombs remains in hiding from St. Louis officers who have been in Chicago for two days in an effort to arrest him. From day to day Attorney McGarry has promised to surrender him, but each day brings forth some new excuse why Toombs should not be in custody until the Governor of Illinois has granted extradition papers and Toombs' counsel has had opportunity to appeal to the Federal Court to keep Toombs in Chicago, on the theory he will be needed there to straighten out the tangled financial affairs of Toombs & Daily.

Toombs' appearance before a referee in bankruptcy in Chicago yesterday was delayed until Monday when the referee continued his inquiry into the collapse of Toombs & Daily, stockholders of which say they probably will lose more than $2,000,000. Police were prepared to serve warrants when he appeared before the referee, Garfield Charles.

Edwin D. Buell, receiver appointed by the Federal Court for Toombs and Daily in connection with a bankruptcy petition, filed a petition asking that all property and records of the company held by the Foreman Trust and Savings Bank be turned over to him. The

Faints 23,000 Feet in Air, Revives and Goes Higher

Commercial Pilot Reaches 24,300-Foot Altitude in Flight at Des Moines and Claims New Record.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DES MOINES, Ia., Aug. 18.—Pilot E. K. (Rusty) Campbell of Moline, Ill., reached an altitude of 24,300 feet in a commercial plane here today after losing consciousness at the 23,000 foot level and falling approximately 3000 feet before he could right his ship. He reascended after recovering consciousness.

Campbell was accompanied by Carroll Gorman, reporter on the Des Moines Tribune-Capital. The two think their mark sets a new record for commercial planes. The ship was a Fairchild, powered with a 425-horsepower Wasp motor. It had recently been purchased by the Yellowcab Airways here.

Gorman said the first 10,000 feet was gained in 13 minutes. More than half an hour was required to reach the 20,000-foot level, where violent attacks of sneezing warned the pair of insufficient oxygen. Both applied masks coupled to oxygen tanks, but Campbell removed his as it made him dizzy.

Beyond the 20,000-foot level, Campbell had difficulty in keeping his eyes open. Gorman, riding behind him, kept the pilot at attention for a time by punching him in the back when he slumped in his seat. Three thousand feet higher, Campbell fainted and the plane swooped in a wide spiral. The ship righted itself and was flying on an even keel when Campbell recovered from his faint. After a few moments' rest, Campbell again nosed the plane upward and reached 24,300 feet before he was again stricken with a fainting spell.

HOLDUP MEN LOSE $10 AND 'VICTIM' GETS IT

Frightened Away Without Waiting for Change or Cigarettes They Bought.

An attempt to hold up Mrs. Cecelia Badendieck's grocery store, 1903 Knox avenue, last night cost two young men $10, and left their intended victim the gainer by that amount.

The first of the men entered at 8:20 o'clock and, placing a $10 bill on the counter, asked for a package of cigarettes. Mrs. Badendieck took the bill and went into a rear room for change. A moment later, a second man entered with a handkerchief over his face and a revolver in his hand. Mrs. Badendieck's daughter, Theresa, 18 years old, coming from the rear room ahead of her mother, saw the masked intruder and screamed. Whereupon, both men fled, leaving behind their $10 and the cigarettes.

FIRE DESTROYS 35 HOUSES, THREATENS NEXT TOWN

2000 Men Called From Mines to Fight Blaze in Cascades; Weeks Without Rainfall.

By the Associated Press.

ELLENSBURG, Wash., Aug. 18.—Fire tonight destroyed 35 residences and business buildings in Ronald, in the Cascades, 33 miles north of Ellensburg and crept into the woods toward Rosyln, two miles away, a message here said tonight.

More than 2000 men from the mines in the district were called to fight the blaze, which was reported approaching a powder warehouse. A high wind and weeks without rainfall gave impetus to the flames.

Ronald is a mining village of 500 population, while two miles to the southeast is Rosyln, a town of more than 3500 population.

One report from the valley said that the blaze started in a cafe while another was that it was caused by the explosion of a liquor still.

SCHOOL WHERE 44 LIVES WERE LOST IS REPLACED

Bath, Mich., in Holiday Mood as Gift of Senator James Couzens Is Accepted.

BATH, Mich., Aug. 18. — In a holiday spirit, the village of Bath today accepted the Senator James Couzens agricultural school, built on the site of the structure blown to bits 15 months ago by Andrew Kehoe, a maniac, with the loss of 44 lives.

Bands blared on the streets, gaily clad refreshment stands beckoned to passersby. Children played cheerfully with the new playground apparatus.

The village stepped completely out of the obscuring grief caused by Kehoe's demented idea that taxes were too high. Even in the formal dedication services when the keys of the building made possible by Senator Couzens' generosity were turned over to the village board of education, speakers made every effort to turn thoughts away from the sorrows of the past.

As the Rev. Scott MacDonald, pastor of the church next door, whichb was damaged when Kehoe let go his dynamite blast, and father of a girl who died in the tragedy,2 put it when he opened the dedication ceremony: "This is a solemn, yet a joyful hour."

In addition to the formal turning over of the gift, it was homecoming day for Bath. Many former residents returned.

SAYS LONDON POLICE COULD CLEAN UP CHICAGO IN WEEK

Scotland Yard Official Declares Men Take Pride in Work—All Murders Last Year Solved.

LONDON, Aug. 18. — Scotland Yard could clean up Chicago in a week. That is the retort handed to Chief of Police Hughes of Chicago, who is quoted as saying: "Scotland Yard detectives would be as helpless as rank amateurs if they tried to suppress Chicago crime."

A Scotland Yard official, who declined to allow his name to be used, points out that "Scotland Yard men take a pride in their work and do their utmost to track criminals and bring them to the dock, but this principle apparently does not apply in Chicago.

"Given the same latitude, the same freedom of action and power to adopt the drastic methods of American police, a few of our fellows from the Flying Squad would clean up Chicago in a week.

"We had 27 murders last year and tracked all of them, without adopting the practices of the American police."

ELEVATOR MAN OVERCOME FIGHTING APARTMENT FIRE

Negro, Unconscious More Than Hour After Attacking Blaze in Rubbish Heap.

An inhalator was used last night to revive Eugene Winters, 21-year-old Negro elevator operator at the Huntington Arms Apartment, 5560 Pershing avenue, after he had been overcome at 8:30 o'clock in fighting a fire in a rubbish heap in the basement. Winters was unconscious for more than an hour. The fire was extinguished without damage to the building.

Less Interest in Atlantic Phone.

PARIS, Aug. 18.—The demand for trans-Atlantic telephone service has steadily decreased since last April, when it was a novelty. The first four months of the service resulted in 2600 calls being put through from Paris to New York and points in the Middle West. The average during the first weeks was 25 to 30 calls daily and this figure has now dropped to 20 and below. Telephone service by wireless has recently been opened between Paris and the Far East.

ROCKFORD FLYERS MAKING GOOD TIME ON GREENLAND HOP

Plane Passes Over Apiskigamish Lake, 500 Miles on Way From Cochrane, Ontario, to Mount Evans.

MEN HOPE TO REACH GOAL THIS MORNING

Aviators Start 1800-Mile Leg of Cruise to Sweden With Clear and Cool Weather.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19 (Sunday). — Amateur radio operators of the Chicago area listening for signals from the plane, "Greater Rockford," on its flight to Stockholm, early this morning reported to the Associated Press that interference presumably from an experimental station prevented definite recognition of signals. Throughout the night many amateurs volunteered to stand by in the hopes of hearing from the plane.

By the Associated Press.

MADISON, Wis., Aug. 18.—Frequent radio messages from Parker Cramer, navigator and radio operator of Bert Hassell's monoplane Greater Rockford, received at station 9EK of the Burgess Battery Co., here indicated tonight that the flyers were making constant progress and had flown 500 miles on the second leg of their proposed flight from Rockford, Ill., to Stockholm, Sweden. Their present projected flight is 1800 miles.

Hassell and Cramer took off on their hop from Cochrane, Ont., to Mt. Evans, Greenland at 11:12 a. m., Central Standard time.

At 1:15 p. m. today, Cramer radioed that the plane was passing over Nottaway Bay, location of which was given as approximately 200 miles from Cochrane. By a prearranged plan, Cramer gave only the call letters of the plane and a single letter which represented a point on the flight.

The local station heard Cramer again at 1:57 p. m. At that time the monoplane was soaring over Rupert House, Quebec. Eye Lake, in the same Province, was passed at 4:09, according to Cramer's signals.

Two other signals were received, one sent at 5 p. m., indicating the plane was over Fort George, Quebec, and the second at 6:04 p. m., telling of the flight over Apiskigamish Lake, about 400 miles from the coast, and 500 miles from Cochrane.

Don Mix, sole operator on the Bowdoin, Capt. Donald MacMillan's ship, when the latter made his last polar expedition, is one of the two operators working in shifts on the Hassell flight.

Mix complained tonight that since 6:04 p. m. some other station has been sending out a continuous series of signals on the same wave length as the Greater Rockford, completely cutting off the plane from communication here.

By the Associated Press.

COCHRANE, Ont., Aug. 18.—Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer, Rockford, Ill., aviators, bound for Sweden, were flying tonight on a bee line for Mount Evans, Greenland, 1800 miles from here, where they are scheduled to arrive tomorrow morning. Their plane, the Greater Rockford, made an easy takeoff from the temporary runway here at 12:12 p. m. (11:12 St Louis time).

The two flyers were held here two days by rain after a non-stop flight Thursday from Rockford.

In Greenland, they will rest and prepare for their next hop, to Iceland. From there the next jump will be to Stockholm.

"Don't worry, darling. We'll make it all right."

That was Hassell's farewell to his wife at Rockford, Ill., today in a telephone conversation shortly before he hopped off for Greenland.

"Prospects are wonderful," he said. "There's a light wind from the North right now, but I think it will shift around to our tail to help us to Greenland. The runway on the flying field here is perfect. Yesterday's rain packed it down instead of softening it as I was afraid it would. We'll take off without a bit of trouble.

"I sort of hate to leave Cochrane, though. The people here are great. Last night they gave us a grand banquet. They drank a toast to President Coolidge and 'Shorty' Cramer and I drank one to King George, and then we toasted Cochrane and they toasted Rockford.

"We're feeling fine. Don't worry, darling. We'll make it all right."

LAW PERMITTED SEARCH OF 4000, DRY AGENTS SAY

Eight Customs Officials at Pier 'Frisk' Crowd Seeing Friends Off on Liner Ile de France.

CONGRESSMAN SENDS PROTEST BY WIRE

Inspection Chief Admits Action May Have Been Drastic, But Cites U. S. Regulation.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—While customs officials were busy today explaining the action of guards who searched 4000 visitors to the outgoing French liner Ile de France at midnight Friday, names of some of the 125 alleged night club patrons who have been subpenaed to testify as to Broadway liquor sales before the Federal grand jury tomorrow became known at the Federal Building.

Among those for whom subpenaes are said to have been issued are Philip M. Plant of 3 East Eighty-sixth street, wealthy and socially prominent, stepson of former United States Attorney William Hayward; William B. Leads, member of a foremost Park avenue family, with a country place at Oyster Bay, and police officers and prohibition agents.

Other names on the list were Samuel Kern, bailiff for Federal Judge Bondy, and Prohibition Agent Michael Sassi.

Cause of Search Given.

The word "suspect" in clause 482 of the United States customs laws was cited by officials yesterday as sufficient authority for the search of the 4000 visitors to the Ile de France.

Visitors to the ship who had seen their friends off were surprised when, on seeking to leave pier No. 57, Hudson River, from which the vessel sailed, they were held up and compelled to run a gantlet of eight customs guards who "frisked" them, patted their hips and pockets and collected a total of 18 bottles of what is described as foreign alcoholic liquor.

Clause 482 of the customs laws is entitled "Search of Vehicles and Persons" and provides that officers authorized to board or search vessels "may stop, search and examine * * * * any vehicle, beast or person on which or whom they shall suspect there is merchandise which is subject to duty or shall have been introduced into the United States in any manner contrary to law."

Customs Chief Defends Men.

In the face of widespread criticism of the way in which the guards interpreted the letter of the law, Col. William S. Conrow, chief of customs inspection division and acting surveyor of the port in the absence of Surveyor Thomas W. Whittle, rose to the defense of his men. He said they had the matter entirely in their own hands and acted within their rights.

He said the search of those leaving the ship was part of regular procedure, carried out, perhaps, in an unusually drastic manner. He denied that any special order for extraordinary vigilance at the French liner's sailing had been issued.

Deputy Surveyor John F. Anderson, who is in charge of pier details in the absence of Deputy Surveyor W. W. Trumbull, said he had not issued any special orders to his men.

"They were acting under the provisions of the customs laws," he said. "If there was undue roughness on their part, of which I have not heard, I shall see the offenders are dealt with."

Eight Men Did Frisking.

Anderson explained arrangements for covering the pier. Eight men were assigned, with no superior in charge. Two were at the gates, two at the stairhead and four on the ship.

"Everyone coming off a ship as she sails," he said, "is scrutinized. Ordinarily only suspicious characters are molested, but the men Friday night may have had reason to suspect that a large quantity of liquor was being brought off the Ile de France, or they may have suspected that our flying squad which checks up on them was near and may have been afraid they would be reprimanded if liquor was found on those they passed, and so searched everybody of their own accord."

Col. Conrow offered the 18 bottles of liquor as justification for the unusual vigilance of the guards. Most of those on whom liquor was found, he said, paid fines of $5 to $10 at the pier without complaint, and no formal complaint from any

CURTIS IN ACCEPTANCE SPEECH URGES NON-PARTISAN FARM RELIEF COMMISSION

MANY REPORTED DEAD IN FURIOUS STORM IN HAITI

Some Estimates Put Loss of Life at 200 and Property Damage at $1,000,000—Relief Work Begun.

By the Associated Press.

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, Aug. 18.—A disastrous hurricane which struck the Southern peninsula of Haiti three days ago is thought to have caused heavy loss of life. In some estimates the number of killed is placed at 200 and the damage to property in the neighhood of $1,000,000. Small boats were sunk or hurled damaged to the beach, crops were destroyed and all communication disrupted.

From the fragmentary reports received here it is thought the damage is confined to a relatively small area.

The naval tug Woodcock returned today from the peninsula after having distributed food and medical supplies to some of the stricken villages. Officers reported that a lake was formed 20 feet deep and four miles in length at Aquin. A dock was lifted bodily and carried 300 yards inland.

Reconstruction of communications has begun and the restoration of comparatively normal conditions seems assured by the end of the month.

RIVAL FELICITATES G. O. P. VICE-PRESIDENTIAL NOMINEE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEWPORT, Ark., Aug. 18.—Senator Joseph T. Robinson Democratic vice-presidential nominee, sent the following telegram to his Republican opponent, Senator Charles Curtis:

"On the occasion of your formal notification as candidate of the Republican party for Vice-President, permit me to extend cordial greetings. I trust and feel assured that at the close of the campaign, whatever may be its result, we will be bound by the same ties of mutual friendship and personal esteem that exists between us at its beginning.

"JOE T. ROBINSON."

Robinson and Curtis have long been warm friends in the Senate.

VENIZELOS SUPPORTERS FIRED UPON; FOUR WOUNDED

Shots Come From Balcony of Former Dictator Before Which Hostile Demonstration Occurred.

By the Associated Press.

ATHENS, Greece, Aug. 18.—A number of supporters of Premier Eleutherious Venizelos were fired upon from a balcony of the offices of Gen. Theodorus Pangalos, former dictator of Greese, tonight when they made a demonstration there, shouting and throwing stones. Four were wounded, two rather seriously.

M. Venizelos ordered an inquiry and punishment for both demonstrators and those who fired.

FIRE IN NEW COURTHOUSE

Slight Blaze in Upper Basement Does Little Damage.

A fire of undetermined origin was discovered in the upper basement of the new Courthouse by a watchman at 3:20 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The fire was confined to a room, in use for storage, at the southeast corner of the basement.

In the storeroom were supplies belonging to sub-contractors, mostly pipe fittings and electrical fixtures. The fire was confined chiefly to wood and packing, and the loss is small. Some stonework, over two basement windows, on the Market street side of the building, was discolored.

Woman Tries Channel Swim Again.

By the Associated Press.

CAPE GRIS NEZ, France, Aug. 18.—Two English swimmers took to the water from Cape Grisnez tonight in an effort to swim the English Channel. Miss Ivy Hawke, who failed in a similar attempt last year, started swimming at 9:46 p. m. and was followed at 10 o'clock by Frank Perks, who likewise failed to conquer the treacherous currents in 1927. The weather was favorable.

MRS. ROSS DISCUSSES CANDIDATES' HABITS

Smith Drinks Little and Hoover Is No Abstainer, Says Ex-Governor.

By the Associated Press.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Aug. 18.—The personal habits of the two presidential nominees as regards the use of liquor were discussed today at the closing session of the University of Virginia's institute of public affairs during debate that followed an address by Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, former Governor of Wyoming and vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee, defending the prohibition stand of that party and of Gov. Alfred Smith, its standard-bearer.

Mrs. Ross was subjected to a fire of questions by the institute delegates about the Democratic nominee. She declared that she herself was a "dry" and "never drank."

"A large proportion of the opposition to Gov. Smith is based on hearsay evidence and a lack of understanding of the man and his purposes," she said. "I am convinced that Gov. Smith is not a man who indulges in intoxicants to any extent. Indeed I am inclined to think he indulges hardly at all."

Mrs. Ross added that she had "no reason to think that Mr. Hoover indulges to excess, neither do I believe he is a total abstainer. His friends in New York make out that he is not dry. In the South and West he is painted as a paragon of all prohibitionist desires."

She explained that she would not have brought this point up if she had not been questioned. She told of investigating the record of Gov. Smith in greater detail than that of Mr. Hoover.

"What about sinister influences back of Smith?" came from a female interrogator.

"Do you mean Tammany?" Mrs. Ross countered.

"Partly," was the response of the questioner, who also murmured something about "foreign influences."

"Oh, you mean the Pope," Mrs. Ross responded, and the audience broke into a roar of laughter.

The former Wyoming Governor declared that Gov. Smith is not seeking repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, but modification of the Volstead act.

HOOVER ASKS CURTIS TO SIT WITH CABINET---IF G. O. P. WINS

Vice Presidential Nominee Accepts Invitation Conditioned on Republican Victory.

By the Associated Press.

TOPEKA, Kan., Aug. 18.—Herbert Hoover today invited his running mate, Senator Curtis, to join in the Cabinet meetings in his office as vice president in the event of Republican success in the election, and the vice presidential nominee accepted the proposal.

President Harding set the precedent Hoover proposes to follow, by inviting Coolidge, then vice president, to attend cabinet meetings.

PAINTED INDIANS WELCOME NOMINEE

Their War Whoops Mingle With Cheers of Crowd That Greets Him at Topeka, Kan. Capitol.

By the Associated Press.

TOPEKA, Kan., Aug. 18.—Non-partisan disposition of the farm relief problem through a joint Congressional Committee was advocated here today by Senator Curtis of Kansas in his address formally accepting the Republican vice presidential nomination.

Tariff revision and development of inland waterways were other suggestions for relief of the farmer by the Kansas Senator, who gave first attention and greatest space in his address to a discussion of the agricultural situation with which he has been identified for many years in Congress.

His declaration for prohibition was received with cheers.

Speaking from a temporary stand shielded from the setting sun on the south steps of the Kansas State House, Senator Curtis received an ovation from the crowd before him on the lawn. Kansans who have sent him to Congress for 35 years predominated the throng which also included national party leaders and a representative from each State.

Chairman Work, of the Republican National Committee, accompanied by Mrs. David Mulvane, wife of the national committeeman for Kansas, led the march of the notification committee to the platform. Members of the family of Senator Curtis followed.

Crowd Cheers Curtis.

The appearance of Senator Curtis, bare-headed and walking behind Gov. Paulen, was the signal for an outburst from the crowd. A band of Pottawatomie Indians in feathers and war paint helped out with war whoops. The Senator wore a sack blue coat and white trousers and smiled broadly as he stopped at the front of the stand to recognize the greetings to him.

A Modoc group of singers sang "Charlie Curtis" as he took his place.

Senator Curtis sat between Senator Fess of Ohio and Gov. Paulen.

A soldier and a sailor carried an American flag to him as the band played the "Star-Spangled Banner."

The lawn in front of the stand, a city block deep and two blocks wide, was packed almost solid as the ceremony began.

On the wide steps of the Masonic Hall across the street, another crowd was seated.

Albert Patten, chairman of the committee on arrangements, opened the exercises, introducing Gov. Paulen. The Governor called on the Rev. J. R. McFadden, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, to give the invocation.

Then Gov. Paulen introduced Senator Fess, who brought the message of notification. Before beginning his prepared address Senator Fess declared his belief that the assembly here today was "a personal tribute to a great man."

Reads Prepared Address.

The crowd roared a welcome when the sun-browned nominee arose—the first vice-presidential candidate from Kansas who, if elected, will be the first man from west of the Mississippi River to attain that office. Some were there who knew him when he was a jockey and when he drove a hack while he studied law here.

Senator Curtis waited for several minutes to permit the welcome to him to subside and as he began reading his prepared address some of the Indians standing by the speaker's stand gave vent to ear-splitting war whoops. He laughed with the crowd and waited again for them to quiet down.

CITY APPEALS TO COURT FROM 8-CENT FARE

Seeks Review of Public Service Commission's Order in Favor of Street Car Company.

ASKS $53,000,000 LIMIT ON VALUE

Avers Valuation Finally Fixed Was 97.7 Per Cent of Estimated Reproduction Cost New.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 18.—The City of St. Louis today carried to the courts the increased valuation of "not less than $66,000,000" placed upon the properties of the St. Louis Public Service Co. by the Missouri Public Service Commission, and the accompanying increase in street car fare to provide a return on this valuation, by applying to the Cole County Circuit Court for a writ of certiorari, to review the commission's decision.

In this appeal the city attacks the valuation as excessive declares it was not necessary to increase the fare from 7½ cents to 8 cents and attacks the commission's action in giving principal weight to the valuation theory of reproduction new, at current prices, less depreciation.

Text of Valuation Theory.

The appeal gives the city an opportunity to again seek a clearer ruling from the courts on the valuation of public utilities, and to contend for more consideration of the investment cost, that is, the amount of money actually invested in the properties.

In its decision fixing the valuation of the operating property at not less than $63,500,000, and the non-operating property at $2,500,000, the commission said it had not placed stress on either the original cost or reproduction, less depreciation, theories.

The city, in its appeal, contends he commission gave undue weight o reproduction cost, less depreciation, and declares the valuation finally fixed was 97.7 per cent of the commission's estimate of reproduction cost new, less depreciation.

The valuation fixed, the city asserts in the appeal, "' practically id ntical with the commission'- finding of reproduction cost less depreciation, and it is therefore apparent that the commission has, for all practical purposes, wholly disregarded the elements of original cost, contrary to law, and contrary to its interpretation of the law, as set out in its opinion in other cases."

Places Value at $53,000,000.

The city contends the valuation should not exceed $53,000,000. The city contends the commission erred in ignoring the downward trend of equipment and material costs; that the valuation of land should be $3,194,518 instead of $4,700,000; that the going value should be $2,500,000, instead of $3,000,000; that the accrued depreciation should be 29 per cent instead of 25 per cent, and that the commission erred in its estimates of the original and reproduction cost of the physical property.

The case will be docketed for the October terms of the Circuit Court. Whatever decision is rendered by the lower court an appeal to the Supreme Court is probable.

Other Utility Cases.

With this case, all of the principal public utilities in St. Louis are before the Public Service Commission on questions of rates, in some form.

The application of the Laclede Gas Light Co. of St. Louis for authority to put into effect a schedule of increased rates which would add approximately $1,400,000 a year to bills of gas users, chiefly domestic consumers, is pending before the commission for final argument and decision.

An audit by the commission of the books of the Union Electric Light and Power Co. of St. Louis, is under way to determine whether an additional reduction in rates should be ordered. The company recently filed a schedule reducing rates for large consumers approximately $600,000 a year, and the rates of steam heating consumers about $100,000 a year. This reduction was made after the commission began an inquiry into a large increase in Union Electric profits in 1927. The City of St. Louis filed a motion for the audit, contending the reduction should have been at least $1,418,000 a year.

Rates of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. of St. Louis are still before the commission in unfinished form. In July, 1925, the commission granted the company an increase in business telephone rates in St. Louis for a test period of 13 months. The city appealed but the appeal was dismissed by the Supreme Court on the ground it was not properly perfected, under the court's rules. The test rate still is in effect, as the commission never has issued an order to modify it or make it permanent. Several extensions of the test period were ordered.

A protest by the city against a monthly charge of 25 cents by the telephone company for dials on telephones connected with private branch exchanges is before the commission for decision.

County Cases Pending.

Other St. Louis utility cases pending before the commission are the arbitration of the dispute between the street railway company and its employes over a new wage agreement, which has not been set for hearing; a protest by St. Louis County residents against a two-zone system of car fares on the Creve Coeur line of the St. Louis Public Service Co., and a case involving the right of the street railway company to maintain skip-stops on its Olive street lines.

Valuation of the St. Louis County Water Co., recently increased by the commission after prolonged hearings, is before the commission on motions by the company and University City for a rehearing. The rehearing likely will be denied. The valuation of $5,235,000 given the water company for its operating property is within $142,000 of what the commission found to be the reproduction cost of the property, less depreciation.

others halted and "frisked" had reached him last night.

Pierre de Malglaive, resident director of the French line, said he thought the action of the eight guards was justified and provided no cause for complaint.

Director Does Not Object.

"I believe the customs guards were thoroughly within their rights," he said. "I came off the Ile de France with a suitcase and I was searched, as I have been before many times, but I did not object in any way."

Many of the "frisked' 4000, however, were not inclined to let the matter slip by so lightly. They objected violently on the pier, and threatened action against the guards, who, they declared, had violated their constitutional rights.

Their cause was taken up by Representative Loring M. Black Jr. of the Fifth New York District, who sent the following telegram to President Coolidge at his summer home:

"Respectfully direct your official attention to the searching of innocent citizens by United States customs officers at French Line pier in New York City, Aug. 17, 1928. Newspapers estimate 4000 persons unlawfully searched by Federal officials. This outrage on American rights by your subordinates calls for investigation by executive head of our Government and removal of guilty officials."

Makes Strong Protest.

In a statement issued when he sent the telegram, Representative Black characterized the occurrence as "the most outragous insolence of bureaucracy we have ever seen in America" and laid it to the Republican administration.

"Instead of annoying visitors at your piers," the statement said, "the Republican administration had better frisk some of our well known militant drys, otherwise known as boozefighters. It is a depressing spectacle for a great Government to act so childishly.

"Prohibition is charged with murder by shooting and poison. Now it descends to simple and promiscuous assault.

"The official responsible for this outrage should be immediately removed by the President, unless Mr. Coolidge wants to ratify this banality. This was not enforcement, but impertinence."

ARIZONA LEADERS MEET HOOVER AT GRAND CANYON

Candidate's Speech Urging California to Co-Operate on Boulder Dam Praised By Party Heads.

By the Associated Press.

GRAND CANYON, Ariz., Aug. 18.—Confident of the result in his home State of California after a month's stay there, Herbert Hoover today invaded Arizona, where he discussed with party leaders plans for driving that State's electoral vote into the Republican column in November for the third successive time.

Party leaders who joined him at Williams and accompanied him here for extended conferences, told the Republican presidential candidate that his declaration at Los Angeles yesterday concerning the development of the great irrigation, flood control and hydroelectric project at Boulder Canyon, had proved "a 10-strike" in this border State.

They said Arizonans were well pleased by his expression that California should "meet in every reasonable way the needs and views" of the other States in the Colorado River basin in the final formulation of legislation.

Important Issue in Arizona.

The issue over Boulder Canyon has been every whit as acute in this State as it has been in California, and Hoover was told that the success of the Democrats in retaining control of the State Government over a long period of years could be attributed to the fight their ledaers had made to get for the State its share both of the waters of the Colorado and of the revenue which would accrue from the operation of a hydroelectric plant on the river. They made it clear that the people of Arizona felt the future development of the State hinged on its retention of what it considers its rights in the stream.

While members of his party were viewing the sights of the Grand Canyon, Hoover spent the afternoon at a hotel in close conference with Republican leaders in Arizona, receiving from them reports of the political situation in the State and going over plans for the forthcoming campaign.

Among those who joined him at Williams were H. S. Corbett, State Republican National Committeeman; John Udall, John C. Phillips and C. M. Stoddard, candidates for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, and Allen S. Ware, W. W. Pickrell, John L. Gust, Fred Breen, C. C. Lewis and Frank Stewart.

To Reach Iowa Tuesday.

Leaving Grand Canyon shortly after midnight, the Republican candidate will journey back to Williams before turning northeast again to continue his trip to West Branch, Ia., where his second pronouncement of the campaign will be made Tuesday night to the citizens of his birthplace. One other stop will be made in Arizona, at Winslow, before he passes into New Mexico.

In New Mexico, Senator Bronson Cutting and other Republican leaders will join him early tomorrow, having their special car attached to his train for the ride across the State, which will take all day. While four stops are planned, at Gallup, Albuquerque, Las Vegas and Raton, the candidate will make no political speeches.

New Mexico Interested, Too.

New Mexico also has a deep interest in the Boulder Canyon development, and is one of the seven States party to the pact which Hoover helped to negotiate in the conference of several years ago. At that conference a division of waters of the river between the upper and lower basin States was worked out, while that between Arizona and California, which has proved the stumbling block to national legislation, was left to negotiation. The Boulder Canyon situation will come in for some consideration, but the conversations between the nominee and the party leaders are expected to deal largely with matters of organization and strategy in the coming campaign.

After leaving his home State last night, Hoover put the final touches on the 4000-word speech he will deliver at his birthplace Tuesday night. With this off his hands, his mind was free for the consideration of the political problems involved in the four States through which his train will pass before he reaches West Branch.

Curtis Offers Farm Plan In Acceptance Speech

carried the Senator's words to the audience before him. An extensive radio broadcasting hookup sent his voice out to the ears of thousands in every section of the country.

Soon after he commenced speaking, some of the crowd on the outskirts departed. But the large bulk of the throng stood attentively by to the end of the 30-minute address.

Farm Relief Plan.

As Curtis offered his suggestion for farm relief he called on the Republicans to present a "united impentrable front" and praised Herbert Hoover as "well worthy of the party's choice; a credit to it and to the nation, both in the eyes of our people and of the world."

"The question of the proper relief for agriculture is a trying and perplexing one," he said. "The problem is of deep-seated economic importance to every citizen without regard to his occupation or his political party. Properly its solution is and always should be nonpartisan.

"I am convinced that if a small joint committee of the House and Senate were appointed to study the problem and to find its proper solution, the necessary relief quickly could and would be afforded. The committee could be assisted in its task by the advice and experience of the most capable experts on the subject whose services can be obtained."

(Senator Curtis supported the McNary-Haugen farm bill last session after pressing two of his own which were sponsored in the House by Democrats, but he voted to uphold the veto of President Coolidge of the McNary-Haugen measure on the basis of his responsibility to the administration as its leader in the Senate.)

Follows Hoover's Program.

Tariff revision by the next Congress to obtain higher duties on some agricultural commodities was also stressed by Curtis who, like Hoover, saw great hope in the extension and improvements of inland waterways. The Senator believed the Republican party has done much for the farmers already and declared that without that help, the agricultural situation "would be infinitely worse than it is."

In praising Hoover as a man whose "extensive knowledge, training and experience well fit him to guide the country wisely and justly to new heights of renown," Senator Curtis referred also to President Coolidge, declaring that "the policies of Calvin Coolidge are those of our party and are expressed in our platform."

"They are Mr. Hoover's and they are mine," he said. "They are those of Washington, Lincoln and Roosevelt. There must be no disloyalty within our ranks, and there will be none. Republicans may quarrel among themselves, but not at such a time as this."

Strongly for Prohibition.

Declaring, "I am opposed to the repeal of the eighteenth amendment or of the Volstead Act," Curtis reminded his Kansas friends of his record as prosecuting attorney of Shawnee County to show that "I believe in and practice enforcement of the law." It is one of his proud boasts that he had "dried up" Shawnee County.

The nominee struck hard at those who suggest State control of alcoholic beverages. He recalled that all but two of the States had ratified the eighteenth amendment and by "this voluntary action which binds all, the states delegated to the Federal government their full original power and responsibility on the liquor prohibition question."

"For the Federal government now to adopt, or even to propose or to favor, a policy which will result in allowing each State to determine for itself the alcoholic content of beverages to be manufactured, sold and transported throughout the country, would be a direct and indefensible attempt on its part to evade or to repudiate the responsibility so delegated and assumed, and an endeavor to redelegate that responsibility to the several states from whence it came, without any justification.

"I believe in meeting an issue squarely, therefore, I state that not only am I heartily in favor of faithfully enforcing all our laws, but, further, I am opposed to the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment or of the Volstead Act."

14 Points of Good Government.

Fourteen means of promoting good government and "maintaining the era of national prosperity never before equaled by any Nation on the face of the globe" were outlined by the Senator as follows:

"1. To protect agriculture effectively, and to encourage it in every proper manner.

"2. To protect American labor by enacting all needed legislation, and by encouraging closer relations between labor and capital.

"3. To enforce the laws without fear or favor.

"4. To encourage active participation by women in the conduct of the government.

"5. To reduce the public debt, public expenses, and taxes.

"6. To maintain peace, engage in commerce with all nations, and to enter entangling alliances with none.

"7. To encourage all industry and to maintain a protective tariff with duties high enough fully to protect American producers, American products, and American labor against foreign competition.

"8. To develop, aid and encourage means of transportation and communication, national and international, by land and water, and in the air, through the consolidation of railroads; the establishment of a complete system of inland waterways; the re-establishment of a strong merchant marine, a strong postal and commercial aircraft service, and a wider and more efficient use of the ever-increasing possibilities of the radio.

"9. To give equal and exact justice to all men of whatever state or persuasion.

"10. To support the State governments in all their rights.

"11. To preserve the Federal Government in its whole constitutional vigor, and to maintain and expand the existing high state of national consciousness.

"12. To preserve the liberty of the press; the freedom of speech and worship; civil liberty and security of individual rights, and to promote the cause of education among the people.

"13. To protect the lives and property of our citizens by the completion of an adequate system of flood-control for the Mississippi River and its tributaries, and elsewhere if necessary, to prevent a recurrence of a disaster such as recently occurred in the Mississippi Valley.

"14. To continue a generous policy in the fulfillment of obligations to veterans of our wars, and to extend it to their widows, orphans and dependents."

Fess Speaks Extempore.

In delivering the notification of the nomination Senator Fess discarded his prepared address and his speech followed it only in general detail. He omitted the statement in his prepared address: "We accept the challenge of the Democratic candidate on this issue" (prohibition), but he emphasized that the Republican party stands committed "against any attempt to scuttle this program of national prohibition."

Curtis lingered a few minutes after concluding his address to wave to friends below in the crowd. Again with his right arm extended, shaking hands with those he passed, he walked out

DAY OF HANDSHAKING FOR SENATOR CURTIS

Nominee Holds Reception for Visitors From All Parts of Nation.

By the Associated Press.

TOPEKA, Aug. 18.—Notification of Senator Charles Curtis of his selection as Republican vice presidential nominee, took on a jollification atmosphere today as Kansans swarmed into Topeka to celebrate the occasion.

No one seemed to enter into the spirit of the day more than Senator Curtis. From early morning, he was busy greeting the incoming hosts who had jammed the city by noon, calling his friends by name and shaking their hands.

Curtis took up a station in the flower-laden Governor's suite at the Jayhawk hotel in the morning and his hand was outstretched to all of the many callers who hurried up to pay their respects. Most of the visitors wore the Kansas sunflower badge bearing the words "Our Charlie."

Chairman Work of the Republican national committee, accompanied by Gov. Fisher of Pennsylvania, dropped in on his return from the Pacific coast, but he had to get in line with the Kansans in order to meet the Senator. Photographers broke up the reception long enough to get pictures of Senator Curtis and Chairman Work which were taken up on the hotel roof.

Calling off the reception to go to a luncheon for the nominee and the notification committee by the Chamber of Commerce, Senator Curtis found himself in the midst of a new flock of friends as he entered the Kansan Hotel lobby. He smiled broadly in response to the applause which greeted his entry and then made the rounds of the crowded lobby shaking hands with every one.

After the luncheon he went to his home on Topeka avenue, just around the corner from the State house, to await the notification ceremonies.

Here was his family, including a sister who resides here and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. R. Colvin; another sister, Mrs. Edward E. Gann of Washington, and Mr. Gann; a daughter, Mrs. Leona Curtis Knight of Providence, R. I., and a son, Harry Curtis of Chicago.

Tonight the nominee was host at an informal dinner party in the Jayhawk Hotel to his family, friends and some of the party leaders.

Senator Curtis will leave Topeka tomorrow night for Washington before proceeding to Rocky Point, R. I., to deliver a speech on Thursday. He will travel by way of Kansas City and Chicago, but intends to stop in each city only long enough to make train connections.

HOOVER NOT THE MAN HE WAS, SAYS HOLT

Former Editor Believes Chang Due to Politicians and Favors Smith.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HARTFORD, Conn., Aug. 18.—Hamilton Holt, former editor of the Independent and now president of Rollins College, in an interv here today praised Gov. Smith, merely as a great vote getter, as a capable statesman who make a good President.

In dissecting Herbert Hoover said Hoover was not the man used to be, due chiefly to associa tion with politicians of the ing regime.

"For every vote Al Smith on account of his religion he gain two or more through his sonal appeal to the common Holt said.

"I am not positive (no man be), but I have a hunch that will win the election," said "It will be a most interesting paign. On one side we have admirably qualified for the dency and on the other the vote-getter the country has known."

In characterizing Smith as "great vote-getter," Holt said does not at all minimize the Democratic candidate's qualities statesmanship.

"Smith is quite capable of ling the presidential job, and shall vote for him," he said.

Holt's decision to support is based upon his belief that change of party control is a thing for the Government.

"I would like to see the Democrats come into power again, not for too long. Hoover pledged himself to continue Coolidge policies, and that a continuation of the Harding cies. To my mind, they have continued long enough," he said.

Holt believes that Hoover's extensive foreign experience has given him a splendid background, he is also convinced that Hoover not the man he was.

"Hoover has lost his old ing spirit," said Holt. "Associ with politicians has taken away keen edge. He is no longer idealistic hero-knight with poised to right wrongs and do in the world.

"At heart I believe he is in of the League of Nations, but has pledged himself to Republi ideals, so there's an end of that"

GROUP THAT SOLD TO TOOMBS MADE 300 PCT. PROFIT IN THREE YEARS

Attorney David W. Hill Cleaned Up $583,000, John M. Atkinson $235,000 and W. K. Whitfield $231,000.

PAID $750,000 AND GOT $3,101,211

And Then Toombs Paid for the International Life Insurance Company Out of Its Own Assets, Now Missing.

A photostatic copy of the agreement by which Roy C. Toombs purchased control of the International Life Insurance Co. last year, obtained by the Post-Dispatch yesterday, set forth the number of shares of common stock in the holding company, the International Co., held by the members of the Hill-Whitfield-Atkinson syndicate, who sold out to Toombs for $3,101,211, making a profit of 300 per cent on their $750,000 investment in three years.

With this information, the Post-Dispatch computed the profits of individual members of the syndicate. This shows that the largest individual profit was $583,161, made upon a $178,519 investment by David W. Hill of 6233 Northwood avenue, an attorney.

John M. Atkinson, Democratic nominee for Governor in 1920, who moved to Los Angeles after selling out to Toombs, made the second largest profit, $235,938. A. H. Carter, now a partner in the McKelvey-Carter Construction Co., made $224,834, and Thomas H. Glancy, former owner of the Marquette Hotel, made $204,750, while W. K. Whitfield, who was succeeded by Toombs as president of the insurance company, made $231,750. A table showing the profits of each member of the syndicate is published elsewhere in this edition.

The other members of the group were: Dr. George F. Rendelman, physician and now chief examiner for the International Life; August Schlafly, capitalist and banker; Samuel Ulen and Joseph Ashcroft, residents of Southeast Missouri, and George M. Le Crone and John C. Martin, residents of Illinois.

How Sales Were Made.

The Whitfield - Hill - Atkinson group purchased the 2000 shares of common stock of the International Co. in 1924 for $750,000 from Massey Wilson, Jacob L. Babler and associates. This gave them possession of about 24,000 shares of stock in the International Life Insurance Co., a controlling interest. As has been told in the Post-Dispatch recently, Wilson and Babler formed the International Co., giving a par value of $1 a share to its 2000 shares of common stock. Then they issued about $2,000,000 of preferred stock in the holding company and with this capital they obtained control of the International Life Insurance Co., then much smaller than it is today, with its $40,000,000 of assets and $300,000,000 of policies in force.

Their shares of common stock, originally valued at $1, Wilson and Babler sold out to the Whitfield syndicate for $375 a share, and in May, 1927, came Toombs with an offer of $1600 a share for the majority holdings of this common stock and $1500 a share for the minority holders.

Toombs' offer was accepted and in June, 1927, he paid the Whitfield syndicate $2,000,000 cash, giving his note for $1,101,211 secured by additional stock of Toombs & Daily, his Chicago investment house which also is now in receivership.

Toombs Used Company's Assets.

With the $2,000,000 cash payment Toombs obtained possession of the 2000 shares International Co. common stock which he deposited with New York and Baltimore bankers as security for the $2,000,000 advanced for first payment. By Nov. 1 he had paid the $1,101,211 note and got possession of the International Life Insurance Co. with its $40,000,000 assets.

As has been shown since insurance examiners discovered his manipulations of the insurance companys assets, Toombs, within two months, had withdrawn $2,800,000 of cash and securities from the insurance company and in the following six months had withdrawn $700,000 more in cash and securities, a total of $3,500,000 for which he has so far made no accounting.

His Chicago attorney, Eugene L. McGarry, admitted to a Post-Dispatch reporter in Chicago last week that Toombs purchased the insurance company with its own assets. "Toombs hasn't the securities they say are missing but he can tell where they are," the lawyer said.

Wilson Protested Sale.

Massey Wilson, whose group sold out for $750,000 in 1924, was before the Insurance Commissioners of eight states last Thursday to present his plan to continue the International Life in business, as opposed to the Commissioners' plan in favor of liquidating the firm and selling the insurance to some other company.

Commissioner Detrich of California, who brought about the investigation of the International Life over the protest of the Missouri Insurance Department, questioned Wilson closely about his sale of the company to the Whitefield syndicate, and of the Whitefield sale to Toombs. Wilson, holder of preferred stock in the International holding company, stated that when he heard of the proposed sale to Toombs he wrote to Whitefield and the latter's associates, protesting that "no man could buy the company for $3,200,000 and operate it honestly." Wilson said the company was worth about $1,500,000 at the most.

"I didn't want it sold," Wilson explained, "for I feared whoever bought the holding company would loot it. I did not dream they would loot the International Life Insurance Co."

"I told them," Wilson continued, "that they should be careful to sell only to a man of integrity. I knew that on a business basis a man of that sort would not buy the company for at least twice what it was worth."

How Individuals Shared $2,351,211 Profit in Sale to Roy C. Toombs

THE following table shows how W. K. Whitfield, David W. Hill, John M. Atkinson and associates, who purchased controlling interest in the International Life Insurance Co. in 1924, sold it to Roy C. Toombs three years later at a profit of more than 300 per cent. The controlling interest was obtained by buying the 2000 common shares of the International Co. of St. Louis, which in turn owned a controlling portion of the life company stock.

Attempt to "Fleece" Toombs.

Attorney McGarry also said Toombs was preparing a statement in which he would explain in detail "the manner in which those who sold him the International Life Insurance Co. sought to fleece him." McGarry described Toombs as a financier who had tried to build up the securities of the company after he found among the assets about $7,000,000 of unsatisfactory mortgages and bonds.

Circuit Attorney Sidener has named Former State Representative Edward G. Montana Policy Holders Told to Pay Only to the State.

By the Associated Press.

HELENA, Mont, Aug. 18.—Warning to Montana policy holders of the National Life Insurance Co., a part of the International Life Insurance Co., to pay their premiums only to the Missouri Insurance Department, was issued today by George P. Porter, State Insurance Commissioner.

APPROVES PLAN FOR REINSURANCE OF INTERNATIONAL

Conference of Nine State Commissioners Votes to Favor Proposal of Missouri Life Company.

The nine State Insurance Commissioners who have been investigating the affairs of the International Life Insurance Co. yesterday voted to recommend the approval of the reinsurance plan of the Missouri State Life Insurance Co. They declared that the interests of both policyholders and stockholders of the International Life would be best preserved.

Under this plan, the International Life would lose its identity, the Missouri State Life would take over all its $303,000,000 insurance and would pay off the International stockholders from earnings over a period of years on a basis of "more than the market value of the stock immediately prior to receivership proceedings."

The Missouri State Life's proposal, as explained last night by Hillsman Taylor, president of the company, is substantially an offer to buy the International's individual and group insurance on a basis of $15 for each $1000 of individual insurance which is renewed with the Missouri State Life.

Would Make Shares $109.

The International has $268,000,000 of individual insurance and $35,000,0000 of group insurance. Presuming that all of the individual insurance is continued by policy-holders, it would be worth, at $15 a thousand, a total of $4,120,000. At this value, each of the 37,500 International shares would be worth about $109. The market value of the shares, which are not listed on any exchange, was about $75 a share before receivership.

The proposal, however, calls for no immediate payment to International stockholders. The Missouri State Life would place the International policies in a separate account and distribute the earnings, after payment of dividends and death claims, among the International stockholders until the shares were paid for. The prospects of the stockholders would depend largely on the degree in which the collateral in the policyholders' reserve in sound, Taylor said. "However," he added, "I have no misgivings."

The Missouri State Life also offers to sign renewal contracts with the 2400 field agents of the International and absorb most of the International's St. Louis force of 350 employes.

In a prepared statement outlining their decision after a lengthy conference yesterday, the Commissioners announced they would submit their proposal to Federal Judge Reeves of Kansas City when he sits here Wednesday in connection with the International Life receivership. They declined to amplify the statement.

Two Plans Considered.

The Commissioners considered two reinsurance proposals, and chose the Missouri State plan over that of the Kansas City Life Insurance Co. The two companies, it is understood, offered similar proposals. Projects for reorganizing and refinancing International Life so that it could continue in business were dismissed by the Commissioners as "of an indefinite, intangible and inadequate character."

"The reinsurance contract with the Missouri State Life provides for the assumption in full of all the policy obligations of the International Life and a payment to the International Life for the benefit of its stockholders of a sum of money sufficient to net to them more than the market value of the stock immediately prior to the receivership proceedings," the statement declared. "The character of the management and the great resources of the Missouri State afford ample guarantee of its ability to consummate and carry out this contract."

E. P. Greenwood, head of the Great Southern Life Insurance Co., of Houston, who says he controls the majority of International Life stock, conferred with the commissioners Friday and stated that, although he would like to see the company reorganized, he would not object to reinsurance.

Massey Wilson, one of the founders of International Life, and other individuals have proposed that the company be refinanced and continued in business.

In their statement, the Commissioners declared "we felt ourselves the only persons upon the ground who were looking at the problems presented primarily from the standpoint of the policyholders, and in position to treat these problems impersonally and unselfishly."

Several Plans Proposed.

"During our deliberations," they continued, "we have had before us various plans for reinsurance, refinancing and rehabilitation of the affairs of the International Life. Each has had our most careful consideration. We have come to the conclusion that reinsurance of the company's business is the only certain solution of its problems.

"Plans for refinancing the International Life and preserving its entity as a going concern were found by us to be of such indefinite, intangible and inadequate character as to convince us that none could be consummated within such time as would afford immediate protection to the policyholders and adequate conservation of the interests of the present stockholders.

"We are sincerely and earnestly of the opinion that there can be no legitimate objection of anyone having any interest in this company to the program we propose. This will reconcile controversies between the courts on jurisdictional questions, which if thrashed out in usual course might consume many months of time, and much of the value of the company's assets be dissipated and depreciated. With our plan, finally consumated, we can assure policyholders and stockholders of the fullest co-operation not only from our own departments but from the departments of every other State to the end that their interests will be fully protected."

THREE PERSONS, STRUCK BY AUTOS, DIE AT HOSPITALS

Mrs. Emily Bimson Injured Thursday — John W. Futwiler and George Chinn Hit Monday.

Three persons, two men and a woman, died at hospitals yesterday after being injured earlier in the week in local automobile accidents.

Mrs. Emily Bimson, 32 years old, of 3933 Shenandoah avenue, died at 7:55 a. m. of a fractured skull suffered Thursday when she was struck by a service car near Grand boulevard and Victor street. Paul Colvin, 18 years old, of 2303 Sulphur street, the driver, was rearrested following Mrs. Bimson's death and ordered held for the Coroner's inquest. He gave bond.

John W. Futwiler, 67, a laborer, of 4418 St. Louis avenue, died at 9 a. m., after having been injured when run down last Monday by a machine in front of 8300 North Broadway. Physicians reported the cause of his death as undetermined, despite his injuries.

Frank A. Arfort, 61, a tile-setter, was arrested following Futwiler's death and held for the inquest tomorrow. He drove the car that struck Futwiler. The latter suffered a possible fractured skull and scalp and body lacerations.

George Chinn, Negro, 74 years old, died at City Hospital No. 2 yesterday of internal injuries suffered last Monday when he was struck by a machine at Pendleton and Page avenues. John Leykam, 34 years old, of 8310 Washington avenue, was the driver of the car.

Edward Scott, 12, of 3317 Klein street, suffered a dislocated left leg and other injuries about 9:30 o'clock last night, when knocked down by an automobile in front of 3165 North Eleventh street. The driver took the boy to a physician's office, and drove away.

Scott, after receiving emergency treatment, was taken to City Hospital, where his condition is serious. He is the son of Relief Scott.

MAIL CAR ROBBER CAPTURED AFTER HE KILLS FARMER

Two Others Sought by Ontario Police in Bush Near Parry Sound — Two Men Wounded in Fight.

By the Associated Press.

PARRY SOUND, Ont., Aug. 18.—A large posse of Provincial police was beating through the bush tonight on a hunt for two robbers whose holdup of a mail car and theft of an automobile early today resulted in the killing of a farmer and the wounding of two other men.

The man charged with the shooting was in jail, captured by one of the men he wounded, although the latter was armed with only a monkey wrench.

As Transcontinental train No. 4 of the Canadian Pacific was passing through Romford, 30 miles from here, before dawn, two armed men entered the mail car and backed the three clerks against the wall. Mail clerks are unarmed in Canada. One robber kept the clerks covered as the other went through the mail sacks and rifled them.

Men Steal Auto to Escape.

At Parry Sound the robbers dropped off the train, joined a confederate, and drove away in a car they stole belonging to E Lyman, a tourist from the United States. The theft of the automobile was witnessed by Walter and Houghton Laird, brothers-in-law of Lyman, who notified police. They then set out in pursuit in another car with Lyman and Harold Roland.

At Waubamick the pursuers came on the Lyman car stuck in a ditch and unoccupied. They drove past, turned and came back. By that time one man was seated in the car, and Thomas Jackson, a farmer who had been routed from bed by the robbers to haul them out of the ditch, was preparing with his son to hitch a team of horses to the mired automobile.

"Want any help?" Walter Laird asked the man in the other car. "No," the man replied, "I guess we'll be all right."

Robber Opens Fire.

The cars were close together then and Walter Laird pointed a monkey wrench, held as if it were a revolver, at the man at the wheel of the stolen car. The man begged: "don't shoot," and then as he pretended to comply with the order to get out of the car, opened fire with his pistol.

Jackson, the farmer, fell with a bullet through the neck. He died within a few minutes. Lyman and the Lairds sprang toward the armed man and he shot Walter Laird through the chest and Houghton Laird through the hand.

Than Walter Laird, though seriously wounded, swung his monkey wrench at the man's head and the robber crumpled in the road, the two other occupants of the stolen car fled into the bush.

At the jail here the prisoner said he was John Burowski, a carpenter. He declared he had been given a lift on the road by two men whom he did not know. He had in his possession $1725 in currency.

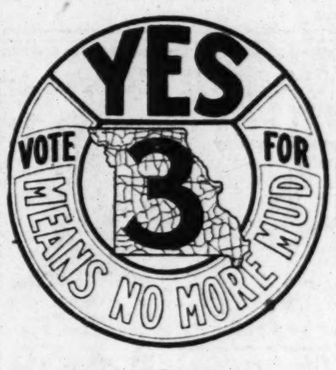
ROAD BOND EMBLEM



OFFICIAL EMBLEM ADOPTED BY ROAD BOND COMMITTEE

It Will Be Reproduced for Billboards, Windshield Stickers and in Other Ways.

This is the new official emblem blem of the Citizens' Road Bond Committee of Missouri, which is campaigning in support of the $75,000,000 State road bond issue to be voted on in the general election Nov. 6.

As the bond proposal will be third on the separate ballot for such propositions, it is known as "No. 3." The emblem points out that passage of the issue will mean "No More Mud" in Missouri. The background of the design is an outline of Missouri, with a rough suggestion of the designated 7640-mile State road system. This system will be augmented within the next few years by more hard roads and many miles of suplementary or farm-to-market roads if the bonds are voted.

The emblem will be reproduced for windshield stickers, for billboards and on pamphlets of the committee, including the special edition of the Citizens' Road Bulletin to be distributed at the State Fair this week.

The outdoor Advertising Association of Missouri has contributed the use of 900 large 24-sheet billboards in 532 Missouri towns and cities, from Oct. 1 until the election.

YOUTHS ADMIT THEFT OF AUTO AND HOLDUPS

Two Arrested When Officer Notices Number on Car—Total Loot $243.

Theft of an automobile and four holdups in which they got a total of $243 were confessed by two youths who were arrested at 10 a. m. yesterday when a policeman at Grand and Lindell boulevards recognized the license number of the car in which they were riding as that of a machine reported stolen. Of the loot, $200 was found in their pockets.

The youths said they were Helms McMahan, 16 years old, of 3510 North Taylor avenue, and John Schmidt, 17, of 4405 Greer avenue. The machine was the property of Russell Lounis of 2833 Sidney street, and was stolen at Kingshighway and Forest Park boulevard the night of Aug. 10. Patrolman Rhodes made the arrest.

One of the holdups admitted was that of a filling station at Clara and Pershing avenues at 9:30 a. m. yesterday, when two robbers escaped with $150 after locking the attendant in a rear room. The youths also admitted robbing a filling station at Clara avenue and Natural Bridge road of $100 Friday night. Other crimes admitted by them were the holdups of drivers of a cleaning and dyeing company's truck and a grocery truck in University City a week ago, the two netting about $43. In each case the youths were identified by the persons held up.

Robber Gets $100 at Filing Station; Locks Up Attendant.

An armed man held up the filling station at the northeast corner of Whittier street and Washington boulevard at 10 a. m. yesterday and took $100 from a safe which he compelled the attendant to open. The attendant, Valentine Kleine of 5185 Delmar boulevard, was then locked inthe washroom, but freed himself by forcing open a window.

300,000 OR MORE EXPECTED TO VISIT FAIR AT SEDALIA

Livestock Valued at $2,000,000 on Display at State Exposition Which Opened Yesterday.

PREMIUM LIST TOTALS $75,000

Wide Variety of Exhibits Ranges From Preserved Strawberries to Geological Specimens.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SEDALIA, Mo., Aug. 18.—With 15,000 exhibits of all descriptions—from preserved strawberries to Missouri mules, from model highway markers to ponderous harvesting machinery, from pipeless furnaces to geological specimens—the twenty-eighth annual State Fair opened here today, having every expectation of a record breaking attendance of 300,000 or more persons during its eight-day program.

Missouri has a fair comparing favorably with those of neighboring states. Its well equipped grounds of 237 acres are receiving as the event gets under way livestock valued roughly at $2,000,000, mostly from home counties, but some coming from skilled breeders of 30 other states.

The agricultural machinery here, representing the last word in modern methods, is worth about $1,000,000 and fills a seven acre lot. This group of exhibits, like various others, is larger than in past years.

There must be a limit sometime t increase in size of attendance and exhibits, but the fair board doesn't see its approach yet. Last year's entrance gates clicked for 267,000 visitors, which exceeded all records except that of 313,000 or more in the unusual and protracted centennial season of 1921. For those who wish to camp on the fair grounds there is a tent city to accommodate 15,000 persons.

$75,000 in Premiums.

It takes nearly three hours just to go through all the exhibits, with only the briefest of pauses. Many visitors come just to look on here and there as fancy pleases, but numerous others come with serious purposes of observing particular things. Your good dairy farmer, for instance, will make a bee line for the cattle barns and the rural housewife generally will make an early call at the attractive home economics building, new this year, for pointers as helpful in her work as her husband is gaining elsewhere.

Another new building is that of the Missouri Veterinarian Medical Association.

The Fair Board is offering total premiums in all classes of $75,000. Its budget carries an income for 1928 of about $175,000, including $60,000 appropriated by the Legislature.

Some index to the size and spirit of the crowds to come may be gained from the fact that vendors of food, trinkets and all other concessionaries found it worth while to pay $28,000 for their privileges.

Highway Exhibit.

It takes a thick program book to list the diversity of things to see and do and learn at the fair. Racing automobiles and motorcycles were burning up the one-mile dirt track today to circle it in less than a minute, while one crowd looked on, and simultaneously other groups of spectators were commenting on the merits of "ten-ton type" milk cows and thousand pound hogs and still others inspected the brand new, fancy courts for horseshoe pitching. Politicians and fair officials will vie for honors in the homely barnyard game on those courts later.

Boosting the $75,000,000 State road bond issue to be voted on in November, the State Highway Department has a comprehensive exhibit. It goes behind the scenes, to show how materials are tested and roads are built. It will go farther during the week by actually constructing a piece of concrete road. The best display, however, is formed by the fine highways leading to Sedalia.

Numerous St. Louisans will be here during the week, particularly on Tuesday which will be dedicated to the metropolis when a special train will bring boosters to the place. St. Louis and St. Louis County residents are among the exhibitors of blooded cattle, hogs, horses and dogs. St. Louis even has familiar figures on the all-Missouri fair grounds police force—Officer Boardman and Officer Connors of the traffic bureau.

Of Interest to All.

The fact is that something is at the fair to interest and attract visitors from every corner of the commonwealth. A newcomer here may notice drab walls on some fair buildings or dirty fields in spots, but—and this thought is original with the correspondent, not with the busy publicity bureau—there is a spirit and zest in the place and the occasion which soon captivates all but the very cold-blooded or the very fatigued.

And you don't have to get tired here, because almost everywhere you turn is a shady nook to sit and listen to one of the numerous and indefatigable brass bands.

Prizes Announced.

First judging of important exhibits took place today, in the displays of a group of agricultural counties installed by local farm leaders or bureaus. The judges gave first prize of $600 to the attractive booth of Chariton County which scored 976 points of a possible thousand. It featured a map of the county executed in vari-colored grains, showing the different soils. Two vocational agricultural boy students of Keytesville built it. Cass County won second prize, $222.51, with 957 points, and Nodaway the third, $222.05 with 955 points. Ten of the 15 County exhibits scored more than 900, and the judges praised all entrants as better than ever. Similar exhibits from individual farms, also designed to show well-balanced agriculture programs were judged, too. These nine booths were supposed to be typical of their counties. First prize of $125 went to a Lawrence County man, scoring 89 points of a possible 100 points; second to one from Ray County, $100 and 87 points, and third to a farmer of Chariton County, $75 and 86 points.

Missouri sunshine is doing its part to help the fair succeed.

ALBANY EXPECTS 100,000 FOR SMITH CEREMONY

New York State's Capital Prepares to Act As Host to Great Throng From Every Part of Nation.

By the Associated Press.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 18.—Albany is expecting 100,000 visitors for the Smith notification ceremony Wednesday. Early arrivals are already making the streets of Albany look like a crazy quilt of different colored automobile license plates.

Around the imposing gray stone Capitol, cars are parked day and night, and the favorite pastime of evening saunterers is to play "license plate," betting on the greatest number of out of State cars that can be located.

Leo Doody, City Commissioner of charities, has enlisted the aid of hotels, rooming houses and all householders with a spare room available for renting purposes and has compiled a list of available quarters. There are 500 rooms besides those at hotels that have been registered.

The streets are already gay with bunting and flags, with huge welcome signs, pictures of the Governor and window displays of brown derby hats.

Mayor John Boyd Thacher, in charge of the committee on local arrangements, is confident that the State troopers, under the direction of Maj. John A. Warner, Gov. Smith's son-in-law, will be well able to handle any crowd that flows into the city. More than 700 State and city police will be on hand to direct traffic, administer first aid, and answer questions.

Members of the National Democratic Committee, State chairmen and important officials from Democratic camps all over the country will occupy the 2800 seats that have been erected behind the speakers' stand, on the steps of the capitol. The press boxes and photographers' stand are directly in front of the platform.

Huge amplifiers are being hung on trees, posts and wires over the capitol lawn to carry the Governor's voice to the thousands who will take standing room in front of the steps and in Capitol Park.

The Governor himself may test out the amplifiers Monday or Tuesday. If he does not, executive chamber attaches will speak from the platform while engineers stationed at points over the lawn will determine the efficiency of the mechanism.

ELIAS H. MORTIMER DIES IN MINNEAPOLIS

He Was Chief Witness Against Col. Forbes in Veterans' Bureau Scandal.

By the Associated Press.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 18.—Elias H. Mortimer, 45 years old, chief Government witness against Col. Charles Forbes when the former director of the Veterans' Bureau was convicted of bribe taking, died here yesterday after an illness of nearly a year.

Forbes was indicted for accepting a $5000 bribe from Mortimer as agent for the contracting firm of Thompson & Black, St. Louis. John W. Thompson also was indicted. Thompson was accused of bribing Forbes through Mortimer.

Frankly conceding he "was as guilty as Forbes," Mortimer took the stand at the trial in Chicago to tell of alleged schemes to loot the $900,000,000 appropriated for the rehabilitation of veterans, of cross-country junkets to select hospital sites which developed into drinking parties and of plots to collect money from contractors for allotting them Government construction work.

John W. H. Crim, special assistant Attorney-General called to prosecute Forbes, branded Mortimer, chief Government witness, "a crook and a fixer." Forbes and Thompson were convicted and sentenced to two years in prison and to pay fines of $10,000 each. Thompson died but Forbes went to the penitentiary.

Mortimer was a familiar figure in Washington just after the war. Ostensibly a salesman for an Illinois hardware company, he testified at the Forbes trial that his real business in Washington was "selling my friendship and my ability to corrupt." Nearly all doors were open to him, he continued, on the witness stand. He told of his friendship with Jesse Smith—an intimate of former Attorney-General Daugherty — who committed suicide, and of his presentation at the White House by Mrs. Carolyn Votaw, sister of President Harding.

Late in May, 1923, Mortimer was indicted in New York for bootlegging and released on $5000 bail. A few months later the charge was quashed and he was appointed a special agent of the Department of Justice by Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, Assistant Attorney-General in charge of liquor prosecutions. He testified at the Forbes trial that he had never taken the oath ordinarily administered to agents.

United States Senator Wheeler, Montana, at the Senate investigation of the Department of Justice, read the text of a demand note for $50,000, which Charles Vincenti, convicted liquor-law violator of Baltimore, had made out to Mortimer. Mortimer, the note indicated, was to use his influence to have commuted or remitted Vincenti's sentence of 18 months in Atlanta penitentiary. In addition, a further transaction not explained was to be consummated before the note was to be honored. Vincenti served his full sentence.

Mortimer was divorced June 15, 1925, his wife charging barbarous treatment. Late in October, 1925, Mortimer was arrested in New York, charged with obtaining $50 by false pretenses on a check drawn on the Nassau (Bahamas) branch of the Royal Bank of Canada. It developed that Mortimer had exactly three shillings in his account in that bank.

MRS. ETHEL E. FEICKERT DIES

Mrs. Ethel E. Feickert, former secretary of the Belleville Woman's Club, died at St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Belleville yesterday a half hour after the birth of a son. The infant lived only an hour. Burial services will be today at her late home, 1405 North Charles street. Interment will be in Walnut Hill Cemetery.

Mrs. Feickert is survived by her husband, Arthur J. Feickert, a civil engineer. She was 27 years old, and had been married three years.

GOV. SMITH RESTS FOR NOTIFICATION NEXT WEDNESDAY

Acceptance Speech Ready —Only Work Over Week-End Is Revision of Reply to William Allen White.

By the Associated Press.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 18.—Gov. Smith is seeking rest over the week end for the official notification Wednesday evening of his nomination for the presidency and for the stumping campaign he probably will undertake within a fortnight.

Political conferences, which during the week brought to Albany four Democratic leaders—Senators Walsh of Montana, Glass of Virginia and George of Georgia, and former Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels—were, for the moment, at an end. The nominee's speech of acceptance was in shape for delivery. Only the necessity of making some revisions in his reply to William Allen White's attack on his legislative record kept the Governor from giving himself over completely to rest and recreation.

It has been the nominee's intention to give out his answer to White for publication in Monday morning newspapers but there was some doubt today, in view of the changes he decided to make in the draft, whether this would be possible.

Dinner to Newspaper Men.

The Governor's only engagement for the week end was a dinner given for him tonight by newspapermen who have been assigned to cover his campaign. He expected no callers, and was determined to soft pedal politics as much as possible until the arrival here early next week of various party leaders for the notification ceremonies.

The present prospect is that Gov. Smith's running mate, Senator Robinson of Arkansas, with his wife, will be house guests at the Executive Mansion over the notification period. Senator Pittman of Nevada, who will make the notification speech, and Mrs. Pittman also will be there.

Hundreds of the Governor's old friends and political advisers are expected here from New York, special trains and boats on the Hudson having been arranged to handle the crowd. Those in charge of arrangements for the ceremony are expecting 100,000 persons to be within sight of the Governor as he outlines his views on campaign issues from the east steps of the State Capitol.

Speech to Be Broadcast.

A chain of nearly 100 radio stations has been arranged for the broadcasting of the event.

As he delivers his acceptance speech, Gov. Smith will stand on a platform at the first landing of the steps. Below and immediately in front of him will be close to 300 newspapermen, and straight ahead, on a platform built around the equestrian statue of Gen. Phil Sheridan, who was born in Albany, will be a group of photographers and movie men. To the right and left of the nominee will be seats for members of the Democratic National Committee and mounting on the steps behind will be seats for friends of the Governor and other distinguished guests.

Thursday, the day after the notification, Gov. Smith plans to go to New York for an overnight stay, before going to Sea Girt, on the New Jersey coast to attend a political rally Saturday and review National Guard troops. The middle of the following week will find him in Syracuse for his annual visit to the New York State Fair at which he plans to deliver a nonpolitical speech.

Beyond that engagement the nominee's plans have not been disclosed. It is expected that he will seek a vacation over Labor Day, and launch his speech-making campaign shortly thereafter.

Dust ages the skin—dries out its natural moisture

—it can be prevented

IN summer, dust blows—in clouds. It beats against the face. Robs it of its natural suppleness. And that's what ages the skin. Exposure! To dust—to wind and cold—to sun. For it isn't the years that make the skin grow old, it's the weathering it receives.

Prove this for yourself—

Take your hand mirror to the window. Examine carefully the skin of your face. Now look at the skin on your shoulders. Quite a contrast, isn't there? Your shoulders have been protected—they look younger. Protect your face and it will stay young and smooth, too.

Hinds Honey & Almond Cream gives the necessary protection.

Doctors say this about youth—

It's largely a matter of moisture in the tissues. As people grow older they dry up within. Then constant exposure dries the skin without. No wonder they look old.

What can be done about it? Two simple things. First, drink plenty of water—at least eight glasses a day. This will help keep the muscles firm, the face filled out and fresh. Second, protect the skin from weathering—with Hinds Cream.

It sinks deep, deep, softens the skin, keeps it from drying. It prevents dust weathering, sun weathering—all weathering.

Just pat it on—

Always use Hinds Cream as a powder base before going outdoors. When you come in, pat it on once more. Last thing at night—before popping into bed—pat it on, to rest and refresh the skin while you sleep.

Then your skin will be safe from weathering. It will stay soft, and smooth, and young, regardless of how much you are outdoors.

Try Hinds Cream. You can buy it wherever toilet goods are sold. Or send for a free sample bottle. Just fill in the coupon and mail it.

MAN KILLS HIS WIFE ON ROOF, JUMPS 16 STORIES TO DEATH

Nicholas Ochoa Shoots Woman Living in Penthouse on New York Apartment Building.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18. — In a penthouse high above the Hudson, Nicholas Ochoa shot and killed his wife, Mrs. Graneze Ochoa, today and then jumped to his death from the roof of the 16-story Riverside drive apartment building roof, on which the penthouse perched.

Mrs. Ochoa, who was 28 years old, the same age as her husband, separated from Ochoa about a year ago and went to live with her mother, Mrs. Katherine Gladwell, in the penthouse.

Ochoa appeared at the roof bungalow this afternoon. After he and his wife had argued, he drew a revolver, fired three shots into her head and then ran out and jumped off the roof.

Ochoa was a Spaniard engaged in the exporting business. His father is said to be a physician living in Honduras.

REED CHARGES DRY LEAGUE WITH DUPLICITY

Asserts Organization Covertly Says Smith Favors Open Saloon.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 18.—The Anti-Saloon League was assailed today in a statement by Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, who charged the League was trying to dominate the Democratic party while at the same time plotting its destruction.

The statement was Senator Reed's first since the recent Missouri primary in which Charles M. Hay, backed by the Anti-Saloon League, defeated James A. Collet, who had the support of Senator Reed for the Democratic nomination for United States senator.

Making a defense of the policies of Governor Alfred E. Smith, the Democratic presidential nominee, Senator Reed said:

"Even now the Anti-Saloon League is covertly charging the election of Governor Smith means the return of the open saloon and the flooding of the country with unrestricted liquor. They know this charge to be untrue. They know no considerable body of men propose the return of the saloons, and that Governor Smith's attitude is that a better way for the promotion of true temperance can be found than the plan of the Volstead act.

"The Anti-Saloon League managers know that Governor Smith's attitude is that bootlegging and the illicit traffic in liquors must cease and that some kind of governmental supervision and regulation can be devised which will better promote temperance than the present system which has flooded the country with poisonous liquors and produce an organized band of bootleggers and criminals which has to an appalling degree debauched the public service and lowered the standard of public morals."

The Anti-Saloon League said Senator Reed, "is an organization which has shown by its record that it is controlled by a few men who have gathered and expended between $30,000,000 and $60,000,000.

"It acts largely in secret and frequently without regard to morals, fairness or honesty."

LONDON HELPLESS, AIR RAIDERS REPORT

City Is Too Big for Adequate Defense, Says Air League Secretary.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 18.—London is absolutely at the mercy of air raiders from the continent, army experts now declare, following the annual maneuver of the Royal Air Force, which eneded this morning.

In these maneuvers "enemy" bombers made 57 daylight raids on London, in nine of which they completely evaded the defence and dropped theoretical bombs.

Brigadier-General Groves, former director of flying operations, and now secretary of the Air League, said: "London is too big to be adequately defended from an air attack. In a short time its vital points would be in ruins and all other sections of the city would be rendered uninhabitable because of gas."

One of the facts of the maneuvers which the experts consider significant is that theoretically 300 tons of bombs loaded with gas and high explosives were dropped on London virtually with impunity, within one week. This equals the bombs dropped on all of England by the Germans in the entire period of the World War.

"High explosives and gas bombs will be used freely in the next conflict," Gen. Grove said. "It will be the aim of each side to terrorize the civilian population of the other. London is peculiarly vulnerable to an air attack."

It was brought out that a fleet of enemy bombers could be over London 15 or 20 minutes after crossing the coast line. They could reach their objective so quickly that unless they were intercepted at the coast, they could drop their entire load of explosives on the city before defending airplane squadrons could leave their airdromes and gain attacking altitudes. It was calculated that the battle area of such an engagement would be 200 miles square and four miles deep.

Illinois Farmer Ends Life.

EDINBURG, Ill., Aug. 18.—Douglas Walker, 70 years old, farmer, of Cascade, near here, blew his head off last night with an old sawed off shotgun, after his son had hid his pistol. Ill health was the reason given.

RUMOR OF $17,000 HOLDUP MAY BE ADVERTISING STUNT

Sheriff Ray Williams of Jefferson County yesterday had received no report concerning a rumor current in local gambling circles that five men had obtained $17,000 in a holdup Friday afternoon at "No Coat" George Furey's gambling house on the Lemay Ferry road, just beyond the St. Louis County line.

"If such a place is running it ought to be robbed," Sheriff Williams told the Post-Dispatch, talking from Hillsboro, the county seat. "However, I don't know there is such a place."

"No Coat George" could not be found at his cigar store at Fifteenth and Olive streets. However, two of his friends indicated the rumor might be an advertising stunt to attract the public now that Tony Foley's two gambling resorts in St. Louis County are closed.

STUDENT FLYERS AT LAMBERT FIELD BANNED ON SUNDAYS

Effective today, student flyers at Lambert-St. Louis Field will not be permitted to operate their planes on Sundays after 9 a. m. under a new rule which is the result of a crash Thursday when a passenger was killed and a student pilot and a second passenger were injured.

O. E. Scott, manager of the field, said he made the rule to safeguard St. Louisans who go to the field on Sunday for airplane rides. Only transport pilots, with more than 200 hours in the air, will be permitted to operate from the field, with the exception that student pilots may take off, under special permit, if they are going on cross-country trips.

Toombs Kept Officers of International in Dark in Deals, T. J. McReynolds Says

Vice President Denies Directors Authorized Withdrawal of $3,562,200 of Assets, or That He Kept the Minutes.

Roy C. Toombs, president of the International Life Insurance Co., whose unauthorized withdrawal of $3,562,200 from the assets of the company has thrown it into a receivership and caused a criminal action against him, played a lone hand and did not take the board of directors or other operating officials into his confidence, E. J. McReynolds, vice president and member of the finance committee, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday.

McReynolds made this assertion when discussing testimony Toombs gave before insurance examiners, at one point in which he said McReynolds was responsible for keeping the minutes of the finance committee meetings. Toombs, his brother, George Toombs, treasurer of the company, and McReynolds composed the finance committee, which Toombs, in his testimony, taken July 19 by the examiners, said had authorized withdrawal of assets of the company to convert them into cash.

In the course of the examination the minutes of the finance committee were handed to Toombs and his questioner challenged him to show where that committee had ever authorized him to make the withdrawal. He then admitted the authority he claimed was not in the minutes, but had been given him by the committee. He added that he held McReynolds responsible for the minutes.

Denies Toombs' Statement.

"It is not true that the finance committee at any meeting I ever attended gave Toombs authority to do what he did in any of the transactions that have brought trouble to this company," said McReynolds, "and no record of any such authority will be found, in the minutes or elsewhere. I did not know what he was doing until too late, and I do not think the other member of our committee, his brother, George Toombs, knew what Roy C. Toombs had done.

"There is not one active official of the company here who would not have hastened to block such deals as we now learn Toombs undertook, and events have shown that he had no authority from any source to do what apparently he has done.

"Toombs quickly established himself in the confidence of everyone as soon as he got control of the company, and everyone believed in him to the point that many of the officers and employes bought stock. He would advise them to do this, saying: 'Go ahead and buy it; I will make it twice as valuable as it is now.'

"Sold" Himself to Everyone.

"He possessed an engaging personality and quickly 'sold' himself to everyone with whom he came in contact in the organization. With him was Dr. E. F. Morgenstiern, one of our vice presidents, whom I have reason to believe caused Toombs to feel he was a superman. I do not believe this influence was good for Toombs, because he undertook the impossible with a confidence that could be engendered only by powerful suggestion. In other words it is my guess that Dr. Morgenstiern had Toombs believing he was a colossus.

"It will be found that no other official of this company had advance notice or knowledge of what Toombs was doing. I personally protested to him in Chicago after he withdrew some of the assets that there should be some record of his authority for doing this, and he then promised me he would see that it was properly authorized and recorded.

"The only conection I ever had with keeping minutes of the finance committee was occasionally when an application for a loan was made. I then would write Toombs a letter, if he was not in the city, setting forth the details of the application for recording it in the minutes. My responsibility ended there."

McReynolds' reference to Dr. Morgenstiern recalls an experience Charles R. Detrick, Insurance Commissioner of California, had with the doctor in San Francisco early this year. Detrick, as has been told, charged in a speech to state insurance commissioners in New York last December that there was "something rotten" in the International and it should be examined.

When Detrick and Dr. Morgenstiern met in San Francisco the doctor, according to Detrick, greeted him effusively and exclaimed: "I was delighted, indeed overjoyed, when you made those charges against the International in New York, for it gave Mr. Toombs, our little Napoleon, just the incentive he needed to display his great force in meeting critical situations."

The Post-Dispatch obtained a stenographic copy of the examination of Toombs by the insurance examiners. It shows that he admitted in response to questions that the books and other records of the company had been "technically falsified" to cover his transactions.

Reporting on their examination of Toombs, the examiners told the insurance commissioners from other States that Toombs played an old game in the insurance field by purchasing the company with loans from banks, then attempting to repay them out of the assets of the company. In this report the examiners charged that Toombs perjured himself in answering their questions.

REVOLUTION IN ECUADOR THWARTED, AUTHORITIES SAY

Many Imprisoned and Arms and Inflammatory Pamphlets Seized.

By the Associated Press.

QUITO, Aug. 18.—Authorities today announced the frustration of a revolutionary plot which they declared was intended to prevent the re-establishment of constitutional government in Ecuador. Many prominent members of the Liberal party, headed by Jose Maria Ayora, of Quito, have been arrested.

(The de facto government of Ecuador was recognized recently by the United States with the understanding that a consitutional government would be established.)

An official bulletin today declares that arms, money and inflammatory pamphlets were taken from the prisoners who had succeeded in winning to their cause various minor officers of the Quito garrison.

COOLIDGES TO MAKE TWO TRIPS THIS WEEK

President and Wife Plan Quiet Sunday in Preparation for Travel.

By the Associated Press.

SUPERIOR, Wis., Aug. 18.—With the season for trout fishing drawing to a close, President Coolidge is making as much of the remaining days of the month as possible. He spent the better part of today on the Brule and brought in his customary large catches both morning and afternoon.

The President and Mrs. Coolidge planned to rest over the week end in anticipation of two rather strenuous trips next Tuesday and Wednesday. They will be away from Cedar Island Lodge the better part of five hours Tuesday in visiting Duluth. Although no stops will be made in the city, the trip from the lodge and back will take more than two hours, and Duluthians hope to have the presidential party spend at least two hours there.

The following day the President and Mrs. Coolidge will go by automobile to Bayfield, take a boat there and cruise among the Apostle Islands, winding up at the estate of H. L. Gary of Kansas City. The return trip will be made the same day.

John Coolidge has been away from Cedar Island Lodge since Tuesday, visiting friends at Madison, Wis.

Divorce Increases in Cuba.

SAYS FLAPPER STAGE OF HISTORY IS PAST

Rev. Francis Finn Comments on Students Running Own Convention.

The flapper stage of history was just a piece of adolescent coltishness and, like the individual flapper herself, the world has outgrown it, the Rev. Francis Finn, S. J., author of boys' books, declared at yesterday's session of the Catholic Students' Spiritual Leadership Convention at St. Louis University.

He had an excellent illustration in the meeting itself, for the vast amount of work for the 3-day session of 1000 to 1200 persons is being conducted almost entirely by the students themselves — girls whom it would be a bit old-fashioned now to call flappers, and boys who a few years ago would have been in the bell-bottom trouser age.

One adult had a major part in bringing them together under the auspices of the Sodality of Our Lady, the largest students' sodality. He is the Rev. Daniel S. Lord, S. J., locally known for artistic pageant production, who held student conferences in 21 cities, from which grew this first national conference.

But the other adults who get a place on the program have to get it officially, as a presiding officer or, by virtue of the cloth, to perform a religious function. Nobody is talking to these young people. The entire program is in their own hands, and they themselves are threshing out their own problems of keeping personal piety and religious and charitable activity in the minds of students in 239 colleges, high schools and universities.

"This meeting could not have happened 10 years ago," said the Rev. Father Finn. "People would have laughed at the idea of girls and boys in their teens running a convention all by themselves.

"In my opinion the most encouraging study today is the progress of our young folk. I believe that the women of today are better than the young women of a generation ago. After the war women seemed to be going all to pieces. A period of change had set in, and, like the change of adolescence, it was awkward and ugly. The extreme flapper type was one of its most discouraging manifestations. But now the agony of change is over. We have a product that is much superior to the girl of the past. She is more studious. She has more common sense.

"As for the boys, I am sure that they are much better than the boys of my generation. But I have this to say to them: If the girls keep up their present rate of progress in the next 30 years, the young men will be playing second fiddle to them in more lines than they now suspect."

Volunteer Service Central Idea.

Religious activity in many or most of the schools is not compulsory, and the central idea of the conference is volunteer service. On that idea 750 students in the eight departments of St. Louis University, its three affiliated girls' colleges and 20 high schools volunteered to make reception, program, entertainment, transportation and traffic arrangements, and to provide a 14-piece orchestra and improvised vaudeville.

More than 700 delegates are attending, including those from Belize, British Honduras, and Vancouver, B. C. The conference began Friday and will close at 7 o'clock tonight, with a pageant, "The Making of Youth," written by alumni of St. Louis University and an alumna of Webster College, and directed by the Rev. Father Lord.

WANTED DISTRIBUTOR

Just about once in every so often, distributors are offered a product of such attractiveness, of such salability, of such tremendous possibilities, that they see and realize at a glance just how great the opportunity is. This strong organization is offering such a product now. It has been tested in small communities and great cities and its success has been immediate and rather startling. The product is itself one of daily use. Sales of similar but less effective items run into the millions and it is our firm belief, based upon experience, that distributors handling our product will cash in and cash in big.

We want a distributor for this and surrounding territory, but he must be financially responsible, of excellent standing and with an established and recognized reputation for getting things done.

If you have these qualifications, and if you are interested in a product with almost unlimited possibilities for profit, telephone MR. FARSON, Statler Hotel, between 9 a. m. and 5 p. m., Monday, Aug. 20, and Tuesday, Aug. 21.

HERO MEDAL ON BODY OF DROWNED YOUTH

It Was Issued to Philadelphian and May Establish Identity.

An inquiry has been set afoot to learn whether the body of a youth found in the Mississippi river near West Alton Thursday and buried unidentified in the potter's field at St. Charles, may be that of William Smith Dunlap Jr., 17 years old of 4505 Magee street, (Tacony station(Philadelphia.

The only mark of identification found on the body is a bronze medal which bore the name William Smith Dunlap, and a legend stating it had been awarded by the Ralston Purina Co. "for service to others on July 18, 1926." Investigation at the Ralston Purina Co. by the Post-Dispatch disclosed the medal had been presented to a Philadelphia youth for heroism in rescuing his younger brother, Edward, from drowning when a raft capsized on Sandy Run Creek near his home. Another younger brother, Walter, was drowned at the time. The medal was forwarded to the pastor of the youth's church by the Ralston Purina Co. and presented to him in June, 1927.

A Coroner's jury returned an open verdict. The body was clad in a blue coat and white trousers. Apparently it had been in the water for several weeks.

The body of an elderly man, found Thursday in the Mississippi river 200 feet below the Eads Bridge, was identified Friday as that of Phillip Foley, 74 years old, a retired railroad fireman of 624 North Twenty-second street, East St. Louis. The pockets of Foley's clothes were filled with stones. Funeral services were held at St. Elizabeth's Church yesterday with burial in Mount Carmel Cemetery.

Foley, who lived with his daughter, Mrs. Catherine Helge, had been missing since Tuesday evening when he left home saying he was going to a drug store. Later in the evening a man answering his description was seen putting stones in his pockets on the river bank near the spot where the body was found. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Laura Foley, two daughters and a son.

PISTOL AND FISTS FIGURE IN CHURCH FACTIONAL ROW

Free Fight of Members of Atlanta Congregation Results in Issuance of Warrants.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 18.—Praying inside, fighting outside—that is the cause of all the troubles of the Brookhaven Baptist Church here, according to the pastor, the Rev. H. C. Johnson, who has gone to court saying one of his deacons had threatened him with a pistol.

The church has been torn by factional strife for some time, and the quarrel came to a climax in the churchyard when members of the congregation cuffed each other.

The Rev. Mr. Johnson came on the scene with the idea of restoring order, but Deacon O. B. Rowell drew a pistol and waved the pastor away. W. A. Gilbert, one of the members, was so badly beaten he had to be taken to a hospital. Meantime, warrants have been issued charging Deacon Rowell and two other members of the church with assault and battery, pointing a weapon and using profanity in the presence of women.

U. S. IN NICARAGUA DEFENDS CANAL RIGHTS

Prof. Wicker Outlines New Monroe Doctrine to Williamstown Conference.

By the Associated Press.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Aug. 18.—"Within the year the United States will have built a canal across the Nicaraguan isthmus," was the prediction of Prof. C. F. Wicker of Miami University at a round table discussion by the Institute of Politics here today.

"Every problem in Nicaragua has but one answer—the canal," he said. "This follows the manifest policy of the State Department that all strategic points on the Carribean be controlled by Washington. This is the modern significance of the Monroe Doctrine—non-intervention of foreign powers, and the consequent duty of intervention by the United States in disturbed areas."

Miss Barbara Donner of Oshkosh, Wis., submitting a report of a survey of American finincial interests in Nicaragua, reported American investments there do not exceed $10,000,000, that all American loans, with the exception of one of $1,000,000 has been repaid, and that Nicaraguan interests now control both the Nicaraguan bank and the Nicaraguan railroad, formerly the property of American interests.

"China's future course in Manchuria is in the lap of the gods," said Dr. C. C. Wu, representative of the nationalist government at Nanking in an address before the Institute.

"We are prepared," he said, "to protect Japan's economic interests, but we object to Japanese political domination. It is to be hoped that China will not become a military nation; that title to personal property must not in this day be settled by means of force; that Manchuria will not become another Alsace-Lorraine.

Manchuria, by history and population, he declared, is an integral part of China, and has been recognized as such by the world's great powers.

"But today," he continued, 'Japan exercises in Manchuria a political control destructive of Chinese sovereignty. It was obtained through victory in the Russo-Japanese war and was extended when Japan, at the point of the bayonet, presented her famous twenty-one demands.

"While it is true that Japan developed Manchuria's natural resources, that truth gives Japan no moral title to the territory. The time has come when the nationalist government must have its opportunity to show what it can do."

Ex-Convict Ends Life in Jail.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MELBOURNE, Ark., Aug. 18.—Faced with the prospect of returning to the penitentiary, Ray Skidmore, 22 years old, hanged himself in the county jail here last night.

Skidmore was sent to prison about three years ago for assault and was paroled a short time ago. Two weeks ago he and Harvey Wood engaged in a fight at Pineville, near here, and Skidmore is said to have stabbed Wood.

For Freckled, Tanned Sun-Spoiled Skin

To reveal the exquisite loveliness hidden beneath a freckled or tanned complexion, use pure mercolized wax. Applied nightly to the face like a cold cream, the wax gradually peels off all particles of scorched and half dead cuticle. The under skin then revealed, is clear, smooth, white and youthful. Procure an ounce at any drug store and keep your skin young. Mercolized wax brings out the hidden beauty. To quickly remove wrinkles and restore facial contour, use as an astringent 1 ounce powdered saxolite and 1 half pint witch hazel.

Petee Wrack followed the pace closely and moved up stoutly on the inside, rounding the far turn, saved ground in the stretch and held Victorian safe in the final drive. Victorian was rushed into command at the start and was rated alone under steady restraint, bore out stoutly, rounding the far turn and came again under pressure and finished well. Sun Edwin raced close to the early pace throughout and moved up stoutly when called on and held on well. Reigh Count was under restraint went wide on the far turn but failed to improve his position when put under pressure rounding the stretch turn and faltered badly at the end.

Odds: Petee Wrack, win, 8-1; place, 8-5; show, out. Victorian, place, 1-4; show, out. Sun Edwin, show, out.

By the Associated Press.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 18.—The much discussed question which is the better 3-year-olds of the year, was settled here today when Harry Payne Whitney's Victorian, recognized champion of the east and Mrs. John D. Hertz' Reigh Count, champion of the west and winner of the Kentucky Derby, met in the Travers Derby, and they both bit the dust when J. R. Macomber's Petee Wrack, an 8 to 1 shot led them home.

Victorian was second, Sun Edwin third and Reigh Count was a bad fourth and last. The race carried a net value of $30,550 and the mile and one-quarter was turned in 2:08.

It was a heavy betting race, with Victorian always the choice, chiefly because of his recent race, which was a great performance. Reigh Count came in for a big play, while the long shot players took the outsider, Petee Wrack.

Victorian dashed right to the front and L. Fator, who had the mount, let him rate along under stout restraint. Victorian led the field to the far turn, where O'Donnell, who rode Petee Wrack, rushed him up on the inside. Petee Wrack took the lead and increasing his advantage to the finish, won in a mild drive by a length. Victorian was second by two lengths over Sun Edwin, with Reigh Count fourth, three lengths back.

Little Chief Victor.

Little Chief, with L. Fator up and quoted at 3 to 1, was an easy winner of the opening event, a seven-furlong sprint. The race was run over a muddy track and he stepped the distance in 1:28 3-5. Fair Ball was second and House Girl third. Little Chief ran into the lead early and in the final furlong drew away to win by four lengths. Fair Ball was second, three lengths.

In one of the pretties and most exciting chases run at the meeting J. Livington's Rabel scored in a drive by a length and a half over F. Clark's Pink Star with Soarstat third. It was a race right from the start. Danopio, which was coupled with Rabel, cut out the pace for a mile, then Pink Star ran into the lead. He appeared to have the race won half a mile from the finish, but after clearing the last fence he tired and Rabel coming again under a powerful ride, forged to the front and won by a length and a half. Pink Star took the place by ten lengths.

15 to 1 Shot Scores.

G. D. Widener's Atlantis, paying 15 to 1, scored an easy victory in winning the Spinaway Stakes, the secondary feature here today. Atlantis has been one of the most consistent fillies of the year and why she should be 15 to 1 was a mystery to the race followers. C. V. B. Cushman's Pennant Lass was second and the Sage Stable's Bravery third. The race was worth $10,050 and the six furlongs were run in 1:15. The start was good and Ready jumped away to the lead with On Her Toes second and Atlantis fourth. As the field made the turn into the stretch they went a bit wide and Ellie who had the mount rushed Atlantis up on the inside. The filly readily drew away and won by four lengths. Pennant Lass got the place by a length from Bravery.

Apostle, receding favorite, won the fourth race, a mile sprint, running it in 1:43. Snobbish was second and Canaan third. Apostle ran right to the front and led all the way and won by four lengths.

AMERICAN GOLF STAR BEATEN IN CANADIAN FINAL

By the Associated Press.

MONTREAL, Aug. 18.—The Canadian amateur golf championship still is an exclusive possession of Canada. W. K. Lanman of Columbus, O., the second American challenger who has reached the final round since the event was first played in 1895, followed the course of his predecessor, Brice S. Evans of Boston, yesterday, succumbing to the steady play of C. Ross Somerville of London, Ont., 3 and 2, in the 36-hole final.

Somerville, who won the title in 1926, gained a well-deserved victory. The London Hunt Club star shot 17 par holes out of the first 18 this morning; then, after weakening at the start of the afternoon round, returned to his perfect form to end the match on the thirty-fourth green.

Lanman put up a game struggle after being four down at the end of the morning round. The Yale player cut Somerville's lead in half of the first nine of the second round, only to lose his advantage when he had two bad holes and one good one which Somerville bettered at the beginning of the last nine.

Two Reasons Why Giants Are Climbing

Freddie Lindstrom (left), McGraw's third baseman, is one of the outstanding infielders this season. He is playing a brilliant defensive game and is one of the best batters in the circuit. Larry Benton (right) is among the best pitchers of the year. He has won 19 games and lost only four.

MRS. BUNDY, 41, WINS EASTERN TENNIS HONORS

By the Associated Press.

RYE, N. Y., Aug. 18.—Mrs. May Sutton Bundy, 41 years of age, and national champion in 1904, and Wimbledon titleholder the next year, climaxed her sensational tennis comeback here this afternoon by winning the women's Eastern championship. She defeated Mrs. Charlotte Hosmer Chapin in the final match, 4—6, 7—5, 6—4.

The California veteran made a gallant stand after losing the first set to win the second at deuce, and performed even more brilliantly to take the third, winning the last four games after being down 4—2.

Western Tennis Stars Defeat Eastern Team; Doeg and Lott Shine

By the Associated Press.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 18.—Led by George Lott, Johnny Doeg and Alan Herrington, a youthful team of tennis players from the Western half of the country downed an Eastern aggregation minus the services of Bill Tilden and Frank Hunter this afternoon to win the annual East-West matches for the first time since the heyday of Billy Johnston.

After six hours of tennis in which were fought six matches in singles and three in doubles, the boys from the West emerged victorious with six matches won and three lost, this constituting the worst beating the West has given the East since away back in 1917. Not since 1925 had the West been able to win at all and the score on that memorable occasion when little Bill Johnston took the deciding match from Vincent Richards was five to four.

Came From Behind.

Triumph came at last today in thrilling fashion with the Westerners coming from behind in a garrison finish to overcome a three to nothing lead against them and sweep the remaining six matches in a great burst of consistently good tennis. The Western rally arrived coincidentally with the appearance on the courts of the players who proved themselves the big three of their team, Herrington, Lott and Doeg in turn sweeping their singles matches and then, in doubles, going on to account for three more victories.

Herrington started it, scoring first for the West by trimming Gregory Mangin of Newark, N. J., 6—3, 5—7, 6—4. The Stanford University player had the stuff to beat back a determined rally on the part of Mangin, who is a sophomore at Georgetown and to win out in a hard-fought final set.

His victory seemed at the moment to be a somewhat forlorn ray of hope for the West, as shortly before, Bill Aydelotte, the young national indoor champion, from New York, had taken the measure of Herrington's fellow San Franciscoan, Neil Brown, by American Ties Swim Record in Tailteann Games

DUBLIN, Aug 18.—With the track and field events out of the way, swimming came into prominece in the Tailteann games today and with it a new set of American and Canadian athletes. Although only trial heats were on today's program, two Tailteann records were broken—one of them twice—and one was equaled.

Boast of Canada clipped 3-5 of a second off the Irish record for the 100-meter backstroke in qualifying for the final. Walter Spence and Bourne of Canada both beat the old mark in the 200-meter free style trials, while Paul Sampson of Alamson, Mich., tied the Tailteann record in the 800-meter free style event.

The swimming events today did not attract as much attention as the prospect of the international Gaelic football match between Ireland and America at Choke Park tomorrow.

Shields Defeats Gledhill; Retains Junior Net Title

By the Associated Press.

CULVER, Ind., Aug. 18.—With a dazzling display of tennis, Francis S. Shields of New York successfully defended his national junior singles championship today on the courts of Culver Military Academy.

In the final round, Shields won from Keith Gledhill of Santa Barbara, Cal., Pacific coast and western junior title holder, by a brilliant straight set tussle, 6—1, 7—5, 6—1.

The national Boys' singles championship also went to New York State. R. K. Hebard of White Plains, came from behind to defeat Kendall Gram of Nashville, the top seeded player of the tournament, 4—6, 6—1, 6—1.

HUBBELL, NEW YORK RECRUIT, BESTS ALEXANDER; ORSATTI GETS THREE HITS, ONE A HOMER

Blow Into Pavilion Follows Double by Old Pete in Third --- McKechnie's Men Helpless With Runners on the Bases.

By J. Roy Stockton.

Carl Hubbell, 24-year-old left-handed recruit from the Beaumont club of the Texas League, pitched the Giants a game nearer the league leadership yesterday afternoon, when he held the Cardinals to seven hits, baffling them in the pinches and hurling the clan McGraw to a 3-2 victory over the slumping St. Louis National League club.

Bill McKechnie's men had several fine chances to score, but except for young Ernest Orsatti, they were unable to hit in the pinches. Orsatti, playing his first game since being recalled from the Minneapolis club of the American Association, drove in both Cardinal runs with a homer into the right field pavilion. He also hit a single and a double and reached base on his other time at bat by using his great speed when Cohen fumbled.

Orsatti got no help from his new comrades, however, and as a result of the defeat, the St. Louis team's first place margin was so reduced that another triumph for McGraw's team today will nudge the Red Birds into second place.

Alexander Strong in Pinches.

Grover Cleveland Alexander pitched 8 1-3 innings for the Cardinals and he was effective enough to win if his comrades had given him any support on the attack. He was touched for 11 hits, but he was master in most of the pinches and 12 New York base runners were left stranded on the sacks.

Extra base hits gave the Giants two of their runs off the Old Master. Jimmy Welsh tripled over Douthit's head in the third inning and scored on O'Doul's sacrifice fly to Douthit.

Then in the Cardinal half, Alexander doubled to center and scored ahead of Orsatti when the fleet-footed little Italian clouted the ball into the right field seats.

New York tied the score in the sixth inning. Terry got a triple when his drive to right center lodged between the pavilion wall and the protective screen of chicken wire. Jackson followed with a single to right and Terry crossed the plate.

Alexander was in trouble in the seventh, a single and two walks filling the bases with two out, but Jackson bunted and Wilson threw him out to end the inning.

Giants Will Be 3 Points Ahead if They Win Today

BILL McKECHNIE'S Cardinals, leaders in the National League pennant race, must win today's game with the New York Giants to hold first place.

According to the accepted method of describing relative team standings, the Cards are a game and a half ahead, because they have five victories more than the Giants, and only two more defeats, but another New York triumph in the third contest of the series would give McGraw's team a percentage advantage, as follows:

Team.	W.	L.	Pct.
New York	66	43	.606
Cardinals	70	46	.603

Today's game is the last for the Giants in St. Louis this season.

Welsh's Fourth Hit of Game Paves Way for Deciding Score in the Ninth

Welsh led off in the ninth with his fourth hit, a single to center, and O'Doul sacrificed. Melvin Ott, hitless on three previous trips to the plate, bounced a single over second and Welsh scored the winning run.

Lindstrom's single to left and a pass to Terry filled the bases, whereupon Alexander retired and Sylvester Johnson finished the inning, Hafey taking Jackson's fly and making a perfect throw to Wilson to double Ott trying to score.

Except for Jimmy Wilson's failure to advance on Thevenow's bunt i the fifth inning the Cardinals didn't play bad baseball and even Wilson's decision to play it safe could be defended. Thevenow's bunt was none too good and Jimmy probably figured it wiser to stay on second and wait for the next hitter. Alexander was the next batter and Wilson moved to third on Old Pete's fly to Welsh, but Douthit was unable to deliver in this pinch and lined to Cohen.

Team Helpless in Pinches.

The Cardinals simply could not hit, and that was the story of the game. Orsatti, unworried by the prospects of world series spoils or the possible loss of the coin, doubled to right to start the sixth inning. It was his third straight hit and should have inspired the other players. But Frisch grounded to Cohen and Bottomley went out the same way and Hafey the terrible, could not get a hold on the ball and flied weakly to Welsh.

Alexander, just to show his comrades how easy it was, opened the the eighth with his second hit, a

Alexander Was Taken Out; He Did Not Quit

WHEN Grover Cleveland Alexander was taken out of the box in the ninth inning of yesterday's game, it was announced over the radio that the Old Master had "quit," walking off the field of his own accord.

"I never did anything like that in my life," Alexander told the Post-Dispatch last night. "I didn't want to get out. But I guess I wasn't doing so well just then."

Efforts to reach Manager Bill McKechnie for his version of the incident failed, but Jim Bottomley was asked about Alexander's departure.

"Alex got a signal from McKechnie, because I saw it," Jim stated. "Say, Alex wouldn't walk out on our ball club or any other. They have to knock him out. He's no quitter and it's not fair to broadcast any such things about such a hard worker."

AMERICAN IS 12TH IN AUTO ROAD CLASSIC

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Aug. 18.—Crashing wrecks and hairbreadth escapes today thrilled a quarter of a million spectators who watched the international road race for touring car models at Ards Circuit today.

The contest, over a triangular course of approximately 13 miles in length, was won by Keye Don, a British professional driver. He forced his Lea-Francis car over the 410-mile route at an average speed of 64.06 miles an hour.

Leon Cushman, another Britisher, finished second in an Alvis car only ten seconds behind Don. An Austro-Daimler, piloted by H. Mason, was third.

Ralph Whitney, American, driving a Stutz, finished twelfth, averaging 62.39 miles an hour.

Purses totaling $2600 are up for the winners. The 70 entries include horses from stables in Illinois, Missouri, Wisconsin and Iowa, according to fair officials.

GERMAN GIRL ESTABLISHES NEW WORLD'S RECORD IN JAVELIN THROW

FRAULEIN HARGUS TOSSES SPEAR MORE THAN 125 FEET; ED HAMM WINS BERLIN BROAD JUMP EVENT

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Aug. 18.—One first place, one second and one third was all that the small team of American athletes could win on the first day of Berlin's International "Post Olympic" Track and Field Meet today.

Ed Hamm of Georgia Tech broad jumping 7.46 meters (24 feet, 6½ inches), easily defeated four German competitors. F. Morgan Taylor, Illinois A. C. hurdler, also entered the event, but failed to qualify for the final. Hamm injured a ligament in his hip on the second jump and was unable to continue, but that effort was good enough to beat his nearest rival by more than six inches.

Weems Baskin of the New York A. C. scored America's one second place, finishing behind Sten Pettersson of Sweden in the 110-meter hurdles. Lester of the United States took third in the event. Pettersson was timed in 15 seconds flat, while Baskin ran one-fifth of a second slower.

U. S. Sprinters Fail.

The 100-meter dash proved the greatest disappointment for the American aggregation. Roland Locke of New York, former University of Nebraska ace, failed to qualify in the preliminary heat, while Henry Russell of the Penn A. C., finished fourth in the final. Houben, German star, won the event in 10 8-10 seconds.

Two sensational performances by German athletes provided the high spots for the day. Emil Hirschfield, giant shot putter from Allenstein, equaled the world's record made by John Kuck of the Los Angeles A. C. in the Olympic games with a heave of 15.87 meters or 52 feet, 11-16 inches. Fraulein Hargus of Leubeck established a new mark of 38.39 meters (125 feet 11 9-32 inches) in the Javelin throw, beating her former mark by more than two feet.

Jules Ladomegue, French middle distance star, took the 1500 meter run in 3 minutes, 58 6-10 seconds, with Helgas of Finland second and Riedal of Germany third.

Stars Fail to Appear.

Two women's events produced victories for Miss Hitomi of Japan in the broad jump and for the British women's 400-meter relay team. The Japanese girl jumped 5.51 meters (18 feet, 59-64 inches) to lead Fraulein Vonbredow of Garmany and Mlle. Gagneux of France, but failed by a little more than a foot and a half to equal her own world's mark. The French team finished second to the English girls in the relay with a Berlin team third.

There was much disappointment when several of the stars who were expected to compete did not start. Among these were Sera Martin, French middle distance star, Geroe of Hungary, Dr. Otto Peltzer, Helmut Korenig and Wichmann of Germany. Jack London, British Negro sprinter who took second in the Olympic 100-meter dash, twisted a muscle during his semifinal heat and may not be able to start in the 200 tomorrow.

Cards Fail in Pinches And Giants Win Again, 3-2 single to right and Douthit sacrificed. Orsatti used his speed to reach first when Cohen fumbled his grounder. This moved Alexander to third. A sacrifice fly would have scored a run, but Frisch, hitting the ball out of the infield for the first time, sent a short fly to Welsh and Old Pete had to hold third.

Blades Bats and Singles.

There was a bit of a flurry in the ninth. With two out, Wilson was hit by a pitched ball because he wanted to be. Blades batted for Thevenow and singled to center and Martin, running for Wilson, reached third.

There was a shortage of right-hand pinch batters on the Cardinal bench and McKechnie finally picked on Fred Frankhouse, a pitcher. Fred dug his spikes into the mud and swung lustily, but his line drive sailed straight to Lindstrom, who made the catch at his shoe tops.

SHERDEL DUE TO OPPOSE BENTON IN FINAL GAME

BILL SHERDEL will pitch for the Cards today in the third and final game of the series with the Giants. John McGraw probably will use Larry Benton, who saved Friday's game when Fitzsimmons weakened.

Rain delayed the start of the second game of the struggle for first place. The tarpaulin covering was spread shortly before three o'clock and it was 3:34 when the contest started.

Despite the threatening weather, about 15,000 persons paid at the gate. Some 3000 girls between the ages of nine and fifteen attended as guests of the Cardinals. They occupied the upper deck of the left wing of the grand stand.

Ernest Orsatti arrived an hour before game time and was cheered when he appeared in right field. He quickly made the Cardinals glad that he had been recalled.

Alexander's double with one out in the third inning was the first ball hit out of the infield by the Cardinals. It was a line drive that sailed over the surprised Jimmy Welsh's head.

Holm Back in Game.

Wattie Holm, who was spiked in the knee during the Cubs' series, was back at third base for the Cardinals.

Jimmy Wilson doubled to left to start the fifth, but stayed on second on Thevenow's bunt, which was intended to be a sacrifice. As a press box wag described it, "No sacrifice, wet grounds."

It was too bad, as Alexander followed with a long fly to Welsh, which permitted Wilson to move to third.

Orsatti doubled to right to start the sixth inning. It would have been a single for the average ball player, but Orsatti used his great speed and slid safely into second ahead of Ott's perfect throw.

This double also was wasted.

Orsatti went to third on Frisch's grounder to Cohen, but held third while Cohen threw out Bottomley and then Hafey ended the inning with a fly to Welsh.

Wilson Wide Awake.

Travis Jackson tried an unusual bit of strategy in the seventh inning. With the bases filled and two out, he bunted, but Jimmy Wilson was not caught napping and threw him out.

With acall of two and two on Ott in the ninth, Umpire Moran called the next pitch a ball. It looked like a strike to Old Pete and he protested. When Ott singled, Alexander walked to the plate and kicked at the plate as he protested at great length to Moran.

cipally because of her superior endurance and her brilliant court generalship. She wore her younger opponent out compelling her to run from one corner of the court to the other after well placed drives. In the third set, Mrs. Chapin played a better game but, tired from her exertions in the first two, could not keep up the fast pace.

In the final set, Mrs. Chapin got her first break of the match to win the third and fourth games and lead 3—1, but she lost her opportunity to clinch the match and took only one more game in the set.

It was the second successive year that Mrs. Chapin has been beaten in the final of the Eastern championship. Last year she lost to Mrs. Molla B. Mallory.

Atlanta Club, Guilty of Rule Violation, Loses 14 Victories

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 18.—As the result of the forfeiture of 14 games won by Atlanta in a decision rendered tonight by John D. Martin, president of the Southern League, the Southern League standing was considerably scrambled up. The league is now playing on the second half of the season which started June 28.

By the decision Memphis, Nashville and Little Rock get three victories charged as defeats. Chattanooga gets five and 14 victories credited to Atlanta are charged as defeats. Atlanta was found guilty of violation of the class rule in carrying more than 13 Class A men as prescribed in a league rule. Atlanta running a close second to Birmingham drops to last place.

WESTERN TENNIS STARS WIN OVER EASTERN TEAM

scores of 7—5, 4—6, 6—0. Watson Washburn, one-time Harvard and Davis Cup doubles player, had trimmed Bobby Seller, another young San Franciscoan, in straight sets, 6—4, 6—3, and Berkeley Bell of the University of Texas had gone down to unexpected defeat at the hands of a third New Yorker, Dr. George King, 6—2, 2—6, 6—2.

Lott and Doeg Star.

But the West had only just begun to play and the crack troops were going into action. In quick succession after Herrington's victory came a speedy triumph for Lott over John Van Ryn by scores of 7—5, 6—1 and one almost as rapid for Doeg over the Davis Cup veteran, Richard N. Williams II, 6—3, 9—7.

Lott's win was probably the more surprising as Van Fyn and he were the No. 1 men of their teams and the match looked like a "natural" with a strong likelihood that it would go the limit, to three sets. But Lott has not been touring Europe with the Davis Cup team for nothing and he polished off Van Ryn with ease after a slow start.

George was on the short end of a 3-5 count in games in the first set, but ran off the next four games to take it, 7—5. The demonstrative colorful young Chicagoan was in rare form and playing with a dash and slash that made him particularly deadly at the net.

Doeg meanwhile was pounding a furious service, second only to that of Tilden in force, into Williams' court until it finally brought him victory. Ace after ace he sent whistling past the Philadelphian who could do little but register admiration whenever Doeg was on the firing line.

Win Three in Doubles.

The series now was all even with the six singles matches equally divided. To win the West trotted out three doubles teams that finished off their Eastern adversaries with splendid exhibitions of synchronized tandem play.

First Lott and Doeg staged one of those triumphs of youth over age at the expense of Williams and Washburn who played together against the Japanese in defense of the Davis cup in 1921 and despite the fine tactical play of the experienced Easterners they scored easily, 7—5, 6—2.

Only one more win was needed to clinch the series and the honor of producing it fell to Seller and Brown, San Francisco youngsters who hold the Pacific Coast doubles crown and are here in the East primarily for the purpose of capturing the national title. Their double-barreled attack riddled Mangin and Aydelotte by scores of 6—4, 10—8, after which Bell and Herrington added decisiveness to the victory of their team by defeating Van Ryn and Fritz Mercur by scores of 4—6, 6—4, 6—4.

Even the absence of Tilden, who was barred from the Eastern team because of the amateur rule charges against him, and of Hunter, who staged a strike in protest, could not detract from the victory of the Westerners. John Hennessey, one of the best players in the Western territory, could not come East for the matches and they had to win without him.

THE SUMMARIES.

William Aydelotte, New York, defeated Neil Brown, San Francisco, 7—5, 4—6, 6—0.

Watson Washburn, New York, defeated Robert Seller, San Francisco, 6—4, 6—3.

Dr. George King, New York, defeated Berkeley Bell, Dallas, Tex., 6—2, 2—6, 6—2.

John Doeg, Santa Monica, Cal., defeated R. Norris Williams, New York, 6—3, 9—7.

George Lott, Chicago, defeated John Van Ryn, Princeton, N. J., 7—5, 6—1.

WASHINGTON IS VICTOR IN TYPO TITLE CONTEST

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, Aug. 18.—Washington won the Garry Herrmann trophy, emblematic of the championship of the International Union Printers' Baseball League here this afternoon defeating Chicago, champions of 1927, 3 to 2. This is the seventh time the team from the Capitol has won the title.

The game, the best played of the tourney, was a pitcher's battle

Washington won with two out in the ninth. Goldsmith batting for Desper led off with a single and scored the tying run when Van Tresse in left field misjudged Edward's fly and it went for a double. Second baseman Daglish, who had gone hitless, then hit the left field fence to score Edwards with the winning run.

Stanley Strama, 210-pound pitcher of the Windy City team who won from New York yesterday, 9 to 0, was on the hill for Chicago. Hutchison, another right hander, worked for Washington.

Dan Barry, printer-umpire of the American League staff, who has worked the bases in the printers' games the past week was presented with a traveling bag by the league.

The 1929 tournament will be held in Indianapolis.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 18.—Under the critical glances of British members of the Walker cup team and before a gallery of 2000 women, mostly sympathetic with her opponent, Mrs. Harry Pressler of Los Angeles today belied her feminine beauty with such mighty blows from wood and iron and such exact shooting around the greens that she won her second successive Women's Western Golf Championship by defeating Virginia Wilson of Chicago 7 and 6, after being 4 down in the first five holes over the Indian Hill Club course.

It was superb golf that the woman from California shot. As white of face and arm as though she had long served pink teas in dimly lighted parlors, instead of following a golf ball in glowing sunlight, Mrs. Pressler set her countenance like another Californian called "poker face" and went to the physical task of defeating one of the cleverest golfers in the tournament.

Miss Wilson Gains Lead.

Miss Wilson, bronzed under an eastern sun, but slighter than her opponent, was in fact so fast that with three birdies and two pars she won four of the first five holes and finished the first nine in par 41, to Mrs. Pressler's 42 and was still two up despite slips on the eighth and ninth holes.

Then the Chicagoan, who was a semi-finalist in the British championship last year, recovered again, only to fail fatally in the afternoon round which she started one down. The Pacific coast star was longer with wood and iron and eventually became more exact with her approaches and even more deadly with her putter. But it was the putter that failed Miss Wilson most fatally. She had used it so well it seemed to have keen eyesight for the cup, but today it developed astigmatism at the sixth hole, where a 3-foot putt went in and hopped out.

From there on it did little worthy of honorable mention except to sink a 20-footer on the long 14th for a birdie to square the match after Mrs. Pressler had not only overcome the early disadvantage, but had become 1 up by winning the short 13th when Virginia's putter fluked.

Gets Birdie and Eagle.

Starting the second round, the champion used only eight strokes for the first two holes of 560 and 433 yards, winnig the first with a birdie five and the second with an eagle three by holing a 12-foot putt.

The victor made most of her mistakes, and they were few, on the third hole of both rounds. In the morning, she hooked out of bounds and sliced her second to the woods for a six and in the next round she got tangled in a trap through her only flubbed iron and took seven.

Miss Wilson did not have any hole in seven, but she acquired five sixes. She had seven birdies to Mrs. Pressler's eight but missed her chance for an eagle while the Californian got one.

It was common for the champion to drive 250 yards and at the penultimate hole she smote the pellet full 270 yards, which flustered her opponent so much she pushed to a trap and shot out into a creek, taking a penalty stroke.

Gets 235 Yard Drive.

However, the slight Chicagoan let out a good many long drives herself and brought loud cheers from the great gallery on the first hole of the second round by driving her ball 235 yards till it actually caromed off Mrs. Pressler's pellet and rolled a foot beyond.

Up to the finals, Miss Wilson had better scores by a slight margin than Mrs. Pressler. She qualified with 79 for third place, two strokes behind Dorothy Page of Madison, Wis., and one back of Mrs. Dalton Reymond of Baton Rouge, La., while Mrs. Pressler took 80, one under par.

But the champion was at the top of her game almost all the way today, her 37 on the second nine equalling the woman's record. And she equalled another record in winning the event twice in a row, Mrs. F. C. Letts of Chicago being the only other to do that a dozen years ago.

Horseshoe Tourney Sept. 3.

ROCK ISLAND, Ill., Aug. 18.—The second annual Western Illinois-Eastern Iowa championship horseshoe tournament, preceding which Frank Jackson, former world's champion, will play in exhibition matches will be held on Labor Day, Sept. 3. Jackson, whose home is in Lamoni, Ia., will play in the special matches on Saturday evening, Sept. 1.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Doing It Right.

U. S. BOXING commissions ought to copy after Canada's ring bodies. Offenders in the Dominion are given very abbreviated shrifts. For example:

George Godfrey fouled Larry Gains, in a fight last week. Two days later the commission fined Godfrey $2000 in cash and half of his purse. It suspended him for 30 days.

Contrast this with a case in the jurisdiction of the New York Commission. About the same time as the Godfrey battle, Johnny Risko was waging war with Roberto Roberti, the Italian "hope." Risko dropped Roberti to the floor with a fearful low blow. The Italian was helpless. He had to be carried out.

But nothing has been done to Risko. He lost the decision of the referee on a foul, to be sure; but his purse was paid and no fine administered. Nothing was done to remind him that the commission has rules designed to protect opponents. Newspaper writers palliated even the referee's penalty of a defeat on a foul by saying openly that Risko was the actual winner, at the time of the foul.

Laws against fouling are severe, or should be, not so much to protect the reputation of a victim, as to protect him from physical harm.

One foul might conceivably make a physical wreck of a foe. But seldom are they properly punished in the United States.

Observed in the Breach.

BOXING regulations and laws generaly are observed in the breach. So seldom are they rigidly enforced that fighters today apparently think they can get away with anything.

Jock Malone, an habitual offender, is still allowed to ply his old tricks around the "bushes," when past offenses would indicate he ought to be barred entirely.

Heavyweight championship fights see fouls by the score, as a rule. The recent Tunney-Heeney fight was inaugurated by a foul.

The very first blow Heeney struck was a punch on the breakaway and it landed—not 50 seconds after the referee's last instructions had been given to him.

The Dempsey-Firpo and the Dempsey-Gibbons fights were just one succession of fouls on both sides; but the referee in the Firpo fight never made a peep against either offender, while Jimmy Daugherty, in the Gibbons fight at Shelby, allowed both men to commit flagrant violations of the rules. Dempsey hit his foe on the hips and waistline and rabbit-punched his opponent repeatedly, while Gibbons clung like a leech for four long rounds; violating all the known interpretations of illegal holding.

Perhaps no heavyweight fight was ever held in which minor fouls were not occasional. Yet there is no reason why this should be if the pugilists were properly brought up.

About John L.

CORRESPONDENT wishes to know why we termed John L. Sullivan the "greatest bluffer."

Because John L. was a goatgetter. He was fond of cowing the public and prospective opponents alike. When Jim Corbett was almost an unknown he tried to bully Corbett into a fearsome respect, but Jim refused to be bullied. He "called" Sullivan in public and John pulled his horns right in.

Peter Jackson tried in vain to get a match with Sullivan, but John L. made history by "drawing the colored line." Peter was tougher timber than the peewee Charley Mitchel or the ham-and-eggers that Sullivan mauled to defeat.

Sullivan was game enough in the ring—his fight with Jake Kilrain proved that. Jake had him sick and licked, half way through the fight; but Sullivan stuck it out and outlasted his foe.

But Kilrain wasn't much, in spite of history. We fall back for proof on his feeble showing against Jim Corbett at New Orleans, before the Corbett-Sullivan fight. Corbett, who looked so frail and delicate that his friends feared for his life, simply chewed up the man-eater, Kilrain.

The Week-End Habit.

PRESIDENT JOHN A HEYDLER, who was here yesterday on his annual review of the pennant procession, thinks any lapse of interest in the 1928 baseball race is the result of conditions that are not normally encountered.

"The presidential election year, the somewhat depressed condition of business generally, and the week-end habit that is growing since stores are closing on Saturday, have combined to detract from expected attendance in some cases," the National League's leader observed.

"August and July are bad months because normally they are vacation periods and the fans are away, many of them at least. September will see a return to full parks, especially in our league where the race is red-hot—with the Pittsburg team closing fast it will be even keener."

In the "Good Old Days."

IF the attendance is not what was hoped for, in some instances, owners can feel consoled when they think of the pennant races of a few years ago. Then, many times, the club that was ultimately to win the flag was known in July and the fans fell away alarmingly.

The players, with nothing to hope for, dragged their feet around listlessly when they considered their team out of the running.

In recent years, however, the pennant fight has been carried late into the season. Even the Yankees have lost something of their monopoly this summer.

Today, also, the players of the one two, three teams in both leagues share in the world's series money, and not meanly. That adds new zest to the scramble for place, and makes the fight harder for all concerned.

Syndicate Baseball.

THE problem of the minor leagues of the lower classifications has become serious. Sale of players and attendance receipts no longer suffice to check the red ink wave. Constant shifts of circuits become necessary. Only winning combinations make money.

The Nebraska State League has tried to solve the problem by a form of "syndicate baseball." All the clubs are controlled by the president of the league, who pays all expenses and collects all the receipts. At the end of the season, profits are divided.

Whether this will prove successful remains to be seen. It has a better chance of success than the old independent club arrangement, which too frequently saw entire circuits wiped out in one season.

The league does not extend its syndicating to pooling and distributing the players to equalise team strength. That plan often has been talked of, but has yet to be tried.

Double Play Record.

ST. PAUL.—St. Paul in the American Association established a record for making the most double plays in a single season in organized baseball when the club executed 215 two-ply killings in 1927.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 18.—Before a howling mob of 38,000 spectators that packed Shibe Park, the Athletics divided a double bill with the Brownies today. They won the opener, 3 to 2, and lost the second, 5 to 4.

When the A's bumped off the Missourians in the first game, it marked the tenth straight time they had downed Howley's forces, while the conquest scored by St. Louis in the nightcap was their first on Philadelphia soil this season. The opening victory was also Lefty Groves' tenth straight.

Macks Win Opener in Ninth.

The Mackmen used a ninth-inning rally to win the first game, clean two-baggers by Al Simmons and Jimmy Foxx sending in the deciding marker without anybody being retired.

Because of a lack of base hits, the Athletics could not sweep the twin bill. They did menace Blaeholder in the seventh and eighth innings of the second contest, but Howley saved the game by sending Sammy Gray to the tee in the ninth, and he retired his former mates in order, including two pinch batters.

Rube Walberg, who has been a steady loser for the Athletics for weeks, was batted off the landscape in the sixth after holding the Browns in check for five innings.

Quinn Batted Out, Too.

Rommel took his place and was much better but he was removed for a pinch hitter. That brought old Jack Quinn to the rubber in the eighth. Quinn was unsteady and the Browns scored what proved to be the winning runs by visiting the plate twice. Earnshaw was sent in to get the enemy out. The defeat was charged to Walberg while Blaeholder was the official winner.

The crowd was one of the largest of the season, the stands being draped with fully 38,000 spectators. Every seat was taken while thousands of standers were herded in the rear.

Some daring members of the overflow even risked life and limb by climbing to the roof of the stands in left. Thousands stormed the entrances and could not get in because the management was obliged to stop selling tickets.

Even when the second game began thousands continued to mill around the park and tried desperately to get inside.

What Price Glory?

NOW is the glad and open season
For stratagems and spoils and treason;
When birds of local reputation
Burst forth upon a startled nation
To rid themselves of excess vapor,
And get their names in every paper,
By challenging some candidate
To enter with them in debate.

"Extemporaneous Singing at Night Barred in Madrid."

IN old Madrid they've put the lid
On midnight serenading;
A Spanish cop will put a stop
To all such escapading.
And Juliet, with lashes wet,
Her hands in grief is wringing;
As Romeo to jail must go
If he insists on singing.

That's So.

It is high time that people who can't sing but will sing should be made not to sing.

The trouble with those night singers is their voices sound as though accompanied by catarrah instead of a guitar.

A society lady of Lake Forest, Ill., joined a circus as a rider as a cure for ennui. It cured her ennui all right, but her riding made the ringmaster so tired that he fired her.

FOR Hoover let the parrots talk,
And give him the macaw vote;
We'll bet the "Sidewalks of New York"
Will get Al Smith the straw vote.

Too True.

However, let the parrots talk and the ravens rave. When the voters say it with ballots in November they'll be talking turkey.

MISS WILLS IS VICTOR IN TILT WITH MERCUR

By the Associated Press.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 18.—Miss Helen Wills defeated Fritz Mercur, recent conqueror of Bill Tilden, in straight sets, 6—3, 6—4, in an exhibition match this afternoon.

The match, a special attraction on the East vs. West series program, produced an interesting test of Miss Wills' abilities against one of the country's high ranking men players. Miss Wills' stroking was fully as hard as her opponent's throughout and she scored numerous placements with her blistering drives from the base line, also putting across a service ace.

Seven games in two sets, the number won by the handsome young player from Bethlehem, Pa., represented slightly more than the number Miss Wills' leading feminine rivals have been able to win from her this season.

The woman champion of the United States, France and England looked upon the match as practice for defense of her American championship next week, and while it is true that Mercur probably did not play with the fire he might have shown in a competitive match, it is also true that neither did Miss Wills.

The Match in Figures.

While the match was nothing more than an exhibition marked by court courtesies on both sides and should not be taken as proof positive that since Mercur beat Tilden and Miss Wills beat Mercur, Helen could trim Tilden, the following point score and stroke analysis serve to show how Helen is hitting her shots.

First set point score:

Miss Wills—

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.

THEY'D heard the name—Knute Hansen. But it didn't mean much to the tough boys from the west side around Stillman's Gym.

"So, 'at's the bird," one drawled, crowding the rail, "that Rickard picks as the next champeeon! Tex's little pet."

Truck drivers and street builders rubbing elbows in the sweaty air to get a better look. There was suspicious disapproval in the silent glances covering the tall, blond youngster smashing the heavy bag. Knute Hansen smacking long lefts and rights in the dented leather.

The tough boys didn't know that the hard left hand connected effectively with the ebony features of a Negro Hercules up the Saigon River outside of Singapore—for which Knute had been publicly congratulated by the military officials. That both those fists had spread havoc and terror through a band of mutinous coolies deep in China's interior. That in a bamboo stadium in Shanghai the right had crossed the jaw of the British Navy champion along about the second round. That the big right hand—polished and manicured this time—had closed on the small right hand of the daughter of David de Rabinovitch, wealthy Russian nobleman, in the latter's salon in Paris, and that the young American adventurer had determined immediately to marry this titled girl, which he did. And that she is now a six months' bride living with Knute Hansen in his Central Park West apartment.

Credited With 19 Fights.

The tough boys knew only that young Hansen was accredited with

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—Fred Marberry, Washington right-hander, bested Carroll, Detroit twirler, in a pitchers' duel today and the Senators won, 3 to 1, the second of the three-game series.

The Senators clinched the game in the first inning, when singles by Rice, Goslin and Judge brought in two runs. Washington hit Carroll's offerings hard, making eight hits, while the Tigers only made four safeties off Marberry.

MORRIS IN FORM, AND RED SOX WIN FROM WHITE SOX, 3 TO 1

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Aug. 18. — Johnny Heving's single to left, scoring Flagstead and Williams in the fourth inning, was the big factor in Boston's 3 to 1 victory over Chicago today. The pitching of Big Ed Morris held the White Sox harmless. Mayor Edward Quinn of Cambridge made a presentation during the game to outfielder Bill Barrett of the White Sox, a Cambridge boy. Catches by Barrett and the playing of Regan at second base were the defensive features.

PHILS WIN FROM PIRATES, 11-8, AFTER LOSING OPENER, 9-0

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 18.—Philadelphia held Pittsburg to an even break today by winning the second game of a doubleheader, 11 to 8. In the first game, Carmen Hill was invincible, shutting out the Phils 9 to 0. Ray Benge pitched clever ball against the Buccaneers in the opener but was lifted in the seventh for a pinch hitter.

The Quakers piled up a big lead on the Pirates in the early innings of the second fray, and were 10 runs in front in the fourth inning. They had a battle on their hands, however, before the game ended.

Jimmy Ring was a tough problem for Pittsburg until the seventh when the home batters got to him and he had to be rescued by Ferguson. Fussell, Meadows, Tauscher and Dawson were on the mound for the Pirates in the second game. Scores:

THE CHOCTAW, PAYING $138 FOR $2, CAPTURES JUVENILE HANDICAP

AUDLEY FARM ENTRY BEATS DOUBLE HEART BY A NOSE; JOCKEY FRONK IS INJURED

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 18.—The Choctaw, a maiden from the Audley Farms, today won the Hawthorne Juvenile Handicap over six furlongs, beating Double Heart, Three D entry, to the wire by a nose in one of the biggest upsets of the Chicago racing season. Coal Black was third, a length behind Double Heart.

In winning, the Choctaw set a new season record for the Chicago District for long shots, paying $138.76 for every $2 invested to win, $41.54 to place and $18.98 to show.

Jockey R. Russell brought the winner up from fifth place to challenge the field as the leaders went into the stretch. As the colts came into the stretch, Port Harlem, with Jockey Willie Fronk up, fell while running second in a closely bunched field. Fronk was said to have not been seriously injured.

Seven Forced to Pull Up.

As the result of the accident, seven horses were forced to pull up, and The Choctaw went into the lead. W. Garner brought up Double Heart fast to nearly nose out the long shot as they flashed under the wire. The Choctaw's time for the distance was 1:13 3-5.

Voltear of the Nevada Stock Farm, and considered the ranking 2-year-old of the Chicago District, finished eighth, being one of the horses forced to slow up when Port Harlem fell.

The race was worth $6330 to the owner of the winner.

After an investigation of the spill the stewards revoked the license of Jockey G. Woolf, who rode Coal Black, and deferred his case to the Illinois Turf Association for further action. The boy was charged with having been the cause of the accident.

Long Shots Are Victors.

President Kelly, a 20 to 1 shot, took command 100 feet from the finish to win the opening event, a sprint over the Hawthorne course, by a length over a field of 12 two-year-olds. Uliniu, after setting the pace from the far turn, seemed to tire in the last sixteenth, but saved second money by five lengths over Mary McClain, the early leader. The winner, ridden by Shropshire, paid $43.14.

Kadiak, a 4-year-old first starter, with L. McDermott up, was an easy winner by three lengths in the second at a mile and a sixteenth. Linger showed the way to the last sixteenth and finished second by two lengths. Post Horn took show money in the field of 12. Kadiak, a "field" horse, paid $37.24.

Flat Iron Is Defeated.

Nor'Easter steadily moved up from fifth place to beat out Flat Iron, the favorite, by a neck and win the Garfield Park handicap, the secondary attraction on this afternoon's card. Shasta Bullet finished third and Oh Susanna, coupled with the winner as the Camden entry, was fourth. It was a close race throughout, Cayuga and Oh Susanna alternating in the lead to the stretch. The winner's time over the Hawthorne course, which is 160 feet more than six furlongs, was 1:15 3-5 and the Camden entry paid $11.84.

Crossco, ridden by Laidley, was the winner in the fifth at a mile and a sixteenth for older horses. Flattery finished second by half a length over the public choice, Sir Harry. Jack Alexander set the pace to the half where Crossco went to the front to win easily with two lengths to spare.

Lawley, a heavily played favorite with Willie Garner up, was a handy winner in the sixth at a mile and 70 yards. Mickey D. took second money by 15 lengths over Golden Racket. Black Flyer led to the far turn where Lawley came up to win by two lengths and paid $3.08 in the mutuels.

Bobby Jones
Says

SOMETIMES I wonder if our concern over "the straight left arm" is not a useless bother. Many players, I am sure, interpret "straight" to mean rigid, the result being a stiff-armed poke at the ball which has none of the elements of timing or power.

The main advantage of a straight left is that it increases the arc of the backswing and hence the potential power of the stroke. With the left arm extended the club is forced backward and outward to the extreme position without thrusting it with the shoulder—which latter act I need not add, is disastrous. The wide arc thus achieved, the clubhead may travel through a very long distance, gaining momentum and speed all the while.

The man with supple wrists can well afford to keep the left arm straight, for he can complete a full backswing and ease the tense position at the top by means of his hands and wrists. Tommy Armour is a notable example of this style. Tommy is tall and loose-jointed and his wrists are pliable and strong.

Vardon Seems to Relax.

HARRY VARDON, at least in later years, appears to relax his left arm preceptibly as he approaches the top of the swing. Of course, when I first saw Vardon he was considerably heavier than when he was at his best, and this added weight may have so restructed his swing that it forced upon him a habit he would not otherwise have acquired. But as the slight flexion appeared to lessen his effectiveness not at all, I am inclined to believe that it had always been a part of his method. Vardon had always monstrous hands and wrists, and it is inconceivable that they could have been as flexible as those of Armour.

I think the important thing about the left arm is that it does not remain bent after the downstroke has gotten under way. If it does so there is a tendency for the left elbow to stray outward and cause the heel of the club to be presented first to the ball, a common cause of "socketing."

But the golfer need give himself little concern about a straight left arm at impact, for if that member is not straight the player will experience considerable difficulty in the matter of reaching the ball. The point where many left arms are not straight is at the top of the swing, and it does not appear necessary that they should be so.

THE important thing is that the left elbow be restrained from moving outward. If its downward motion brings it even closer to the body, and if the forearm avoids a horizontal position, I can see little harm in a slight crook in the arm.

At the top of the swing there is a very little motion—only a few inches, which means the difference between good timing and bad. It is lagely a matter of a moment of relaxation while getting set to hit. This relaxation must come either in the wrists or in the left elbow, and if the person's wrists are not the flexible kind, he has but one door open to him.

Those who say dogmatically that to keep the left arm straight is correct, and to bend it is wrong, overlook the fact that the golf stroke consists of considerably more than one motion. The result depends not upon the performance of each motion as an isolated act, but upon the way in which all motions are put together to make the whole swing. No single section of the stroke can be said to be right or wrong without considering what goes before and what comes after.

HORNSBY HITS TWO HOMERS TO INCREASE LEAD IN SWAT RACE

By the Associated Press.

Although Paul Waner batted only .286 for the afternoon in two games against the Phillies, yesterday, he held most of the fine gain he had made against Rogers Hornsby, the Big Six leader, on the previous day. Getting only four out of seven in two games, the elder Waner slipped but a single point to .368, while Hornsby was able to gain only one notch for an average of .377 as he hit his seventeenth and eighteenth home runs.

Babe Ruth gained two points to .330 with two out of four, but Ty Cobb remained out of the game and both Frank Frisch and Harry Hellmann went hitless.

The standing to date:

Kadiak raced wide in first mile, began moving up after the stretch turn and closing fast easily disposed of Linger and won with speed to spare. Linger taken into a good early lead saved ground, held on fairly well but was not good enough. Posthorn, far back in the early stages, kept improving his position and came with a rush. Vogeler had no mishaps. The Cossack could not get into a contending position.

Nor'easter began fast, but was taken back and restrained to the stretch, where he came up well and wore down the leaders and outfinished Flat Iron. Latter, restrained, saving ground in early stages, came to outside late in the stretch and, closing gamely, was racing best at end. Shasta Bullet, a prominent factor from the start, saved ground in stretch and finished gamely. Oh Susanna, fractious at barrier, where she broke outside the stalled gates, had speed and held on stubbornly to the last sixteenth. Greenock was outrun to the stretch, where he suffered from blocking when closing some ground. Rurik and Cayuga tired in stretch.

The Choctaw, much the best, was forced back sharply after first quarter, then went to extreme outside and closing a big gap was up in final stride. Double Heart close up from the first furlong but tired raced wide, took the lead in the stretch but was not good enough. Coal Black appeared to swerve while moving up on the turn, continued to weave in stretch and finished gamely. Gardner Derr had good speed, saved ground and only tired slightly in drive. Clyde Van Dusen raced well and met interference in the stretch.

$2 mutuels paid: The Choctaw, win $138.76, place $41.54, show $18.98; Double Heart, place $4.80, show $3.36; Coal Black, show $5.10.

Crossco, well handled and racing in her best way, disposed of Jack Alexander in first three-quarters, held on gamely in the stretch and won well in hand. Flattery outrun to the stretch turn, where she saved much ground, came steadily in last sixteenth and outstayed Sir Harry. Latter raced wide and ridden weakly, showed a good effort but tired near end under a listless ride. Jack Alexander allowed good speed for three-quarters but tired thereafter. Eugene S.	113	5	5	5	5	5	5	5	L. Pichon	6.72

Lawley was strongly strained and able to save ground to the stretch and was taken to Mickey D slowly and holding him in the last furlong, won under stout reserve. Mickey D. close up from the start, closed gamely under severe punishment but was overestimated. Golden Racket raced promptly to the stretch where he tired badly. Black Flyer showed a flash of early speed. Eugene S lacked speed and ran a dull race.

$2 mutuels paid: Lowley, win, $3.08; place, $2.62; show, $2.14. Mickey D. show $3.74; show, $2.44. Golden Racket show, $2.44.

Busy Fairy kept well up from the start, came to the outside after being blocked on stretch turn and closing fast and gamely, got up in final few stride. Tom Byrne, far back in early stages, saved ground working his way up and held on stubbornly to the end. Hopeless lost ground taking the lead with a rush and swerved when tiring in final furlong. Croatan raced in close quarters during most of the race, was tiring at the end. Jeb suffered interference from Atoi in first quarter and showed to stretch, where was forced back when tiring. Atoi tired badly in stretch. Music Shop showed a poor effort. Crossbow moved up on the last turn but tired badly thereafter.

$2 mutuels paid: Busy Fairy, win $32.34, place $17.40, show $7.78; Tom Byrne, place 10.24, show $5.46; Hopeless, show $3.62.

FIVE MUNY LEAGUES HAVE PENNANT GAMES SCHEDULED FOR TODAY

M'QUAY-NORRIS CAPTURES TITLE IN THE Y. M. C. A. INDUSTRIAL

Games affecting the championships in five leagues of the Municipal Baseball Association are on today's schedule. In some of the contests the rivals are pitted against one another but in others they appear in separate contests and in case of ties remaining unbroken, after today's games, play-off games will take place on Wednesday.

The elimination series for the city title among pennant winners in the various leagues will start next Sunday with 20 league winners involved.

Much interest will be centered on critical games in the South Side League this afternoon. In this circuit the Hoffmeisters and Schenbergs are running neck and neck. The Hoffmeisters take on the South Side Chevrolets and the Flori-Olympians will furnish the opposition for the Schenbergs.

In the North Side League the Moglers and St. Patricks are scheduled to meet in the deciding game of the year. Final games will be played in the Y. M. H. A. League with the Blues meeting the Triangle A. C. and the Whites playing the Maccabbeans. The race is between the Blues and the Whites.

The second game of a championship series in the Evangelical League, between St. James and Ebenezer, will be played at O'Fallon Park. Yesterday in Forest Park, St. James won easily, 17 to 6.

Four games in the Public Service League, scheduled for this morning, will have a definite bearing on the pennant situation.

Yesterday McQuay-Norris won the championship of the Y. M. C. A. Industrial League by beating Pedigo-Weber for the second time, 2 to 0. Thomas, in the box for the winners, held the losers helpless, allowing four hits and fanning nine batters in the seven innings he worked. Goerisch, the losing pitcher, was also effective, three of the seven hits off his delivery being of the fluke type.

Where they play today:

North Side League.

Fairground—No. 1, Moglers vs. St. Patrick.

South Side League.

Carondelet—No. 1, Flori Olympians vs. Schenbergs; No. 2, South Side Chevrolet vs. Hoffmeister Und.

Y. M. H. A. League.

Forest Park—No. 10, Y. M. H. A. Blues vs. Triangle A. C.; Y. M. H. A. Whites vs. Maccabbeans.

MORNING GAMES.

SAWYER GAINS VICTORY IN 35 MILE AUTO RACE

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 18.—Driving a powerful Miller special, Johnnie Sawyer, Milwaukee, Wis., youth today captured the 35-mile sweepstakes event of the Illinois State Fair automobile races. His time for the event was 26:59.4.

Today's event officially opened the seventy-sixth annual Illinois State Fair Exposition.

Other winners of the sweepstakes event were: Dutch Bauman, Indianapolis, Ind., Diever, who led the field 20 laps, but because of tire trouble was forced to take second place, and Paul Bost, Detroit, Mich., dirt track driver, who finished in third money.

Louis Schneider, second place winner of the Indianapolis 500-mile grind this year, set a new mark for the local track by turning in a time of 41.6 for the one mile dirt oval.

Ideal weather brought out the crowds, who in addition to witnessing the auto race performance, viewed hundreds of exhibits and displays.

MUNICIPAL ELIMINATION DRAWINGS MONDAY

Drawings for the elimination series among teams of the Municipal Baseball Association will be held Monday at 12 o'clock noon at the Park Department office in the Municipal Court Building.

Yost to Return as Michigan's Grid Coach Is Report

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Aug. 18.

REPORTS that Fielding H. Yost again will direct the coaching of football at University of Michigan this season were being circulated on the campus today. No comment was forthcoming from any official quarter.

The rank outlook for a successful team this season, due to the lack of promising material, and the need to fill the 80,000 seats in Michigan's new stadium, figured in Yost's decision to return, according to reports.

Yost retired from active football coaching several years ago and turned his job over to George Little, who lated went to Wisconsin. Tad Wieman succeeded Little at Michigan. While Wieman coached a good Michigan team last season it was defeated by Illinois and Minnesota and was not regarded as the equal of teams produced by Yost.

Bottomley and Gehrig in Close Race As Premier 1928 First Basemen

Each Is a Terror at the Bat; 'Sunny Jim' Has Edge in Fielding

By Herman Wecke

Jim Bottomley or Lou Gehrig? Here we have the two outstanding first basemen in the major leagues this season. They are regarded as real stars. In the near future, Babe Ruth will pick his All-America team. Unless the Babe pulls the unexpected, one of the two will get the honor. At the present time, Post-Dispatch readers are busy trying to figure which of the two the Home Run King will select.

There are other good first sackers in the majors, that is true. But none stands out like Bottomley or Gehrig.

Brooklyn has Del Bissonette, a young slugger. He has done much for the cause of the Robins; the Giants have Terry; the Cubs own Charley Grimm; there is Clancy of the White Sox and Lu Blue of the Browns. These athletes are coming in for a scattering of votes. But when it comes to the real test, Bottomley and Gehrig always stand out.

Both Good at Getting Runs.

And there's a reason. The records for the campaign tell the story. Both are great hitters and both are mighty valuable men in the pinch—players who can come through with the swat to break up a close game. And they are home run hitters.

The Cardinal first sacker has a batting average of .341 for the season. Columbia Lou is ahead of Sunny Jim in this respect, as he is swatting .369 in 115 contests. However, the value of these two outstanding lights does not end here. There are the figures on runs accounted for.

Bottomley, in the first 112 battles he played as a member of Bill McKechnie's pennant chasers scored 97 runs and drove in 100. Which shows that he was responsible for 197 of the markers scored by the Cardinals for the campaign. Here again, Sunny Jim trails his rival, inasmuch as Gehrig, with 113 runs batted in and 105 scored, has been responsible for 218 of the markers the Yankees have put across the plate this year.

Thus in batting there is very little to choose between the pair. In home runs, Bottomley has an edge, with 26 against 21. And Columbia Lou a year ago was Babe Ruth's closest rival in this respect. He has fallen down in four baggers this season, though.

Fielding Nearly on Par.

If there is an edge in fielding, the margin is in favor of Bottomley, though it is very close. As to throwing arms, Gehrig probably has the better of it. However, in team spirit, the will to win, Bottomley has it on his Yankee rival.

Gehrig was voted the most valuable player in the American League last season, and would without a doubt be a candidate again this year, if the rules of the competition permitted. Bottomley has never had this honor. But there is a strong likelihood that he will be named this season. He is running strong in the race and if he returns to his batting stride of a few weeks ago and the Cardinals go on to win the National League flag, there is little doubt that he will be chosen.

When the Cardinals were playing Pittsburg recently, Pie Traynor, a great athlete himself, said: "Looks like Bottomley ought to win the most valuable player competition this season. He certainly is going strong. He's a great man, especially in a tight game, a contest decided by one run. And there's not a player in the league who is better liked by his rivals."

That's what they think of the leading citizen of Nokomis, Ill. But to gain a place on Babe Ruth's All-America team, Bottomley will have to continue at his great pace and he will have to outdo Lou Gehrig, a teammate of Ruth, to gain the honor.

Rules Governing Babe Ruth All-America Team Contest

THE contest is open now to all readers of the Post-Dispatch. It will close on Aug. 31 at midnight. Entries bearing postmarks of that or prior dates will be considered eligible.

To select an all-star team from among the outstanding players of the National and American Leagues, with a view to having it coincide with one which Babe Ruth, aided by a committee of sports writers, will select, is the chief object of the contest. And the judges will also be guided in the awarding of trophies by the clearness of the short explanation must accompany each entry. This little essay, telling the reason for the selection, is essential and must not exceed 200 words. Lack of an explanation will invalidate an entry.

Ten players will make up the team, two pitchers and eight other players, one for each position.

Only one team may be submitted by each contestant.

No correction will be accepted, once an entry has been received and filed. Take your time and make your selection final.

Babe Ruth is not eligible. He will not pick himself.

Players must be selected on the basis of their play in the 1928 season only. Performances of previous years do not count.

A player can be placed in a position other than the one he regularly occupies, provided he has occupied such position in one or more championship games. Otherwise regular positions must be rigidly adhered to. For instance, a regular left fielder may not be placed in right field, unless he has played there at least once in 1928.

The trophies will be $100 cash for first, $50 for second and $25 for third. The winner of the capital trophy will also receive a bat autographed by Babe Ruth, and an autographed league ball mounted on a blotter holder.

Mail selection to the BABE RUTH CONTEST EDITOR, care the Post-Dispatch.

Golfers Ready To Start Play In Western Event

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 18.—Two hundred golfers of the United States and Great Britain will tee off Monday for the qualifying round of the twenty-ninth annual western amateur golf championship at the Bob-o-Link club.

Great Britain will be represented by the British Walker cup team which includes T. P. Perkins, British amateur champion; Dr. William Tweddell, British amateur champion a year ago and captain of the team, and Major C. O. Hezlet.

Bon Stein, defending champion, Frank Dolp, 1926 champion, and Eddie Held, runner-up last year, are among the United States stars who will compete.

Seventy-five players, including the entire British team, tried out the Bob-o-Link course today, but the scores were high, due to the fact that Earl Dean, club pro, had placed the pins in difficult positions.

Three of the Englishmen stuck to their jackets even though the day was warm, saying that it would not be "quite proper" to play in shirt sleeves, with braces on. Major Hezlet, who weigh over 250 pounds, doffed his coat and suspenders.

Jack Westland, Sunset Ridge star, turned in the best card, shooting 39-34—73.

Horseshoe Matches Postponed.

The Y. M. C. A. horseshoe championship matches scheduled for yesterday afternoon were postponed until next Saturday. The games will be played at Fairgrounds Park.

ROYER GAINS VICTORY IN KANSAS NET EVENT

By the Associated Press.

INDEPENDENCE, Kan., Aug. 18.—For the second successive year the men's singles title of the Kansas open tennis tournament rested tonight with Fred Royer, blonde Tulsa, Okla., ace. And with the Tulsan's victory, a lanky Kansas veteran, Lester Dewitt of Wichita, who seven times has been a finalist and within striking distance of the championship, went down to defeat. The score was 2-6, 6-4, 6-0, 7-5.

Royer now has two legs of the Harry Sinclair challenge cup and needs another to gain permanent possession of it.

Umpires Call 'Em as They See 'Em, But the Problem With Some Is to See 'Em

By Herman Wecke

"You're out!" "Safe!"

If you were a base runner, sliding into second base, and heard both of the above decisions shouted at you, what would you do?

That's just the situation which a Cincinnati base runner confronted in a recent game. Jack Hendricks, manager of the Reds, is the one who tells about it, and it shows that umpires, in different positions, see the same play differently.

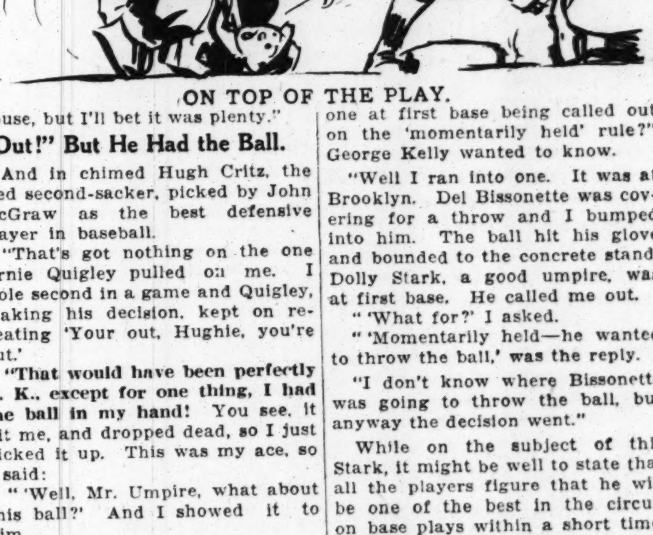
Charley Rigler and "Baggy Pants" Hart figured in the play of which Hendricks told. Rigler was on first and Hart at third.

"A play came up at second base," relates Hendricks. "Rigler dashed over from first and waved the runner out. But Hart was already there. He had come over from third and called the man 'Safe!'

There they stood glaring at each other.

"It was a pretty good one and we were all wondering what would happen. It did not take long to decide. Rigler, being the older in the point of service, won the argument.

"I never did hear what happened after those two got into the clubhouse, but I'll bet it was plenty."



ON TOP OF THE PLAY.

"Out!" But He Had the Ball.

And in chimed Hugh Critz, the Red second-sacker, picked by John McGraw as the best defensive player in baseball.

"That's got nothing on the one Ernie Quigley pulled on me. I stole second in a game and Quigley, making his decision, kept on repeating 'Your out, Hughie, you're out.'

"That would have been perfectly O. K., except for one thing, I had the ball in my hand! You see, it hit me, and dropped dead, so I just picked it up. This was my ace, so I said:

"'Well, Mr. Umpire, what about this ball?' And I showed it to him.

"I won that argument."

By this time all the athletes were warmed up. The Cardinals two batters had been retired and even Umpire Jorda, behind the plate, was puzzled. Jorda himself was not certain. He thought only two were retired, but to make certain he finally appealed to the press box before he finally straightened the tangle.

"What about this 'momentarily held' rule?" a player wanted to know. "Seems to me, a lot of liberties are taken with that one."

"I think they really made that rule for Babe Herman, the Brooklyn outfielder," chimed in another. "That's about as long as he holds one."

"Momentarily Held."

"But did you ever hear of any-one at first base being called out on the 'momentarily held' rule?" George Kelly wanted to know.

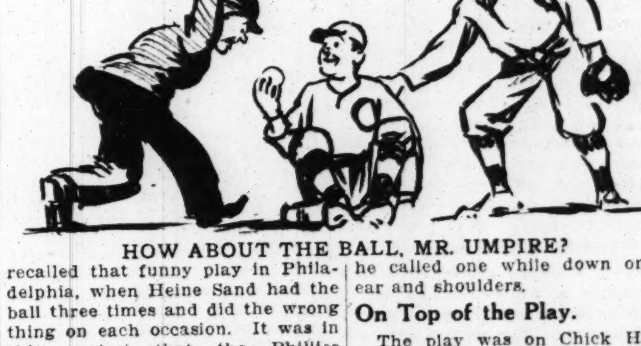
"Well I ran into one. It was at Brooklyn. Del Bissonette was covering for a throw and I bumped into him. The ball hit his glove and bounded to the concrete stand. Dolly Stark, a good umpire, was at first base. He called me out.

"'What for?' I asked.

"'Momentarily held—he wanted to throw the ball,' was the reply.

"I don't know where Bissonette was going to throw the ball, but anyway the decision went."

While on the subject of this Stark, it might be well to state that all the players figure that he will be one of the best in the circuit on base plays within a short time. He follows the ball and that is a big help. In the Cardinal-New York series at the Polo Grounds he called one while down on his ear and shoulders.



HOW ABOUT THE BALL, MR. UMPIRE?

recalled that funny play in Philadelphia, when Heine Sand had the ball three times and did the wrong thing on each occasion. It was in this contest that the Phillies walked off the field, when only

On Top of the Play.

The play was on Chick Hafey. He had hit a liner to left and was trying to stretch the drive into a double. Stark dashed over from his position at third, stumbled and went down just in front of second base. And from that position he called Hafey out. He was certainly on top of that play, if ever an umpire was.

However, there have been other queer decisions. There was Pete McLaughlin, who called a runner out at first, although Jim Bottomley was standing three feet away from the bag when he made the catch.

And there was a play a few years ago at Sportsman's Park when the Browns were playing the White Sox. Pants Rowland was officiating at third. There was a play at the hot corner. McManus went down for the catch and Rowland waved the runner out. There was only one drawback. McManus never did catch the ball. It rolled into the Brownie dugout, but Rowland's decision held.

In the recent Yankee-Brown series at St. Louis two umpires had their backs turned to a play, and did not know what it was all about.

There are those who say that some officials can do just as well that way as if faced about. You'll find that kind shouting "robber" when the martyr in blue is handing down a perfect ruling.

Stillman May Oppose Reed on Motorbus Card

Another open-air amateur boxing tournament will be staged by the People's Motorbus A. C. at the club's arena, 3547 Pine street, Thursday night, Aug. 30.

George Wilsman, matchmaker for the club, will endeavor to match Jimmy Reed of the Baden A. C., with Al. Stillman, of the Motorbus squad, National A. A. U. junior middleweight champion, as the main bout on a program of five stellar events. Reed stepped into the limelight in his first local appearance last week by knocking out Jerry Hoffman, of the Motorbus team, in the second round of their engagement. Reed packs a terrific wallop, and is the best local boy at his weight that has appeared on the amateur fistic horizon for some time.

Stillman has not fought since his competition in the National A. A. U. senior tourney at Boston last spring, where he lost his final and titular battle to Ensign Harry Henderson, of Annapolis, by a point margin so narrow as to be decidedly out of favor with the fans, who thought Stillman should have been given the decision. Due to his showing in that tourney, Stillman was chosen as a member of the U. S. Olympic team of boxers but, through some misunderstanding, his name was dropped from the team at the last minute.

BLUE LARKSPUR GREATEST TWO-YEAR-OLD OF 1928 TURF CAMPAIGN

BRADLEY'S COLT MAY BE MADE FAVORITE FOR KENTUCKY DERBY

By Clement Glaub.

Col. Edward Riley Bradley, master of the Idle Hour Stock Farm of Kentucky, who has won two Kentucky Derbies, with Behave Yourself and Bubbling Over, has developed another champion. The best horse in his stable this year is Blue Larkspur, home-bred son of Black Servant-Blossom Time. At present, Blue Larkspur looms as a possible juvenile champion, having won three major stakes and defeated all the good 2-year-olds in the East.

Last year Bradley was forced to witness the running of the fifty-second Kentucky Derby without a color bearer, but in next year's renewal will probably have the honor of owning the winter book favorite.

In five races this season, Blue Larkspur has won four and finished third in the other. His victories include the Juvenile and National Stallion Stakes at Belmont Park, and the Saratoga Special, at Saratoga. The manner in which he won the latter race convinced the public that he is more than an ordinary racer. He broke fast and led practically all the way, to beat J. E. Widener's good 2-year-old, Jack High, for the third time.

Has Won $61,170 Already.

Blue Larkspur's victory in the Saratoga Special placed him at the top of the money-winning juvenile list. He earned $44,420 during the Belmont meeting and his $16,750 and $1000 plate, his reward for winning the Special, swelled his winnings to $61,170. Vito, a 3-year-old, is the only other horse to top the Bradley star in money earned on New York tracks. Vito has taken down $63,830, largely through his triumph in the Belmont Stakes.

The next appearance of Blue Larkspur will be in the Hopeful Stakes, a dash of six and one-half furlongs, feature of the closing day's program at Saratoga. Bradley has never won a Hopeful, but if Blue Larkspur continues to train well, his name will probably be added to the long list of Hopeful winners.

The Hopeful is one of the richest races for juveniles in the country. Last year Brooms, racing in the Brookemeade Stable's silks, took first money and earned close to $60,000.

Blue Larkspur, in his races to date has shown a wonderful turn of speed on dry tracks, but has yet to make a public appearance on a muddy or heavy course. During the course of his early training, Harry J. Thompson, handler of the Idle Hour's Eastern division, had Blue Larkspur out on muddy tracks and the youngster did fairly well over the difficult tracks.

Has Great Early Speed.

Blue Larkspur will meet a select band of juveniles in the Hopeful event, but should have no trouble in beating the field on a fast track. In the National Stallion Stakes he turned five furlongs in the excellent time of :59 to beat Jean Valjean, crack son of Stefan the Great.

Col. Bradley is sojourning in Europe and has not seen his great juvenile in action. Before he left this country on his tour he left word with Thompson that he did not want to hear anything about horses until he is back.

If Blue Larkspur beats the field in the Hopeful he will be crowned juvenile champion of the 1928 season and will undoubtedly be made favorite in all the winter books on the Kentucky Derby. Bradley's horses, Behave Yourself and Black Servant, the latter sire of Blue Larkspur, ran one-two in the 1921 Derby and Bubbling Over and Bagenbaggage, young sires at the Idle Hour Farm, finished in the same positions in the 1926 renewal.

Other Colts Not Uncovered.

For next year Bradley will have Blue Larkspur and possibly two others to carry his silks in the historic Churchill classic. Blue Larkspur is the only Bradley colt to be given steady racing this year. The others have been in training, but have not raced. They will be given a few races before the fall season is over and another crack colt will probably be uncovered.

Blue Larkspur began his short but meteoric career at Belmont Park, May 17, against a band of maiden 2-year-olds. He raced straight on the inside, but was not good enough to beat H. P. Whitney's Zoom and S. Ross' Too High. One week later he started in the Monitor Purse and won by a nose from Rancocas Stable's Mei Foo, running the four and one-half furlongs in the fast time of :53 1-5.

His next engagement was in the Juvenile Stakes at Belmont on Decoration day. With 122 pounds up, Blue Larkspur ran like a champion in giving Jack High, Widener's clever youngster, his first of three defeats. Blue Larkspur came with a rush through the final eighth and was going away at the end to win by a length and a half. His time for the five furlongs was :59 3-5.

In the National Stallion Stakes he competed against 12 other youngsters and ran the five furlongs in :59 to beat Jean Valjean by a nose after coming from far back. Jack High was the third horse. Blue Larkspur's time was the fastest since Chance Shot won in 1926.

Easy Victory in the Special.

The National Stallion was run June 9 and Blue Larkspur was given a month's rest before starting in the Saratoga Special. Thompson kept the colt in good condition and on the day of the Special was asked to carry 117 pounds to 122 for the other eligibles. He broke with the rest and showed excellent speed during the early part and drew into a length lead which he held throughout. Jack High made a bid for the lead at the stretch turn, but Blue Larkspur stalled him off and won handily with Jack High driving to place.

Blue Larkspur is sturdy in addition to being very fast. He has the courage of a true champion. He showed it in the National Stallion Stakes when he was caught in a jam on the first turn and was forced wide throughout, but raced around the field in the stretch to win driving.

Hansen, Latest "Hope," Fought Way Around Globe

but 19 fights in the boxing record book, and that he was 24 years old. "He must have somep'un," came from another. "He's the guy kayo'd Scott in a round. And he gave Pauleno one hot evening in the Garden last winter." But they didn't know about the unlisted fights of Knute Hansen. Or how the kid who left Racine, Wis., six years ago had actually fought his way half around the world. "Just for the excitement of it," he explained.

"I was always in for any excitement," the shock-headed young giant said quietly. His wife sat beside him, dark-eyed and pretty. She is learning English rapidly, listens attentively, and understands most that is said. She speaks rather well, with a liquid accent it would be a shame to lose. She, too, has had adventures.

"We learned to box among ourselves—my two older brothers and I. We boxed whenever we had nothing else to do. Just like any other kids, I guess, up there in Wisconsin. Dick, the next one to me, was pretty good at one time on the Coast. A middle-weight he was. I remember" (Hansen grinned at the thought, showing the only war blemish on his features, an absent tooth near the front), "when Dick and I fought all one afternoon over a nickel. It was a nickel given to us to see a movie. Well, only one of us could see the show, so we fought it out. And by the time the show started neither one of us could see well enough to go. Both our eyes were black and closing fast. So neither of us got to go.

Where His Troubles Began.

"I boxed around Racine and Milwaukee in exhibitions and amateurs until I was 18. Then Tom Andrews put me on with some local fellow. When I knocked him out and a couple more, Andrews shipped me on to New York to Woodman and Lawrence. That's when my troubles began."

Hansen's present manager, Walter Freedman ("Good Time Charlie"), here explained. It seems, according to Freedman, that they signed up the 18-year-old kid to a contract that netted them a percentage far over the amount legalized by the New York State Boxing Commission. Hansen's share as a result was so negligible in his first few fights as to make it almost impossible to pay his rent. He was booked with such first-water fighters as Touchstone, on the Coast, and others. And when he won he was surprised that he didn't get more coming to him. He was taken to South America, where he K. O.'d in two rounds the South American champion, Porzio. The only way he would agree to fight then was to be shown a telegram stating that his money was coming to him on his return to America. When he returned there was no money.

Knocked Out British Navy Title Holder In Second Round of Bout While in China

Disgusted, young Knute pulled up stakes and set out. "I headed for California," he continued. "How? Got a job handling cattle. I slept with the cows all the way out. From California I worked up to Oregon, and there I met a captain of a freighter I knew who offered to take me the China. So I went.

"Yeh, I had plenty of adventures in China. I made my way by picking out the local champion and fighting him. I was my own press agent, and would always write ahead, saying, 'Here I come!' They would always be waiting for me with a bout arranged. Gosh, they thought I was Jack Dempsey! I was hailed like a hero. I always made enough to move on to the next town.

"There was one fight with the British Navy champion—Seaman Moore. It was in a bamboo stadium in Shanghai. I knocked him out in the second round. It was funny to hear that Chinese gallery. Most of the spectators, strange to say, were Chinese. They yelled with a kind of gargling noise hard to imitate. And they would go crazy over clever body punching. But it shocks them to hit somebody in the face. A slap in the face is a public insult to a Chinaman. They would always shout disapproval when we punched at the other's face.

I forgot to say that I had knocked out our own U. S. Navy champ in Manila when I was 19.

Trouble With Smugglers.

'Well, I stayed around in China for quite a while—worked for a time as a customs man. There I had frequent little settoos with the Chinese smuggling gangs. But for the most part the Chinese are afraid of a big man. I traveled by rickshaw, horseback, any old way, up through the interior—over same district where those Americans were slaughtered, you remember, a few years ago. Well, nobody bothered me at all, though I was miles from a white man. A Chinaman has a strange respect for 6 feet 4 inches and 215 pounds.

"Far up the Saigon River on the way to Singapore I heard of a big Nekro who had beaten all the other blacks and Frenchmen in that neighborhood. So I challenged him and we had it out right on the street. I needed money to spend in Singapore. It was a funny fight. He was over 200 pounds and very strong. But I soon saw he knew little of boxing. I let him wrestle me around for a couple of rounds—incidentally, the Negroes had bet their shirts on him and the local French and whites had backed me to the limit—and then I stepped to the right on one of his rushes and let him have it. It only took one good one.

"When I came back to America, I took up again with my old managers. We signed a new contract which said I must earn $4000 a year or they could break the contract. There was no clause permitting me to break it. So I'm rather in a hole now.

Quits in Disgust.

"But that's when I fought most of these fellows—Romero and Paulino, and Monte Munn, and Phil Scott and the like. When I found I was being forced on with these top-notchers whether I was in condition or not, and that I only go a few hundred dollars for the fights, I quit again in disgust and went to Europe. This time to Copenhagen to see some relatives of mine—I'm of Swedish descent. You would have thought I was a native son the way those Swedes celebrated my arrival! And it was even worse when I beat the then champion of Europe, Bertazolia, who had succeeded Paulino. This fight was in Copenhagen."

David de Rabinovitch, Mrs. Hansen's father, was a railroad magnate under the Czar. When the war came he manufactured munitions. "I made the bullets," Hansen quot- him, "which the Bolsheviks shot at me!" At the time of the revolution, he escaped to Switzerland and France where he had been wise enough to invest most of his money. He had not figured on his family being seized. "I was a year in prison," Hansen's wife explained. "All people of nobility were imprisoned. My sister and I finally got out. They let us go? Oh, no! We—what you say—ran away. We posed as actresses to get a passport over the border. I could dance a little and my sister could sing and play. So we made a show in the town for one night and then went to France."

Hansen's father-in-law is still a very wealthy man. He has given Knute two years to make what he can from the boxing game. Then Knute will join him in business if he fails at his own. Count de Rabinovitch—the title Count is Spanish, by some method of social register figuring, according to Hansen—is backing Hansen under his new management with Freedman.

"I heard of Freedman in London and got in touch with him," said Knute. "I told him my story and he thought I got a raw deal. As far as I am concerned my affairs are in his hands now. We have filed a contract with the commission under the legal rules."

"I am sure," said Mrs. Hansen in parting. "We will have THAT title!"

Mrs. Curd Faces Test in National Archery Meet

Mrs. J. H. Curd, archery star of Webster Groves, who left last night for the national archery tournament at Rye, N. Y., will face perhaps the most strenuous opposition of her career in the event which begins Tuesday.

Among her most formidable opponents will be Mrs. Robert Johnson of Los Angeles, the defending champion, and Mrs. Dorothy Cummings, formerly Miss Dorothy Smith of Brookline, Mass., five times national titleholder. Other well-known shooters who will most likely be tough obstacles in the path that leads to the crown are Mrs. Philip Rounsvelle of Pinehurst, N. C., and Miss Cynthia Wesson of Cotuit, Mass., several times national champion, and who ranked at one time as the greatest American woman archer of modern times.

Mrs. Curd won the right to compete in the national championship by capturing the Midwestern championship at Chicago two weeks ago and the Missouri Valley tournament here last May.

The Midwestern team entry will be led by Mrs. Curd in the competition for the sectional championship. Other members of the team will be Miss Jessie Akester, Chicago; Mrs. Frank W. Moser, Grand Rapids, Mich., and Mrs. Roy Case, Racine, Wis. In the mixed doubles, Mrs. Curd will pair with A. W. Lambert Jr. of St. Louis, who is already on the scene practicing for the contests.

Mrs. Hurd's husband, vice president of the Midwestern Archery Association, accompanied her and will make a bid to bring the 1929 National Archery games to St. Louis.

AUSTRALIAN TENNIS PLAYERS WIN OVER CANADIANS, 5 TO 1

TORONTO, Aug. 18.—Australia won two out of three of the exhibition lawn tennis matches played against Canada here this afternoon and so leads in the two-day series by five events to one. The sole Canadian victory was won by Gilbert Nunns, of Toronto, who defeated Harry Hopman of Australia, considered one of the world's best coming players, in straight sets.

All three matches produced excellent tennis that gave great satisfaction to a large gallery. The cream of the series was the doubles match between the Australia veterans, Patterson and Hawkes and the Canadian Davis cup stalwarts Willard Crocker and Jack Wright, of Montreal, won by the Australians by 6—3, 6—1, 4—6.

CLEVELAND TIGERS TAKE SERIES OPENER FROM ST. LOUIS STARS, 6-4

Tennis and Golf Tournaments at Michigan Resorts

CHARLEVOIX, Mich., Aug. 18.

SOCIAL functions were comparatively unimportant last week, for all the society members turned out to watch the brilliant tennis playing at the Michigan Riviera tennis tournament. This tournament takes the place of the Western Michigan championships, and has become the most important event of its kind, the matches lasting a full week. John Hennessey was the outstanding star of the tournament, as he has been of the two preceding ones. His fame has constantly grown until he is now regarded as one of the five ranking players, and his appearances attracted much attention. He won this as well as the two preceding tournaments.

Richard Deitrich of St. Louis, a member of the Cornell tennis team and winner of the second annual Charlevoix tennis tournament last week, and Houston Witherspoon, also of St. Louis, were eliminated because of defaults. Clara Louise Zinke of St. Louis, who won the Western Michigan championship last year, made her entry, but was sent East by the Tennis Association to compete with some of the Eastern champions. Miss Jane Ellen Connett and Miss Jane Wallis also were entered.

Dietrich and Fox were defeated in the doubles match before the semifinals, as were Ferguson and Dyche.

Following the tennis tournament was the first annual Charlevoix golf tournament, open to all amateurs, under the auspices of the Charlevoix Golf Club and the Charlevoix Summer Sports Committee. The qualifying round played Wednesday separated the players into three classes according to score. Prizes were awarded for the lowest man's and woman's score in the qualifying round.

Mrs. Church, formerly Muriel Vanderbilt, wore a blue satin sailor suit with short trousers, the blouse edged with silver and covered with silver stars. A small hat perched atop her head completed the ensemble. Mrs. Norman wore a costume that represented the original Florodora girl. Mrs. Daniel T. Jones of St. Louis, formerly Miss Barbara Norman of Boston, was a bathroom girl and more a combination of towels and other bath accessories. Mr. Norman was a sailor with beard and pipe. Others at the dance were Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Astor Jr., Mr. William Henry Vanderbilt, Princess de Braganza and daughter, Miss Nadajda Braganza, Gen. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gassaway Davis III, former Governor and Mrs. R. Hensley of 419 Polo drive, Clayton, and Dr. Andy Hall Jr. of Maplewood, son of Dr. and Mrs. Andy Hall of Mount Vernon, Ill., The announcement was made at a bridge luncheon given by Mrs. Hensley for her daughter at their home Wednesday. The rooms were decorated in summer flowers and the luncheon table, seating 16 guests, was adorned in lavender blossoms. The wedding will take place at the Delmar Baptist Church, Oct. 2.

The prospective bride is a graduate from Mary Institute and National Park Seminary, Washington, D. C. Dr. Hall is a graduate of Culver Military Academy and Washington University.

Miss Beatrice Rapp, daughter of Mrs. Marie Rapp of Webster Groves, and Clifford Broeder, son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. The Rev. Dr. J. Courtney Jones, pastor of the Emmanuel Episcopal Church of Webster Groves, read the marriage service in the presence of the immediate families and several close friends.

The home was decorated in summer flowers and the bride and bridegrom stood before an impovised altar of greenery with cathedral tapers at either side. The bride, who was unattended, was married in an afternoon gown of rose beige lace with which she wore a hair braid picture hat of the rose shade. Her flowers were lilies of the valley and bride's roses in a corsage.

Mr. Broeder and his bride are passing their honeymoon in the East and on their return in September will reside at 632 Forest avenue, Webster Groves.

The wedding of Miss Ida Margaret Cramer, daughter of Mrs. Henry D. Cramer of Hamilton avenue, and Marvel I. Kusewitt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Kusewitt of Fenton, Mo., formerly of St. Louis, will take place Saturday evening, Sept. 1, at 8 o'clock, at the Hamilton avenue Christian Church, the Rev. C. E. Lemmon officiating.

Miss Cramer will be given in marriage by her uncle, Charles B. Cramer, and she will have her prespective sister-in-law, Mrs. Orville Sams, as matron of honor and Miss Hazel Tual, Miss Helen Von Arx, Miss Katherine Schmuke and Mrs. Elizabeth Robertson Adams as bridesmaids. Betty June and Norma Jeane Garner, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Garner, will be flower girls.

Mr. Kusewitt will have his brother-in-law, Orville Sams, as best man and Percy Tucker, George Rohrback, Alfred Stumpf and William Kihn as groomsmen.

The engagement of Miss Myrtle Ellerbeck of 7423 Hazel avenue, Maplewood, and Elmer Gibson, son of Mrs. W. M. Fullerton of 4879 Carter avenue, was announced at a bridge luncheon at the home of Miss Ellerbeck Sunday, Aug. 12.

Mr. and Mrs. William Shatkin of 6309 Delmar boulevard have announced the marriage of their daughter, Ann, to Isadore Marks, son of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Marks of 6309 Delmar boulevard. The marriage took place at the home of the bride's parents, July 29. Mr. and Mrs. Marks passed their honeymoon in Chicago.

New Extracts From Czar's Diary Describe Royal Family's Days Shortly Before Assassination

Grateful for Gifts of Food When Supplies Were Cut Down—Plays, Books, Church and Work Occupied the Time.

LONDON, Aug. 18.

THE Daily Express has obtained from Russia the following extracts from the authenticated diary of the late Czar, now in the Moscow archives.

Extracts dealing with the events of 1917 have been published, and the entries take up the story of the Czar's tragic life from January 1, 1918, when the imperial family was assembled at Tobolsk.

The entries continue until shortly before the assassination in the house of the merchant Ipatiev at Ekaterinburg on July 16, 1918.

The simplicity of mind of the Czar of All the Russias and his calm resignation during those tumultuous days, as shown by this diary, are tragic, almost unbelievable, and tend to convey an impression of unconcern.

"Finished 'The Garden of Allah' yesterday," he writes on Feb. 2, 1918, "and began 'The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes.'"

He enters scrupulously the details of rehearsals and amateur theatricals in which he himself and his daughters, the Grand Duchesses Olga, Tatiana, Maria, and Anastasia, took part, as if he had made up his mind to banish all thought of the future, and be content with amateur theatricals and sawing wood.

The imperial family, it will be remembered, were taken to Tobolsk from Tsarskoe Selo, near Petrograd, in August, 1917. They remained here until April, 1918, when they were removed to Ekaterinburg.

Children Have Scarlatina.

Following are the extracts from the diaries:

Jan. 1, 1918—At 8 o'clock went to divine service, but unfortunately without Olga and Tatiana, both of whom have got a temperature. The doctors think that they have probably got scarlatina. The service was taken by other priests and a deacon. The weather is beautiful; real March weather.

January 2.—The scarlatina in the case of both has confirmed itself, but luckily both feel rather better today. The rash is considerable.

January 3.—Alexei (the Czarevitch) has also started scarlatina, but in a very mild form; Olga and Tatiana felt better, the second was even up for a while.

It has been snowing all day. The committee of the detachment of soldiers has today decided to remove shoulder-straps in order not to lay themselves open to insults and attacks in the town. Utterly incomprehensible!

January 5.—Nearly all well; Maria remains another day in bed. At 3 o'clock we had an evening service with the blessing of water, and afterwards all the rooms were sprinkled with holy water. Conversed with the soldiers of the first company of the Fourth Regiment about the removal of the shoulder-straps and the behavior of the soldiers of the Second Regiment, which they strongly disapproved of.

January 6.—At 8 o'clock attended divine service. Instead of my military coat I wore my short fur coat.

All the girls are cured.

The weather was suitable holiday weather, still and sunny. Sat for a long time in the morning in the guard-house and eased our minds with the soldiers. The religious procession to the Irtysh River could not, unfortunately, be seen because of the houses around.

Worked With the Soldiers.

January 11.—Since Monday the children have begun their lessons—am continuing the study of Russian history with Alexei. Worked with the soldiers of the Fourth Regiment carrying firewood into the outhouse. Just before dinner Tatiana received our presents.

January 12.—Tatiana's birthday was celebrated by a service in the ballroom at 12 o'clock. A lovely day. Fourteen degrees of frost and a hot sun.

Our chaplain, Father Alexei, is set at liberty from his house-arrest.

January 14.—We did not go to church this morning, but had a service at home. I walked before it, and for a long time in the afternoon. The weather was bright as if in March. Before dinner we played our play properly. Those taking part in "Les Deux Timides" were:

Tatiana—Annette.
Anastasia—Cecile.
Valya D.—Garadoux.
M. Gilliard (French tutor of the Czarevitch)—Fremissin.
I—Thibaudier.

Felt that it went well—briskly and smoothly. In the evening, as usual, bezique and reading aloud.

January 15.—Anastasia was taken ill with scarlatina today. The weather was gray—four degrees of frost and windy.

January 17.—Took two walks—the guard was a good one—the First Company of the Fourth Regiment. Alexei visited them in the evening to play draughts.

Grand Duchesses Enact Play.

January 28.—Had a walk in the morning. At 11:30 we had service. Worked for a long time in the garden. The weather gray and five degrees of frost, pleasant. Our fourth private theatrical performance took place after dinner.

Olga, Tatiana, Maria and Tatishcheff (A. D. C. to the Tsar) acted "La Bete Noir" very well. Commenced at 9:15 and ended at 10.

January 30.—During our morning walk said good-bye to those of the soldiers going to their homes whom we knew best. They are leaving very unwillingly, it being winter, and would with pleasure have remained until the opening of the navigation.

Alexei spent the day in bed suffering from a swollen ankle.

February 1.—Have heard that instructions have been received by the post office to alter the style in order to make it the same as other countries beginning on the first of February—that is, today, is already the 14th. There'll be no end to the misunderstandings and muddles!

This morning, from the top of the ice hill, saw the leave-taking and departure of many of the soldiers of the senior years.

Reading "Sherlock Holmes."

February 2.—Passed about three hours in the fresh air—so good was it. Worked all the time, and finally cleared the balcony. Finished "The Garden of Allah" and yesterday began "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes."

Rehearsed our play, "The Bear," with Olga and Maria. Tatishcheff has a cold.

February 3.—As lovely and as bright a day as yesterday, but freezing harder.

At last Alexei is up. At 9 o'clock we had evensong.

February 4.—A sunny, frosty day. At 11:30 we had divine service. Walked for a long time, enjoying the weather. Maria fell off the ice-hill and got up with an enormous bump over her right eye. After dinner we had a performance—for the second time "A la Porte," and the English "Packing up"—which was acted very brightly and amusingly by Maria, Anastasia and Alexei.

February 7 and 8.—The same invariably lovely weather, with warm sunshine and an astonishingly bright moon at night.

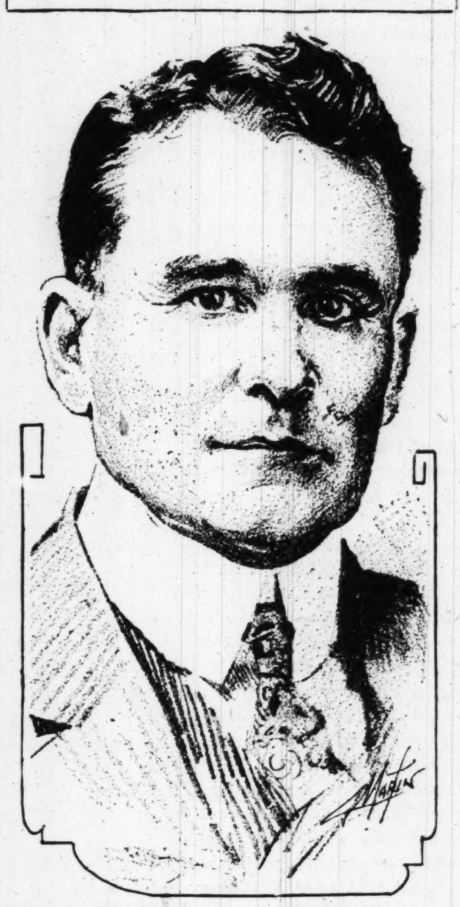
Judging by the telegrams, the Worst Pest and Faithful Watchdog Lost to House by Defeat of Blanton

Texan Has Been Most Unpopular Man in Congress Because of Erratic and Irritating Behavior in His 11 Years There—Senate Relieved When Primary Results Go Against Him.

The House's Irritant



THOMAS L. BLANTON...

'Terrible Tom' Enters Practically All Debates, Whether Informed or Not, but He Keeps an Eagle Eye on Money Measures and Has Blocked Many an Unnecessary Appropriation.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.

AS a result of the recent Texas primaries, Tom Blanton of Abilene will pass out of the National political picture next March. In the 11 years that Blanton, the gadfly, has been a member of the House, he has made himself the most unpopular man in either branch of Congress—unpopular alike with his colleagues and with the residents of Washington.

Sighs of mingled hope and apprehension went up when he announced his candidacy for the Senate—hope that he would be beaten, apprehension lest he be given even greater scope for his peculiar activities under the rules of unlimited debate in the Senate. Great, and in many quarters, was the rejoicing when the news came that he had been defeated for the nomination.

From the beginning of his service, the Wild Man from Texas has been the despair of the House leaders. Even the Wild Man from Iowa, Senator Brookhart, has been more amenable to discipline. Blanton is a Democrat, but for all practical purposes he is a party of one. He expresses himself, volubly and vigorously, on more subjects than anybody else in Congress; he inserts acres of printed matter in praise of himself in the Congressional Record; he starts investigations on his own account; he berates his colleagues for voting themselves an increase in salary; he does everything that a Congressman, under the unwritten code of congressional "courtesy," is supposed not to do.

Insistence on Roll Calls Keeps Blanton Unpopular.

The head and front of Blanton's offending, the main reason a whoop of joy went up in the House last spring when he asked for and received an official leave of absence to go back to Texas to begin his campaign for the Senate, is his un-clubby insistence upon roll calls and his frequent "I object" to requests for unanimous consent.

It is Blanton's idea that absenteeism is one of the worst evils in Congress; that unless a member has some compelling reason for being absent, he should be in his seat watching the proceedings on the floor. Blanton himself practices what he preaches; his attendance record is well-nigh perfect. The argument on the other side is that a member may often be more usefully engaged off the floor than on it; that Blanton's demands for a call of the House, in order to bring in a quorum, have retarded the transaction of business and cost the Government a lot of money.

The gentleman from Texas at one time or another has incurred the ill will of nearly every member of the House by requiring him to drop his work—or possibly some more congenial pursuit—and rush over to the House chamber to be counted.

Blanton Killed 10 Days For Members of House.

Representative Luce of Massachusetts, one of the parliamentary experts of the House, spoke persuasively in 1921 against an effort to expel the Texan. Still, Luce could not refrain from recalling plaintively that in the Sixty-sixth Congress, Blanton on 126 occasions compelled a roll call, "thus consuming more than 10 days of the time of the House, uselessly in my belief, so filching from me and every other member 10 days of life."

At the same time, Luce admitted that Blanton had "kept within the limits of the Constitution," and he begged the House not to be moved by its personal feelings in passing on Blanton's right to a seat.

Evidences of the Texan's bellicosity occur on many pages of the Record. For instance:

> Mr. Blanton: Mr. Speaker, I make the point of no quorum.
> Mr. Knutson: That is a dirty trick.
> Mr. Blanton: You come outside and say that, Sir; I will convince you that it is not.

Even more than by his points of no quorum, the Texan has annoyed many of his fellow members by blocking the passage of measures on the unanimous-consent calendar. The majority of such measures deal with matters of purely sectional interest, such as the granting of a permit to build a bridge. Some have merit; some are harmless gestures; some, including those that carry money for the payment of claims, deserve more examination than they commonly receive. These bills are passed on the "you scratch my back and I'll scratch yours" principle—a principle that lies at the very root of all practical politics. They are passed, that is to say, unless someone like the non-conformist Blanton is on guard to raise a raucous "protest."

Always Ready to Talk, and About Any Subject

Blanton enters the chamber early and stays late. You can see him there, in a seat near the front, at almost any hour the House is in session—a bright-eyed, nervously alert man, looking younger than his 55 years. You will probably hear him talk, too, for he discusses nearly everything that comes up, whether he knows much about it or not. You may hear him demand a roll call when there is no apparent need for it. Your ears may be assailed by one of his ill-informed assaults on union labor (he comes from a farming district).

You may hear him fall into grotesque error, as he did one day in denouncing a "powder" item in an appropriation bill: He said the powder was probably for the use of the young women of a certain department, when in fact it was meant to be employed against cockroaches. You may hear the Democrats wishing he was on the other side and the Republicans congratulating themselves that he isn't. You will probably come away a subscriber to the general verdict, which extends even to the press gallery, that Blanton is, "the worst pest in Congress."

But if you happen to be there when the unanimous-consent calendar is under consideration, and will take the trouble to study the bills on which the Texan is keeping an eagle eye, you may come to a different conclusion. You may note that whenever a bill bears any semblance of a raid on the Treasury, this man is on his feet demanding to know more about it. You will see numbers of such bills sent into cold storage by his objection.

Has Saved More Money Than His Tactics Use Up.

It may be that you will conclude, even though Blanton offend you by his roaring and ranting, that the good he accomplishes outweighs his faults. In this observer's belief, Blanton has saved the Government far more money by stopping money bills than he has cost it by his demands for roll calls and his heavy drains on the Government Printing Office. With Congress containing a heavy percentage of log-rollers, it is not a bad thing to have a few Blantons around.

I have it on the authority of a well-informed member of Congress, a man with an unusual knowledge of what goes on behind the scenes, that in the last few weeks of the last session, the House passed more small money bills of doubtful propriety than in any similar period in the last 10 years—all because Blanton, the House watchdog, was absent in Texas.

This judgment that Thomas L. Blanton has a large element of usefulness to his country is set down in the full light of the facts that he is blatant, has a medieval attitude toward labor problems and often goes off at half-cock. The last-named quality was illustrated during an early phase of the impeachment proceedings that led to the resignation of Federal Judge George W. English of East St. Louis. The resolution calling for an investigation of the official conduct of Judge English was brought into the House late in February, 1925, only a few days before the fixed date of adjournment. When request was made for unanimous consent to its immediate consideration, Blanton objected.

Withdraws His Objection When Informed of Error.

As it developed later, Blanton had got the idea that the fight on Judge English was a "wet" fight. Being an ardent dry, he rushed to the defense of English without troubling to inform himself about the case. That same day, the true nature of the case was explained to him, and the next day he promptly and unqualifiedly withdrew his objection, explaining that his first action had been based on misinformation.

If Blanton had persisted in his objection, it is likely that adoption of the resolution, the first step in the long impeachment process, would have been deferred until the following session of Congress; indeed, it might never have got through Congress and Judge English might still be holding Federal Court. Be it said to the credit of the House "pest," that as soon as he saw his error he rectified it.

Blanton must be credited, too, with a good public service in the Fenning affair of 1926. Frederick A. Fenning was one of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia appointed by the President. Supported as he was by some of the strongest business interests at the capital, Fenning seemed impregnably intrenched. Blanton declared that in his private capacity he was profiting illegally from the estates of insane war veterans—Fenning was the guardian for 120 of them—and single-handed went after him.

Fights Alleged Grafter and Hangs Up His Scalp.

Against Republican efforts to whitewash Fenning, Terrible Tom Blanton chased him through three committees of Congress, impeached him on 42 counts on the floor of the House, and eventually made things so hot for Fenning that he relieved the President of an embarrassing situation by resigning. Blanton in this case tangled with the redoubtable Frank Hogan, of oil trial fame, who was Fenning's attorney. The Texan wore himself to such a frazzle in pursuing Fenning that his doctor ordered him off the job.

He has meddled with less success and less credit to himself in other municipal affairs of the district—a line of activity which, with his constant fight to reduce the number of Government employes, has made him anathema to a large part of Washington.

Seven years ago Blanton narrowly escaped being kicked out of Congress. Under the leave-to-print privilege, he inserted in the Congressional Record a long document dealing with an alleged rotten condition in the Government Printing Office. Part of the document was an affidavit containing a liberal sprinkling of obscene language used by one Government employe about another. As printed, the words were thinly disguised by the use of dashes for omitted letters.

From the immaculate gentlemen of the House a cry went up for the punishment of the offender. He had "polluted" the pages of the record; he had "spread a vile and corrupting influence among the youth of the nation;" he had "committed a crime against every law and usage of civilized man." To hear the Hon. Mr. Mondell and the Hon. Mr. Longworth talk, one would have supposed that the Texan deserved boiling in oil.

Mondell brought in a resolution of expulsion. Happily, the counsel of level-headed and temperate men like Luce of Massachusetts and Graham of Pennsylvania, both of them as unlike Blanton as Senator Bruce is unlike Tom Heflin, prevailed. These men showed that Blanton's purpose was good; that no charge could be made against his integrity; that the proposed punishment was altogether out of proportion to his offense.

Blanton himself argued that he had altered the obscene document in exactly the same way that similar documents were altered for publication in court records; that

Lord Asquith's Diary

Russia With an Eye to Spoils Objected to Italy as Ally And Tried to Balk the Greeks

"Timidity" of French Cabinet of 1915 Dwelt on—Admiral Fisher Opposing and Winston Churchill Favoring Dardanelles Attack Clashed Bitterly.

THE beginning of 1915 found the British cabinet still differing over matters of policy and with the inevitable clash of famous personalities continuing behind the scenes. In his diary of the Great War, of which this is the fourth installment, Prime Minister Asquith records with startling frankness the bickerings of military leaders and statesmen.

In addition to the problems of actual warfare on the Western Front, the Cabinet was agitated over diplomatic maneuvers involving other nations. The ill-fated Dardanelles expedition was being launched and there was difference of opinion over the wisdom of the operation, upon which Britain was pinning large hopes of success.

How the Balkan nations could be induced to join the Allies was discussed by the Cabinet. Russia's attitude involving Constantinople was causing apprehension. Asquith expressed frank doubts over the strength of the French Cabinet.

JANUARY 21. The main point at the moment is to do something really effective for Serbia, which is threatened by an overwhelming inrush from the Austrians, reinforced by some 80,000 Germans. If she is allowed to go down things will look very black for us, and the prestige of the Allies with the wavering and hesitating States will be seriously impaired.

I have urged Grey to put the strongest possible pressure upon Rumania and Greece to come in without delay, and to promise that if they will form a real Balkan bloc we will send some of our troops to join them and save the situation. I am sure that this is right and that all our side-shows, Zeebrugge, Alexandretta, even Gallipoli, must be postponed for this.

There is a report that Gen. Castelnau, who is one of the best French Generals, is strongly of opinion that things there have reached a condition of stalemate, that neither side can do more than push a little here and retreat a little there. If so, it seems a criminal waste at such a critical time to put new and good troops into that theater.

Fears Crushing of Serbia.

JANUARY 22.—I have just come back from K's (Kitchener's) dinner to meet Millerand. The other colleagues there were Haldane, Grey, Lloyd George and Winston (Churchill). The French War Minister was, of course, the principal guest. I sat next to him at dinner. We had quite an interesting conversation. He cannot speak a word of English, but was apparently able to follow my French.

He is all against Sir John French's plan and says that Joffre is anxious that we should pour all our troops during the next month into his theater, in order that we may be organized and carry out a really effective coup. Of course, I put to him strongly the Balkan situation and the irreparable disaster which would be involved in the crushing of Serbia. He professed to be quite alive to this. Lloyd George, with the aid of an interpreter, and E. Grey, after dinner, pressed our point.

JANUARY 26.—Freddy Guest appeared, and brought me some rather interesting messages from Sir John. Firstly, the doctor reports that Sir A. Murray is so seriously run down and bad in one lung that he must go home for at any rate a month or two. French would like him to come out again when he has recovered and command the Third Army.

K. and I telegraphed yesterday evening that we approved of Robertson as Murray's successor, and R. has assumed his new functions today. Secondly, an agreement has been come to between Joffre and Sir John for such rearrangements of troops as will give us the whole of the extreme left flank and put us in direct touch with the Belgians.

Dogger Bank Seafight.

JANUARY 27.—(Admiral) Beatty is satisfied that he did immense damage to at least three of the German battle cruisers. He also thinks that he killed and wounded a great number of German sailors and marines.

(This refers to the famous naval battle off the Dogger Bank in the North Sea. On Jan. 24, 1915, a German squadron consisting of the battle cruisers Blucher, Moltke, Seydlitz and Derflinger, under command of Admiral Hipper, was steaming west toward the coast of England. They encountered a British squadron, commanded by Admiral Beatty, which included the warships Lion, Tiger, Princess Royal, New Zealand and Indomitable. In the battle that followed the Blucher was sunk with great loss of life. The other three German warships managed to escape to their base at Heligoland.—EDITOR'S NOTE.)

JANUARY 28.

A personal matter which rather worries me is the growing friction between Winston and Fisher. They both came to see me this morning before the War Council and gave tongue to their mutual grievances.

Churchill and Fisher Clash.

I tried to compose these differences by a compromise under which Winston was to give up for the present his bombardment of Zeebrugge, Fisher withdrawing his opposition to the operation against the Dardanelles.

(Admiral Fisher, with many years of service, was opposed to the ill-fated Dardanelles expedition from the first. As it turned out, he was right.)

When at the Council we came to discuss the latter, which is warmly supported by Kitchener and Grey and enthusiastically by A. J. B. (Balfour) old Jackie (Fisher) maintained an obstinate and ominous silence. He is always threatening to resign and writes an almost daily letter to Winston expressing his desire to return to the cultivation of his roses at Richmond. K. has now taken up the role of conciliator, from which one might think that he was not naturally cut out.

Proposal to Annex Palestine.

I have just received from Herbert Samuel a memorandum headed "The Future of Palestine." He goes on to argue, at considerable length and with some vehemence, in favor of the British annexation of Palestine, a country the size of Wales, much of it barren mountain and part of it waterless. He thinks we might plant in this not very promising territory about three or four million European Jews, and that this would have a good effect upon those who are left behind.

It reads almost like a new edition of "Tancred" brought up to date. I confess I am not attracted by this proposed addition to Hay's Victory.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IT was to be expected that Hay's nomination would be construed as a personal defeat for Reed by his revengeful enemies. But was it? These same enemies criticised him bitterly when he put the soft pedal on the prohibition question in his Houston statement. He wanted to fight the Republican party mainly on its rotten record and favoritism to special big-monied interests. He warned his party that a prohibition fight would split it and permit the enemy to win as it did in the two previous campaigns The convention agreed with him, adopted a neutral prohibition plank and nominated a wet for President and a dry for Vice President.

But Smith's telegram upset the decision of the convention and forced a fight on prohibition as the leading issue of the campaign. As the convention would not recall the nomination, Reed had to accept the situation. He returned to Missouri and opposed the candidacy of Hay, arguing that it would be absurd to send a dry Democratic Senator from Missouri to oppose the main policy of a wet Democratic President. Hay was beaten more than three to one in his own town, St. Louis, and three and one-half to one in the Kansas City district, both Reed strongholds. Hawes, a wet, favored Hay. He certainly did not uphold Smith's intentions. The rural districts nominated Hay. Was there an agreement, as charged, between Hawes, Hay and the State machine that Hay should have the nomination as a reward for his support of Hawes for the senatorship in 1926? It is no wonder that Reed, who has never been personally defeated for office, has "nothing to say" at present about the management of the campaign in Missouri.

JEFF MACKAY.

A Tragic Country.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE letter of Mr. Gazzolo about Italy will be illuminating to many of your readers. It probably reflects the attitude of many Italians of a well known type toward other parts of the world where they have found refuge from the poverty and squalor of their native land. There is no more ludicrous figure than he who swaggers because of the reputation of some remote ancestor whose greatness he has entirely failed to emulate. That Italy has bred some immortals none will deny, but they have seemed unable to impart their spirits to the populace of that country. Columbus sailed under the flag of Spain.

Modern Italy has been and still is a tragic country. Hordes of her citizens have been eager to be shipped to this country where they have unwittingly helped greedy employers impose conditions much worse than they should have been. Italy is now being ruled by a dictator, which is far from a spirited freeman's ideal. As to the war, I do not wish to detract from the record of anyone, but, under the circumstances, to fight was the easiest way out.

A. B. WELSH.

A Republican for Smith.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE writer is normally Republican, that is, votes it straight when he considers the factors are equal. But I will vote for the Democratic nominee for President this fall for the following reasons:

First: The conditions under so-called prohibition are intolerable. The jails are filled; disregard for law has come to such a pass that the officers and courts are quite unable to cope with the crime wave, a vast portion of which can be traced right back to the original crime that was committed in Washington, D. C., when this law was foisted upon us by fanatics during the stress of war hysteria.

It is easily conceivable that this aggravated and outrageous condition can go on, increasing and multiplying its evils until outbreaks and civil strife will be the ultimate result.

With the Republican nominee elected, there can be no hope for relief, for then our representatives in Washington will still be under the heels of their present dictators, the prohibition lobbyists in Washington, who threaten all with political extermination that do not their bidding.

With the election of the Democratic nominee, upon his well-known and outspoken stand on this question, the strangle-hold of the Anti-Saloon League will at once relax, legislators will not be further intimidated or bound, and Al Smith will have no difficulty in putting in effect a plan of free and State rights on the handling of the liquor question that will remove it from the grafters and corruptionists now in control, and will relieve the country of the turmoil and strife engendered by it.

Second: I would vote for Mr. Smith in preference to Mr. Hoover because I believe that upon his known record and standing in his own State and community that he is a better fitted man to handle this high position than is Mr. Hoover.

BUSINESS AS USUAL.

The tradition that business slows down during presidential campaigns is one of those superstitions that tenaciously persist despite the testimony of facts. A historical review recently completed, which delved down into our antiquity, so to speak, conclusively established that "business as usual" was a fairly accurate slogan for the years of our quadrennial elections—much more accurate than the myth of depression.

Certainly business is suffering no ill effects from the present contest. The New York World undertook an inquiry last March among key men of key industries as to conditions then obtaining and general prospects. The consensus was that business was recovering from the decline in the latter part of 1927, with the outlook favorable. That forecast is now broadly confirmed by the corporation returns for the first half of 1928.

The automobile industry is prospering. General Motors has made a new record in production and earnings, and Hupp, Chrysler and Willys-Overland have increased their profits over the corresponding period of last year. The volume of telegraph business, now accounted a barometer, has yielded earnings which show an inconsequential decline of a little more than one-half of one per cent. Steel has done well. The profits of the United States Steel Corporation for the first six months of 1928 were, in round numbers, $47,000,000, as compared with $52,000,000 for the same period a year ago. Bethlehem's net fell from $10,000,000 to $7,000,000. Youngstown Sheet and Tube, and Jones & Laughlin practically maintained the 1927 pace.

Throughout the whole industrial field the reports indicate a healthy condition, in which there is no trace of the legendary blight associated with presidential campaigns.

There are obvious reasons, of course, why that dismal legend, even if it were a fact, would now be defunct. It is the judgment of financial experts, theorists and practicians alike, that, by the Federal reserve law, we have perfected a monetary system almost panic proof. Again, as the Post-Dispatch has previously pointed out, the Democratic party, under Gov. Smith's leadership, has been purged of the Bryan legacy of hostility to business by the selection of the "spokesman of big business," Mr. Raskob, as national chairman, and, by the confidence of men of large affairs in the Democratic candidate's sagacity and conservatism. Further, the scarecrow of the tariff, so long the deadliest argument of Republican spellbinders, has lost its power to terrorize. The one voice in the preliminary din of the pending clash is that of Senator Smoot, whose cries of alarm seem but the feeble echo of paleozoic patter.

So, business, always with the exception of agriculture, is going along normally, with no foreboding as to the future regardless of the November result, but convinced, for the most part, that the farmer must be taken into the fold on terms of equality if our prosperity is to endure.

QUEZON AND THE PHILIPPINES.

Manuel Quezon, president of the Philippine Senate, the most notable patriot of those islands today, is sketched in an article in Living Age, which has been reproduced on this page. Quezon wants absolute independence for his country, he wishes no compromise, and, says the Living Age, "when told that the Filipinos cannot govern themselves, or that Japan will gobble them up if they are turned loose, of course Quezon scoffs. But," continues the article, "he has never found an adequate retort when told that the Filipinos are not economically self-supporting."

If a country as progressive and intelligent as the Philippines has shown itself to be clamors for its freedom and thinks it can support itself without American aid, it would seem entirely incongruous for the United States to ask that country such an impudent question as, "How can you get along without us?" This would appear to be an excellent time to recall the following facts: That the Philippine army had pushed the Spaniards into the City of Manila by the time Dewey sunk the Spanish fleet; that American troops were then landed on Philippine soil by permission of the Philippine leaders; that the Americans, once Manila was taken, took it upon themselves to advance into the interior of the island without Philippine permission; that American troops, making the war, killed more Filipinos in three years than the Spaniards—never known for their gentle tactics—did in 300 years, and that the American army practiced cruelties on their captives which for sheer horror equal excesses usually attributed to savages. We wonder what some of the unenlightened American citizenry would think if Mr. Quezon were to ask the United States what it thought about all that?

THE BALUCHITHERIUM.

It is one of the oddities of paleontology that notwithstanding the awkwardness of the rhinoceros, said by all big game hunters who have gone to Africa to be the most helpless of the animals found there, the type nevertheless persists from the time of the first creatures.

Thus, the baluchitherium, which Prof. Roy Andrews of the American Museum of Natural History has just found in the Gobi Desert, and which he is reported as saying is as big as the Woolworth Building, is built on the lines of the rhinoceros. So, too, is triceratops, the behemoth sometimes digged up in Texas, a rhinoceros. The great saurians, such as diplodocus, growing to a length of 87 feet, and brontosaurus, 65 feet in length and 40 tons in bulk, exceeded in size all the American rhinoceri; nor is it likely that the rhinoceri anywhere were bigger. Nevertheless, it is as if nature, which achieved in time the facility of the deer, the horse and the wolf, was partial to the ponderous rhinoceros. Perhaps, like all mothers, she loves best her most helpless child. Col. Roosevelt found that the eyesight of the rhinoceros is so poor that the hunter can approach within 50 feet of it without the least danger, and Buffalo Jones found the rhinoceros so bleary-eyed and so awkward that he roped one of them and tied it up to a tree. An old cattleman and buffalo hunter, who has acquired his skill in pitting his strength and wits against wild mavericks and wilder bisons, he was so filled with contempt for the rhinoceros that, to use his own expressive term, he "tied them up to keep them out of the way."

The baluchitherium is so called from Baluchistan, where its bones were first found in 1922. There has never been any suspicion among paleontologists that it ever became as large as the Woolworth Building. Later news from Pekin quotes the explorers as saying that it was twice as big as Jumbo. We may find out at length that it was no bigger than Mr. Taft. Science will reserve judgment until the creature has had plenty of time to shrink. It will not, however, doubt the extraordinary nature of the find. Prof. Andrews is too much esteemed as a scientist for that.

THE PUBLIC AND THE PRESS.

What Andre Siegfried has said of the American press in his interesting book, "America Comes of Age," has just been repeated by Boyd Gurley, editor of the Indianapolis Times, before the Institute of Public Affairs at the University of Virginia.

Siegfried thinks the American press has been commercialized until it has largely lost its usefulness to the public, an evil against which we were warned a year ago when Lord Hewart, chief justice of England, spoke before the American Bar Association. There are newspapers, and very successful ones, as active in the public interest as the newspapers ever were. However, that most newspapers are not like this, and that they are unhappily mindful of the cash box in any matter that affects it, is patent. Gurley ought to know. He made only a year ago one of the most courageous fights against the corrupt Ku Klux Klan politics of his state that an American newspaper ever made against any evil, and he knows how much support the Times got from the other Indiana newspapers. It is an experience that every courageous American newspaper has had. Strike for the right upon any front, and most of the newspapers take to their holes. The hardihood of the Springfield, Mass., Republican, and its editor, Waldo Cook, in the Sacco-Vanzetti case, has unfortunately become a rarity in American journalism. Indeed, it is so rare, as was the fight made upon the corrupt Klan in Georgia by Julian and Julia Harris of the Columbus Enquirer-Sun, that the Pultizer committee has to comb the country every year for an outstanding instance of public service by a newspaper.

The defection of almost every big newspaper in the country at the outbreak of the oil scandal was an incalculable moral loss, not to the press alone, but to politics and the people. Led by newspapers like the New York Herald Tribune, which called Senators Walsh and Wheeler "mud-gunners," and the New York Times, which branded the men who were pushing the inquiry as "enemies of lawful and orderly government," most of the newspapers shamelessly put themselves upon the side of corruption in the greatest disgrace the United States had suffered since the republic was established. It can be said to the credit of both the Times and the Herald Tribune that when no apologist could further defend the principals in the scandal they put themselves right. However, the incident had clearly indicated where the American press stands. It stands, except for a few, a very few, notable exceptions, precisely where Lord Hewart and M. Siegfried, and now Mr. Gurley, have said it stands. Within the last six months the Chicago Tribune, which sets newspaper fashions for hundreds of miles around, including almost the entire press of Iowa and Illinois and places as remote as Nebraska, said the Government had tried to "get" Sinclair. As if a self-respecting government could do less than prosecute the man who had debauched it.

No greater loss to free government could be imagined. Jefferson said that where the people can read and the press is free all is secure, but who needs look very far about him to see that the press is no longer free?

A CONTRAST IN BRAINS.

Our progress in the material sciences, as compared with our abysmal backwardness in the field of politics and government, furnishes a perpetual contrast—and a painful one. Every thoughtful American must occasionally ask himself this question: Why does a nation that furnishes experts and pioneers to every other field of endeavor, allow itself to be governed by rank, bungling amateurs, most of them ignoramuses into the bargain?

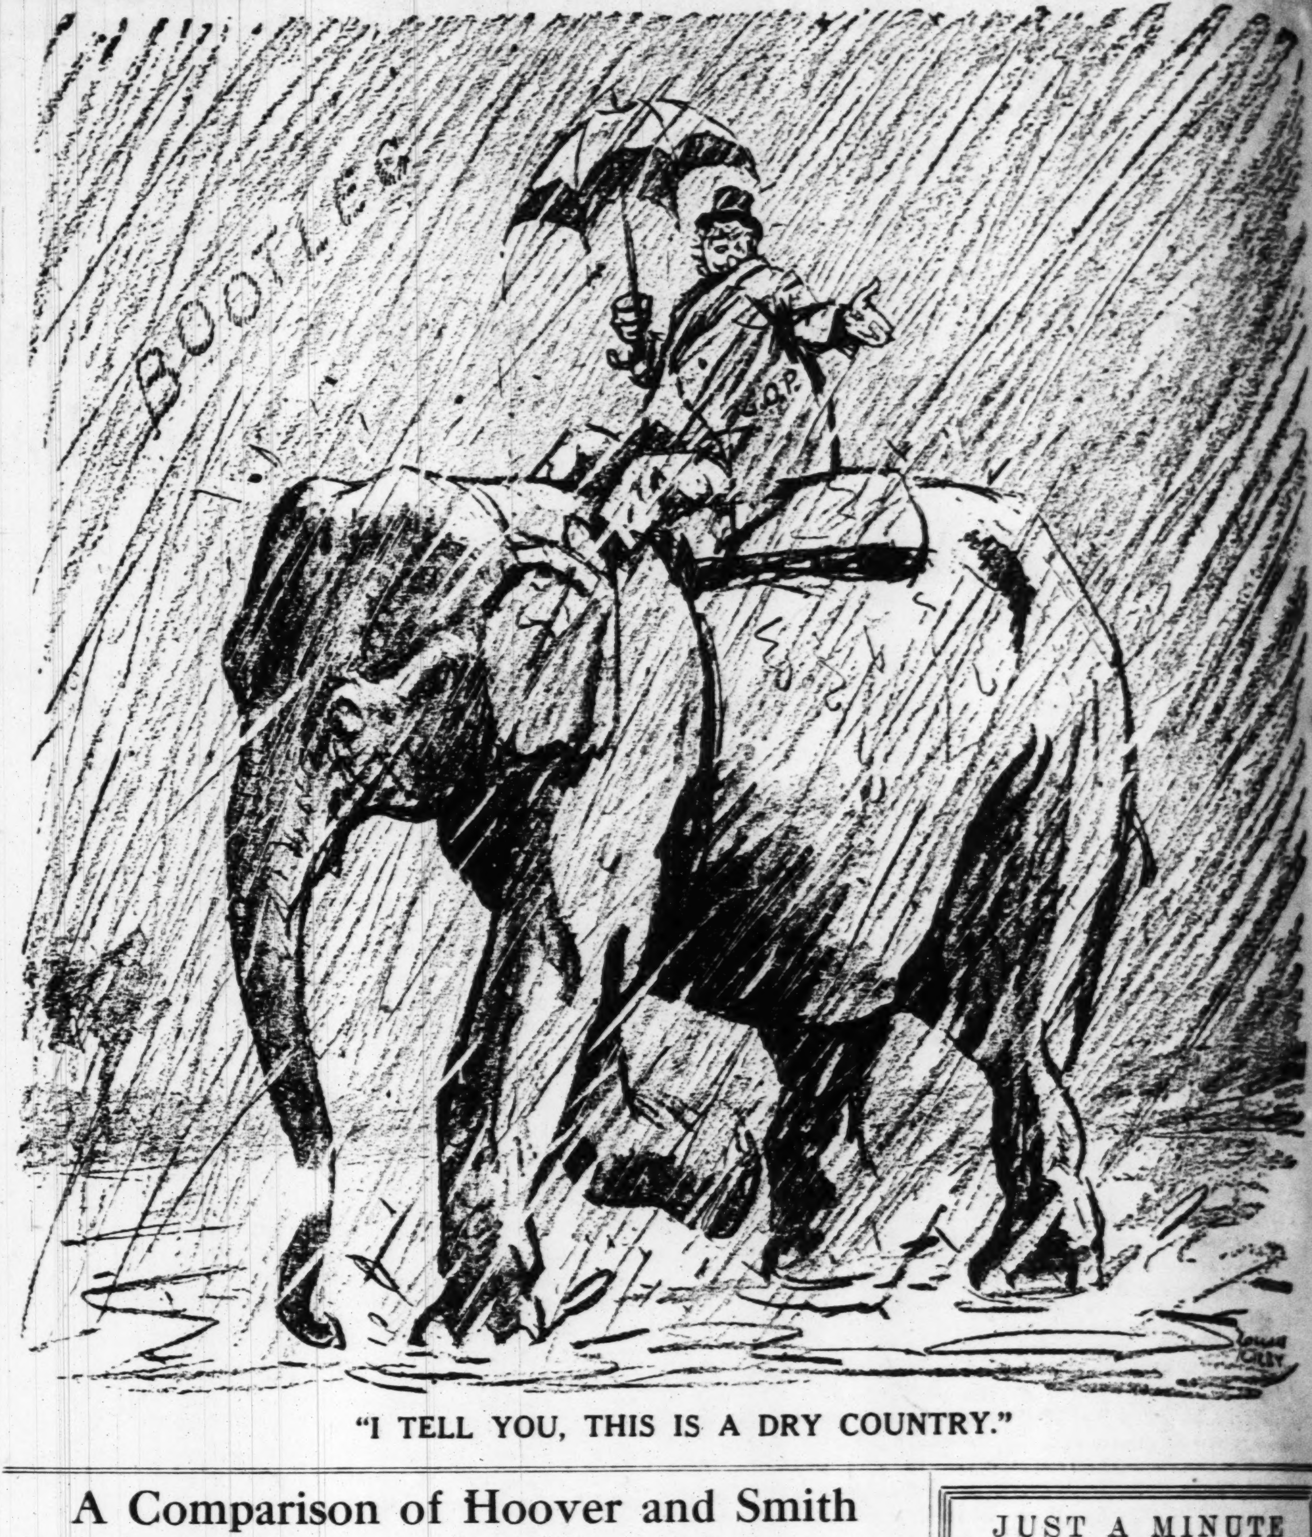
Compare, for example, the attitude taken by our government toward the government of Russia, with the attitude of our scientific men toward the Russian scientists. Although the present Russian Government has existed continuously for 11 years, and gives every indication of existing indefinitely, Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Kellogg persist in denying it recognition. Because the Russians have ideas of government which differ from our own, our governing officials feel obliged to keep up the silly pretense that their government does not exist at all. In other words, they feel obliged to act like stubborn schoolboys, rather than like mature men entrusted with the foreign relations of a great nation.

On the other hand, Russian scientists are invited to attend every important scientific gathering in this country. The fact that they may be Soviet Government officials—as most Russian scientific workers are—very properly makes no difference. The only question is—have they something to teach us? Generally they have had. Recently one of them astonished a gathering of American horticulturists with an exhibit showing the result of certain research conducted in his country. More recently still—only a few days ago—the International Congress of Entomology, meeting at Ithaca, N. Y., listened to a description of the chemical warfare which the Russian Government is waging against insect pests. The Russian methods were pronounced the most modern and effective yet devised.

There is being conducted in Russia today an experiment in government—the most colossal in history. Novel ideas are being tried out on a vast scale. New principles are being tested. Earnest and daring men are striving, by radically new methods, to achieve the common ideal of human brotherhood. And yet the men at the head of our Government can think of nothing better than to stand off and thumb their noses at it! What an exhibition of puerility and intellectual barrenness!

Suppose an epochal experiment in chemistry or physics was being conducted there. Would the chemists and physicists of other countries be content to stand off and shout bad names at the men who were conducting it? Certainly not. They would study its progress with the keenest and most sympathetic interest. They would be avid to learn what it could teach. They would genuinely hope for its success. No respectable scientist would think of throwing spitballs at a colleague merely because the colleague's methods and theories differed from his own.

What our Government needs is the spirit of science—and the brains.



"I TELL YOU, THIS IS A DRY COUNTRY."

A Comparison of Hoover and Smith

With two strong and unusually contrasted men battling for the presidency, public interest is at a high pitch; Quaker vs. Catholic, country born vs. city born; Hoover a globe-trotter, Smith one who has never ventured west of Chicago, these are some of the interesting differences between the two men; but perhaps the sharpest contrast is Hoover's complete lack of vote-getting record against Smith's extraordinary achievements in running for office.

T. R. B. in the New Republic.

IT IS the extraordinary contrast between Hoover and Smith as men that makes their struggle, if not the most important, certainly the most interesting and unusual of the past 40 years. It is, also, literally true that nothing approximately like either has ever before been presented to the people as a presidential candidate. Perhaps that accounts for the unquestioned acceleration of popular interest noted by all observers in all parts of the country. Everybody agrees about that. To my mind, the thing that makes Herbert stand out as unique is not so much that he is the first Quaker ever nominated or the first engineer ever put forward, or the most widely traveled and internationally experienced man to run for President. It is his complete lack of vote-getting record of any sort that makes him a stranger political figure than almost any we have ever had. With, I think, the single exception of Grant, a military hero, Hoover is the only man ever nominated for the highest office who has not previously run for some smaller office. That is one of the things that keeps the politicians of his party from warming up to him. Somehow or other, a candidate for President who has never before run for anything does not click with the practical political boys. They cannot persuade themselves that he "belongs." And when you consider the records of his predecessors along this line, it is not surprising. Look, for example, at the good Calvin, who has run for office 15 separate and distinct times, who, in fact, never did anything except run for office. Look at Harding and McKinley, Roosevelt, Harrison, Taft, even the austere and bewhiskered Hughes—every one of them had at one time or another sought the votes of the people for at least one other office besides the presidency, and most of them for many more than one. But here comes Herbert and forces himself on, or is forced upon, the party as its presidential candidate without ever having tested his powers as a vote-getter even in an assembly district. No wonder he does not ring the bell with the hard-boiled boys of the organization.

And then you turn to Smith, and get the most remarkable contrast. It is not only in the fact that, while Hoover has worked all over the world, Smith has never been west of Chicago; not only that Hoover is the first Quaker and Smith the first Catholic to be nominated for President; not only that Hoover comes from an Iowa farm and Smith from the sidewalks of New York, and is typical of them. In addition to all that, whereas Hoover has no vote-getting record at all, Smith has the most remarkable record of any man in the country. It was that record which forced his nomination at Houston. The opposition crumbled in the face of his demonstrated ability to carry the great State of New York time after time against the best the Republicans could produce. It is that record which endears him to the practical political heart everywhere, and it is exactly that record that Herbert lacks. There is not space to go further into details here, but the more you consider the personalities and the careers of these men, the more it is borne in upon you that they not only differ amazingly from each other, but from all other previous presidential candidates. One common quality they have is strength, which probably accounts for a popular interest in August utterly beyond precedent, one which was really lacking at any time in 1924 or 1920. It takes strong men to stir the people. They can be satisfied with a Coolidge, but they can't get excited about him. And it isn't a question of thought with the masses of the voters, it's a question of feeling. They don't think. They can't.

Actually, these dog days preceding the August acceptance speeches of the candidates are extremely dull ones. Nothing really to stir anyone has happened in a week. I can't say I think the Hon. William Allen White's assault on the Smith record of 20 years ago reflected much credit on him. It was a badly bungled piece of business, and lodges in my mind several well-defined though probably unfounded suspicions. One is that Bill is getting old and slipping a little. Another is that at heart he is not enthusiastic for Hoover, whom, it will be recalled, he likened during the pre-convention days to a "timorous capon" on the outside of a ring watching a cock fight. Another is that he thought he was being helpful to his Kansas friend, Henry Allen, Director of Publicity for the Hoover campaign. And I cannot think of anyone connected with the campaign on either side who needs more help than Henry. The specimens of Henry's publicity which I have seen up to date are not, I must say, calculated to arouse enthusiasm in any breast unless it be the ample one of Mrs. Belle Moskowitz, who plays the role opposite Henry as the Democratic Publicity Director in this great quadrennial political drama upon which the curtain has just gone up.

STIMULATING THE BAROMETER.

From the Brooklyn Eagle.

CLINGING to its ancient habit of voting for a Governor in September, before the bears hole up, Maine retains its repute as the Nation's political barometer. This fact seems duly to have impressed the master minds of the Republican national campaign.

Word now comes that a flying column of orators, headed by Senator Curtis, will shortly set forth from the Republican speakers bureau, to make the national political barometer spell safety for the Republican cause. The curfew simply must not ring tonight for the G. O. P., and first and foremost comes the need of holding Maine in line.

Strenuous efforts of this character may wear the appearance of jiggling the barometer, but consistency must stop somewhere or politics would lose half their thrill. Let us not feel any surprise, then, if the sound of many voices rises presently from the Penobscot to Old Orchard. The discharge of a sufficient volume of hot air into the Maine atmosphere should raise the barometric pressure in that area and consequently should push the indicator up to "Settled Fair," if anything can accomplish this plausible phenomenon.

LAW ENFORCEMENT LEAGUE MEETS.

From the Ohio State Journal.

THE president of the Women's Law Enforcement League of the Franklin Avenue Protective Association, who has just returned from abroad, entertained the ladies of the organization most delightfully at her home yesterday, showing them many handsome and costly articles of wearing apparel which she had cleverly contrived to bring into the country without paying duty. Iced tea was served, and nullificationists were denounced.

AN OLD-FASHIONED GARDEN.

You will notice amid all the songs that we sing of the mother we love and the home
And the girl we are planning to see once again as we vow that no more will we roam,
You will notice, I say, in the midst of these songs a return to a theme as revered
As the home and the mother—we'll throw in the sweetheart—since equal they all are endeared;
They will sing of a garden, an old-fashioned garden, where roses in June are in flame,
Or in bloom, or in bud, or in something like that, and they picture their heart in the same;
This poor heart's in a garden, an old-fashioned garden, no lyrics my story have told.
An old-fashioned beer garden that boasted no roses, a garden where lager was sold.

Oh, how lovely a theme for the writer of songs is that garden of days that are fled.
They might fashion a song full of sorrow and sadness of gardens whose fragrance is dead;
If old-fashioned rose gardens are dear to their heart, and they're fond of recalling dead days
They might fashion a lyric of vanished beer gardens—a lyric of sorrow and praise;
The plain tables, the waiters, the band that gave music, the people frequenting at night
A much better old garden than any they sing in the many sweet lyrics they write;
The old-fashioned rose garden is pleasant to write of, since all that is vanished is dear,
Then a lyric in praise of the garden I love, of the garden of music and beer.

INDIAN VOTE MAY CARRY OKLAHOMA IN FALL ELECTION

Both Parties Give State to Hoover Now, but Democrats Say They Will Win It in November.

CURTIS COUNTED ON TO RALLY HIS RACE

Bidding for Aborigine Ballots, Democrats Will Put Cherokee Spellbinders on the Stump.

By CHARLES MICHELSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., Aug. 18.—If the election were held today, Herbert Hoover would carry Oklahoma. High warriors of both parties privately agree with that conclusion, though they put the emphasis differently.

The Republicans mean that their fight is already won; the Democrats that the situation is a passing phase, a not unfamiliar political development. As Scott Ferris, Democratic national committeeman, puts it, "the Republicans always carry Oklahoma in August and lose it in November."

Of all of the states, Oklahoma presents the most fascinating picture, for in the campaign there they have every complication that any other state has, and, in addition, some peculiarly their own, particularly the Indian conundrum.

The fight is being waged in the old Indian Territory on the theory that Oklahoma will decide the election. Most of the tables being compiled showing states in the East, the Solid South and a few Western states for Smith, with the border states split and Wisconsin Democratic, leave the possibility that Oklahoma's 10 electoral votes may put either Smith or Hoover in the White House.

Indian Vote May Decide.

There will be approximately 25,000 Indian votes, and it is quite on the cards that the red men will determine how these 10 votes will go. But the problem is not so simple as it would have been in the days when a blanket or a bottle of fire-water was the only argument required to win allegiance.

Chief Plenty Booze, the tribal bootlegger, is as much a problem among the braves as anywhere else and the religious issue is discussed in the big wigwams, Moorish, Southern Colonial or French chateau, according to which finishing school the dusky oil heiresses attended, much as it is in the humble homes of the hill and farm whites.

Oklahoma is thrilled at the potential eminence she enjoys in the campaign. For the moment the more usual forms of political phenomena, the Ku Klux, the farm issue, etc., are permitted to sizzle while the two parties try to line up the aborigine vote.

Each side has established an Indian bureau and is impressing into service all the orators of a copper tinge it can find. The Republicans are relying largely on the prestige of Senator Curtis. His grandmother was a Kaw, and he and his daughters and collateral relatives are members of the tribe. All have 800-acre allotments from the government where the grass is longest.

There is no question that the Republican candidate for vice president has a lot of influence with the tribes. Long chairman of the Senate committee on Indian affairs he has helped a lot with the unending series of Indian claims, and has frequently dropped down from neighboring Kansas to foregather with his kinsmen.

Owens' Strength Not All Gone.

The influence of ex-Senator Owen, second-string Republican on the Indian bow, is less easy to estimate. Away back when the future Senator was laying the foundations of his fortune, he had a good deal to do with distributing of Indian finances, and no Indian ever believed he was getting all that was coming to him. Hence the kinship of Owen's Cherokee blood may not have all the drawing power attributed to it. On the other hand, Owen's strength in Oklahoma, apart from the Indian feature, is by no means all gone.

This is contrary to the view that prevails in the East, where his defection from Smith was dismissed without significance. He has not, of course, the power he had when Oklahoma sent him three times running to the Senate but still has a residue among the old Bryan following.

His manager in his days of political activity, Hubert Bollen, who was internal Collector during the Wilson administration, is a thorn in the side of the Smith people. Before the convention he devoted himself to signing up dry Democrats to a pledge to vote against the wet candidate if he were nominated and is said to have 10,000 or more such signatures.

A good many of the signers, according to the organization here are now regretful, largely because of the farm issue. This State, like Missouri, has been educated to the belief that it was Hoover who kept them from the bonanza of war prices for wheat and they did not contemplate Hoover as the alternative when they pledged themselves to vote against Smith.

Lo never was a prohibitionist except under compulsion. When Oklahoma was admitted as a State, Congress insisted she put a bone dry provision into her Constitution because of the old frontier dread of what happened when the red man and red liquor got together.

Democratic Indian Raiders.

Against Curtis and Owen, the Democrats are sending Ex-Representative Carter, Representative Hastings and Judge Huston B. Leehee, former Registrar of the Treasury and ex-Assistant Attorney-General—Cherokees all in greater or less degree. It would seem the closer kinship of Curtis would prevail but the sanguine Democrats say not. The Indian loves to be a Sheriff, Deputy Sheriff or Constable. This State, being normally Democratic his chances for one of these jobs is bound up with that party, hence the assumption that when he sounds his war cry at the polls, the call of the jobs will be stronger than the glory of having a Kaw Vice President.

our responsibilities, but it is a curious illustration of Dizzy's (Disraeli's) favorite maxim that "race is everything" to find this almost lyrical outburst proceeding from the well ordered and methodical brain of H. S.

(Nevertheless, this proposal to establish a Jewish homeland under British mandate in Palestine was ultimately carried out in its general lines with Sir Herbert Samuel as British High Commissioner in Jerusalem.)

JANUARY 30.—We had a second meeting of the war council before dinner on Thursday and dispatched Winston to go and see Gen. French in order that both he and Joffre may realize the importance we attach to being able to send at any rate two divisions to help the Serbians. Winston and Fisher have, for the time at any rate, patched up their differences, though Fisher is still a little uneasy about the Dardanelles.

Easing French Position.

JANUARY 31.—Winston arrived soon after breakfast this morning, traveling in his usual regal fashion across the Channel in a scout cruiser, and then in a special train, which was kept waiting while he spent the morning here. He was away for two whole days, and, as generally happens with him, managed to see everything that was to be seen. He was recognized by the soldiers wherever he went and was cheered by the Welsh regiments and saluted as "Good Old Winston," which gave him much innocent and natural pleasure.

He had four interviews with Sir John French and a pretty hard tussle. In the end they came to a sensible compromise, which both Kitchener and I had rather urged last week, viz., that the purpose of taking over the French lines on the left between us and the sea, which will set free a lot of Joffre's men should send the divisions he needs on the understanding that he will let us have two of them back to send to the Balkans some time toward the end of March, if the situation there makes it in our opinion politic.

Policy Overrides Strategy.

Of course, he thinks, as does Bridges, who was with the Belgians—and neither I nor Winston differs from them here—that from a purely strategic point of view it is a pity to divide your forces instead of concentrating them. But this is one of the cases where policy overrides mere strategy, and if the effect of our stepping in to the active assistance of Serbia is to bring in Rumania and Greece, it would mean in material terms an addition of perhaps 800,000 men to the Allies. Winston is for the moment as keen as mustard about his Dardanelles adventure.

FEBRUARY 8.—I had a rather interesting luncheon at Edward Grey's—Delcasse, Cambon, Kitchener and Winston. Winston was very eloquent in the worst French you or anyone ever heard. We all agreed that the Serbian case is urgent and that we must promise to send them two divisions, one English and one French, as soon as may be to Salonika and force in the Greeks and Rumanians.

Two Danger Points.

We must try to get the Russians to join, if possible, with a corps. Lloyd George told us he has got Sir John French's assent to this but I told K. to send for him and he is coming over tonight in one of Winston's destroyers.

FEBRUARY 9.—We have a war council which Sir John French has come over from France to attend. The main question will be how soon we are to come to the aid of Serbia and whether and how far the French and Russians will join in. Sir John will no doubt kick even at a single division being abstracted from his force, but he must be made to acquiesce in this.

The two danger points are Serbia and Mesopotamia, where we have a rather weak Indian force at the confluence of the Tigris and the Euphrates threatened by what is reported to be heavy Turkish advance.

I cannot help feeling that the whole situation in the Near East may be vitally transformed if the bombardment of the Dardanelles by our ships next week goes well. It is a great experiment.

"French Ministry Timid."

Lloyd George and Montagu have just come back from Paris where they saw all the people who count, and are much impressed by the weakness and timidity of the present French Ministry.

(In the French Cabinet to which Lord Asquith alludes Viviani was Premier; Briand, Minister of Justice and Vice President of the Council; Millerand, Minister of War; Delcasse, Foreign Minister, and Ribot, Minister of Finance.)

It is a kind of coalition government of all the talents, its members hating and distrusting one another, afraid of the Chamber, afraid of the press, and afraid of everything. It is, except, perhaps, for the poor fugitive, exiled Belgians, by far the most unstable Government among all the belligerent Powers. Throughout the financial negotiations the Russians have shown far more backbone and I am not sure that it is not going to be the same in the sphere of diplomacy.

We had a longish war council which lasted from 5 to 7. Sir John French was there as always optimistic, quite convinced that the Germans could not even break through in France or Flanders, certain that the Russians were doing well in the eastern theater, and altogether skeptical as to a German-Austrian attack on Serbia.

Ready to Bridge the Rhine.

He told us amongst other things that Joffre was equipping himself with a full apparatus for bridging the Rhine.

FEBRUARY 10.—A telegram came this morning from Carden, the Admiral, that the business out there i. e. the Dardanelles which was to have been begun next Monday has had to be postponed for a few days as the requisite mine sweepers could not be got together sooner. I hope it won't be delayed any longer, as it is all important as a preliminary to our demarche in the Balkans. So far it has been a well-kept secret.

FEBRUARY 17.—Our Serbian demarche is off for the moment, as the Greeks shy at it, so our eyes are now fixed on the Dardanelles. The Dardanelles affair will begin, we hope, on Friday morning. I am very anxious to see how it develops.

FEBRUARY 18.—I am rather vexed with Winston, who has been tactless enough to offer Sir John French, behind K.'s back and without his knowledge, a brigade of his naval division and two squadrons of his famous armored cars which are being hawked about from pillar to post. K. came to me and complained very strongly both of the folly of the offer itself, and of its being made without any previous consultation with him.

French was evidently very puzzled at what to do with these unwelcome gifts, the naval battalions still being raw and ragged, and the only use he could suggest for the cars being to remove from them their Maxim guns for the use of his troops.

Gloom Over Russian Defeat.

Kitchener takes rather a gloomy view of the Russian situation. The Germans have undoubtedly given them a bad knock and have taken a large number of prisoners.

FEBRUARY 23.—The gale is at last abating in the region of the Dardanelles, and the ships were going to resume this morning their pounding of the forts. Winston is sending off his naval division on Saturday to be at hand when the military part of the operation becomes riper.

FEBRUARY 20.—The Russians are for the moment retiring and out-maneuvered, though one knows they have a curious knack of making good recovery. Lloyd George is anxious to go out as a kind of extra ambassador and emissary to visit Russia and all the Balkan States and try and bring them in. Grey is dead opposed to anything of the kind.

FEBRUARY 27.—Our two rhetoricians, Lloyd George and Winston as it happens, have both good brains of different types. But they can only think talking: just as some people can only think writing. Only the salt of the earth can think inside, and the bulk of mankind cannot think at all.

Greeks Blocked by Russia.

MARCH 1.—Winston is breast high about the Dardanelles, particularly as tonight we have a telegram from Venizelos (Greek Premier) announcing that the Greeks are prepared to send three divisions of troops to Gallipoli.

MARCH 6.—The moment the military and naval situations improve the diplomatic sky begins to darken. Russia, despite all our representations and remonstrances, declines absolutely to allow the Greeks to have any part in the Dardanelles business or the subsequent advance on Constantinople, and the French appear to agree with her.

On the other hand, the Greeks are burning to be part of the force which enters Constantinople, and yet wish to avoid committing themselves to fighting against anybody but the Turks and possibly the Bulgarians. They won't raise a finger for Serbia, and even want all the time to keep on not unfriendly terms with Germany and Austria.

An Eye to the Spoils.

In regard to things abroad there have emerged two most infernal problems. The first is that there are significant indications that before very long Italy may come in on the side of the Allies. That seems natural enough, but what is strange is that Russia strongly objects. She thinks that as Italy kept out from the stress of the war she will demand an exorbitant territorial prize, and that the three Allies should continue to keep the thing entirely in their own hands. Both we and the French take quite a different view.

The other question is the future of Constantinople and the straits. It has become quite clear that Russia means to incorporate them in her own empire. That is the secret of her intense and obstinate hostility to the idea of allowing the Greeks to take any share in the present operations. I do not know how it will be viewed in France or in this country. It is, of course, a complete reversal of our old traditional policy.

MARCH 12. — I have just been reading the Admiral's report of the operation so far. (At Dardanelles) they are making progress, but it is slow, and there are a number of howitzers and concealed guns which give them a good deal of trouble. I think the Admiral is quite right to proceed very cautiously.

Winston is rather for pushing him on. It is characteristic of W. that he has worked out since midnight, and now sent me a time table, according to which Ian Hamilton, by leaving Charing Cross at 5 this afternoon, can reach the Dardanelles by Monday.

MARCH 13.—I think I have already referred to Herbert Samuel's dythyrambic memorandum, urging that in the carving up of the Turks' Asiatic dominion we should take Palestine, into which the scattered Jews would in time swarm back from all quarters of the globe and in due course obtain home rule.

Curiously enough, the only other partisan of this proposal is Lloyd George, who I need not say does not care a damn for the Jews or their past or their future, but thinks it will be an outrage to let the holy places pass into the possession or under the protectorate of "agnostic, atheistic France."

MARCH 18—Before lunch Kitchener came to see me. He is really distressed and preoccupied by the reckless way in which our men expended their ammunition, particularly shells, last week. It works out at two shells per square yard gained.

A Fatal Blunder.

He has just sent me a private letter from Gen. Rawlinson which confirms what we suspected, that the whole operation, successful, as it was, just failed being the most brilliant success in the whole war through the mishandling at a critical moment of one division.

K. also showed me a very interesting telegram from Ian Hamilton, who got to the Dardanelles on Tuesday night. The Admiralty have been oversanguine as to what they could do by ships alone. Every night the Turks, under German directions, repair their fortifications and the channel is sown with complicated and constantly renewed mine fields. The French General, Damade, arrived at the same time as Ian Hamilton and they are going to make a really thorough and, I hope, scientific survey of the whole situation.

Kitchener on Gen. French.

K. spoke to me very confidentially about Sir John French. He says he is not a really scientific soldier; a good, capable leader in the field but without adequate equipment and expert knowledge for the huge task of commanding 450,000 men. K. is going out there at the end of the week.

Meanwhile, here at home, all sorts of things are going on, and it is quite on the cards that I may create a new office for Lloyd George—director of war contracts, or something of the kind—and relieve him of his present duties.

MARCH 22—I had a longish interview with Cambon (French Ambassador), who is rather nervous about the approaching interview between Kitchener, Joffre and Millerand. He wanted to hurry it up, as his Government was apparently afraid that K. may plan out the dispositions and theater of operations of his new armies without due consultation with them.

K has since seen Cambon, and he will probably go to France for the interview at the end of this week. He is going tomorrow to Dover to dine with Sir John French, who is coming over for a few hours.

Another installment of Lord Asquith's diary will appear in an early issue of the Post-Dispatch.

The Prince of Wales

Defends the Monarchial Theory

Not in a series of dry political lectures, but in a vivid biography which has much of the drama and suspense of fiction. "The Life Story of the Prince of Wales," an official biography bearing the royal imprimature through Sir Godfrey Thomas, chief secretary to the Prince, is a sincere effort to defend the monarchial system of government in the life of the most attractive figure which the World War left in succession to a throne.

The idea that democracy is, after all, only another theory of government and not necessarily the infallible way of ruling peoples is a thought that may be startling. However, aristocrats hold another ideal of government and they have taken this opportunity to defend their point of view.

In all fairness, communists, socialists, labor leaders, statesmen, and students of political economy could read what royalty has to say in its own behalf in Former Missourian Suicide in West.

By the Associated Press.

VISALIA, Cal., Aug. 17.—Len Barker, 46 years old, high school janitor, killed himself today by hanging himself in the bathroom of his home. The body will be taken to Barker's former home, Everton, Mo., for burial.

First English Country Club.

STOKE POGES, England, Aug. 18.—Stoke Court, the ancestral home of William Penn overlooking the picturesque church where the poet Thomas Gray obtained inspiration for his "Elegy in a Country Churchyard," is soon to be converted into a country club. It will be the first country club in England. This decision has been arrived at as a means of preserving the historic estate which has been threatened by high death duties and taxation with destruction.

war with Germany is re-started as the armistice has come to an end; and we do not appear to have anything at all on the front; the army is demobilized, guns and materials all left to fate and the advancing enemy! What disgrace and horror-

"What a Nightmare!"

February 12.—Telegrams that came today contain the information that the Bolsheviks, or, as they call themselves, the sovnarkom, are forced to accept peace on the degrading terms of the German Government, because the enemy's troops are advancing and there is nothing to hold them back! What a nightmare!

February 14.—We shall have considerably to decrease our spendings on food and servants, for the chamberlain's office is to be closed as from the first of March, and moreover, the right to use one's own capital is to be limited to 600 rubles a month each. All these last days we have been occupied in calculating the minimum on which we could make ends meet.

February 16 (March 1 new style).—Began reading "Anna Karenina" today. The weather was cold, windy in the morning, but later the sun came out. Today we start living according to the new, restricted regime. After tea rehearsed our play.

February 17 (March 2).—Snowing in the afternoon, weather mild. Swept the paths and the ice-hill, and sawed wood. At 9 o'clock had evensong.

On the fifteenth I received a letter from Olga A.

February 18 (March 3).—At 11:30 had a service. The day was beautiful, warm, quite springlike; it thawed in the afternoon. Sat with Rendel. Worked in the garden and sawed wood. Rehearsed after tea. Had a performance in the evening.

Accepts Gifts of Food.

Feb. 20 (March 5).—Saw through the window this morning that our ice hill has been destroyed; it appears that the idiotic committee of our company decided to do this in order to prevent our mounting on it and looking over the fence! Did some sawing in the outhouse. Wrote to mamma.

Feb. 28 (March 13).—Did a lot of sawing with Tatiana. Latterly we have been receiving butter, coffee, cakes for tea, and jam from various kind people who have heard of the decrease of our expenditure on food. So touching!

March 2.—These days of last year in Pskoff and in the train come back to my memory! (the date of his abdication of Nicholas). How much longer will our unfortunate motherland be tortured and torn asunder by external and internal foes? It seems sometimes as if one had not the strength to bear any more, one does not even know what to hope for, what to wish.

But everything is in the hands of God! His divine will be done!

Worst Pest And Faithful Watchdog Lost

he could not show conditions in the Government Printing Office without exhibiting the document: and that, moreover, it was extremely unlikely that women and children in more than a negligible number would have seen the article if the House hadn't kicked up a ruction about it.

He made a personal appeal also. He told of his hard life on a farm, of his struggle for an education, of his gradual rise to a district judgeship and finally to a seat in Congress.

Cold Steel Has No Terrors for Him.

It was, in places, a blatant and bombastic speech. "I am a man," he said, "who never squawks when an adversary's cold steel pierces my vitals." It was also an unrepentant speech. "I do not apologize to you," he said, "because in my inner consciousness of heart, with God as my witness, I do not believe that I have done wrong or that I have done anything more than my duty."

The speech showed Blanton at his worst and best. His antagonists lashed him for his refusal to be chastened. The House chamber rang with orations on the glories of womanhood and the sanctity of little children. When the vote was taken, there were 204 ayes and 113 nays—not the majority of two-thirds required for expulsion. The House then passed without any dissent a resolution of censure, and Speaker Gillett called the Texan before the bar of the House and solemnly rebuked him.

The House will be a quieter place without Blanton. The atmosphere will be much more genteel. Perhaps its business will be transacted more expeditiously. But—with all due deference to the majority opinion—there are elements of loss to the public interest as well as the elements of gain in Terrible Tom's passing.

If a watchdog helps to keep away burglars, why quarrel with his manners?

Speech by Smith Over KSD Next Wednesday

Hook-up of More Than 90 Stations for Acceptance Address Will Entail Use of 57,000 Miles of Telephone Wire Centering in Albany.

MORE than 57,000 miles of wire will be used in hooking up KSD and the other 90 odd stations that will broadcast the notification ceremonies for Gov. Alfred E. Smith and the Democratic presidential nominee's acceptance speech next Wednesday evening, Aug. 22.

The broadcast is scheduled to begin at 5:30 p. m. St. Louis time and to continue until 7 o'clock.

Microphones will pick up Smith's words as he speaks from the steps of the New York State Capitol at Albany and carry them to a network of more than 70 stations, including KSD and KWK, St. Louis, associated with the National Broadcasting Co. and to another network of at least 19 Columbia System stations.

Stations broadcasting the Smith address will be virtually the same as those that put the Hoover acceptance address on the air, including the NBC Pacific Coast chain.

Short-wave transmitters at Schenectady, N. Y.; Pittsburg, Pa.; Cincinnati, O.; New York and San Francisco and Los Angeles will broadcast the speech for foreign listeners.

Marley Sherris, veteran NBC announcer, who took a prominent part in the broadcasting of the Republican and Democratic national conventions, will announce for the big networks. Maj. J. Andrew White, president of the Columbia Broadcasting System, is to announce for his chain of stations, which includes KMOX, St. Louis.

John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, is to act as chairman at the Smith notification ceremony.

Led by bands of the New York State National Guard, the gathering will sing "The Star-Spangled Banner." The invocation will follow. Maj. John Boyd Thacher of Albany then will be introduced and will speak briefly.

SENATOR KEY PITTMANN of Nevada, chairman of the Notification Committee, will speak, delivering to Gov. Smith formal notice of his selection by the Democratic party.

Gov. Smith will formally accept the nomination, and, in a speech which is expected to last 45 minutes, will outline his policies and attitude on national issues.

In addition to the wires carrying the broadcast, there will be communication circuits paralleling the networks. These wires, manned by Morse operators, will enable radio engineers to check the operation of the complicated circuit.

The broadcast will be distributed from three points by the NBC. Radio stations in the east will receive the broadcast from the main control of the NBC studios in New York. A transcontinental wire will take the broadcast west to Chicago and San Francisco whence it will be routed to stations in the Middle West, the Rocky Mountains and the Pacific coast. A special wire will carry the broadcast from Albany to New York.

In addition to the microphone for the principal speakers, other microphones will be set up to pick up band music and the roar of the crowd expected at the ceremonies.

NBC stations which will broadcast the Democratic notification ceremonies include: WEAF, New York; WEEI, Boston; WTIC, Hartford; WJAR, Providence; WTAG, Worcester; WCSH, Portland, Me.; WFI, Philadelphia; WRC, Washington; WGY, Schenectady; WGR, Buffalo; WCAE, Pittsburg; WWJ, Detroit; WLW, Cincinnati; WGN, Chicago; WEBH, Chicago; KSD, St. Louis; WOC, Davenport; WHO, Des Moines; WJZ, New York; WBZ, Springfield; WBZA, Boston; WHAM, Rochester, N. Frost Declares That Television Is Only in Experimental Stage

President of Radio Manufacturers' Association, Speaking in St. Louis, Tells Public Not to Be Mislead Into Expecting It Soon.

A WARNING to the public not to expect practical television in the home for a long time to come was given by Herbert H. Frost, president of the Radio Manufacturers' Association in an address delivered at a radio dealers' banquet in St. Louis Wednesday night. Frost spoke as the head of an association whose members manufacture approximately 95 per cent of the radio receivers on the American market.

"Television is the next great step in the development of the radio art," Frost said the other day in New York on his return from a meeting at Buffalo, of the Board of Directors of the R. M. A. "But the public must not be misled by experiments being carried on at this time. Practical television is still a few days away." He said also that a special committee of the R. M. A. had made a report that would be the basis for a definite statement by the R. M. A. on television defining the attitude of the radio industry.

Speaking in St. Louis on television, Frost said: "I think I have seen all the television demonstrations that have been made in this country. I remember the best of them. I looked into a tiny window and I saw something. 'That's a boat,' explained the demonstrator. 'I'm glad you told me.' I replied. 'I thought it was a horse.' That is the status of television today.

"Television is coming. It is not to be pooh-poohed. But at present it is in a highly experimental state. There are 10 to 15 television systems. None of them is interchangeable with another. The whole television proposition bristles with problems—problems of apparatus, of scanning, of light cells, of broadcasting signals and so on—to say nothing of the millions that must be invested before anything practical can result.

"We must be very sure that, because of over-enthusiasm of experimenters or ill-advised publicity, people are not misled into expecting television soon. It is the absolute truth that television is still a laboratory experiment and not even perfected in the laboratory."

Frost told the dealers at the banquet that the level of broadcasting was steadily rising, that competition between the chains, and between the better individual stations, was growing so intense that stations giving poor programs were losing

Now a Two-Deck Motor Bus With All Home Comforts

Palatial Coach With Berths, Dining Service, Dressing Rooms and Lavatories, Soon to Travel Highways.

THIRTEEN compartments for passengers, sleeping quarters for 26, complete dining service, lavatory and other unusual features are found in a new motor transport bus which has just been exhibited for the first time at the Pacific Southwest Exposition in Long Beach, Cal. The coach is the ultimate in motor bus design and probably the longest of any ever to be placed in operation on the highways.

Major features of construction and design are: Overall length, 34 feet 6 inches; width, 8 feet; height, 10 feet 3 inches; weight, 14,000 pounds, and the cost, $30,000.

The new bus, aptly termed the "Nitecoach," at first glance appears to be a great land submarine on pneumatic tires, for it is gracefully streamlined and it has portholes like a man-o'-war, as well as windows. There is no hood, as on the ordinary motor stage, the portion of the body containing the driver's compartment being built directly over the motor. From tapered nose to broad overhanging rear observation deck, the Nitecoach, despite its bulk, is as graceful as a yacht.

The entrance is an arched doorway near the front of the car, opening immediately on a compact kitchen, part of the regular equipment. This section opens into a high-roofed center aisle running the length of the car, on either side of which range the 13 compartments of the upper and lower deck.

The mystery of where so many passengers can sit and sleep is cleared up when the car is examined. By a most ingenious arrangement, the upper and lower compartments are made to interlock, reducing the height of the car to only a few inches above the ordinary single-deck stage. The center aisle is located halfway between the floors of upper and lower decks, so that it is but a short step down or up to either level

Headroom of center aisle is 7 feet from floor to ceiling, and the aisle is 22 inches wide. Heavy sliding curtains give privacy to each compartment at night. With curtains drawn aside, each compartment is revealed as a little stateroom, with two deep-cushioned chairs facing each other and a wide three-paneled window extending its full length. In each there is a built-in thermos jug of ice water and a gleaming nickel wash basin with running water. Two sliding drawers, measuring 14 by 17 inches, are for clothing and personal effects. There is space where a suitcase may be stored, making it completely accessible at all times.

At night the porter swings up the back of each seat, which is hinged at the top, until the lower ends join, thus forming a single bed 24 inches wide. This makes the upper berth. From under the seats the porter produces a mattress and lays it over the cushioned seat backs, adding linen and blankets to make a snug bed. The lower berth is just as easily made up. The lower portion of each seat is in two sections, which are arranged along the floor to form a continuous cushion. With the addition of mattress, sheets, blankets and pillow, this also becomes a comfortable bed. The length of each berth is ample, being 6 feet 4 inches.

While berths are being made up by the porter, passengers can remain comfirtable in extra seats at both front and rear of the car. Including the small folding seat in each dressing room, the Nitecoach has a total seating capacity of 44, although 26 is considered a full load.

To Unveil Road Monument Sept. 17, at Lexington, Mo.

Statue, Depicting Intrepidity of Pioneer Mothers, One of 12 to Be Erected on National Old Trails Highway From Coast to Coast.

ON Monday, Sept. 17, the fourth of 12 monuments commemorating the westward advance by pioneers a number of decades ago, which are being erected in the 12 States bordering the National Old Trails Highway, will be unveiled at Lexington, Mo., by Mrs. John Trigg Moss, chairman of the Old Trails Committee of the Daughters of the American Revolution. The latter society is co-operating with the N. O. T. Highway Association in putting the monuments along the route of the highway from coast to coast.

The monuments, facing west, depict a determined-looking pioneer wife headed across the plains on foot, a baby in her arms, a child clutching her skirt. The figures are life size, and are erected upon a tall base high above the road.

Aside from their significance as perpetual reminders of the intrepidity of the hardy men and women who made a trail across the trackless spaces of the frontier West, the monuments are of especial interest since both Mrs. Moss, who designed the sketch for the original sculpture of the monuments, and August Leinbach, the sculptor, are St. Louisans.

Two monuments already have been erected—at Springfield, O., and Wheeling, W. Va. The third will be unveiled at Council Grove, Kan., on Sept. 7, and, following the dedication of the one at Lexington, Mo., on Sept. 17, three more are to be unveiled at Lamar, Colo., Albuquerque, N. M., and Springerville, Ariz., on Sept. 24, 27 and 29, respectively. The sites for those in other states have not been decided upon, and these statues probably will not be erected until late this fall.

By and large, the National Old Trails Highway is the most traveled and most historic of transcontinental routes across the United States. It is composed of Indian trails, Colonial pikes, military roads of Revolutionary years, post roads, stage coach routes and the byways over which cumbersome covered wagons forged westward years ago.

Starting in Maryland, the highway crosses the states of Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona and California. In each of these states one monument will stand

Prosperity Foreseen for Car Industry

LOOKING forward to active automotive markets in the last half of 1928, officials of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, express the view that this year will be one of the best the industry has ever enjoyed.

The first six months of 1928 saw a production of 2,326,877 units, being second only to the former high total of 2,483,463 units the first half of 1926. It is pointed out that this volume of business has given the industry a running start which may result in a record year and at least insures a highly prosperous condition. Popularity of new models, the strong position of dealers' used car activity and the stepping up of Ford output are cited as factors of prosperity for the next six months.

Even July held strong in production, with an estimated total of 422,000, which was almost equal to that of June. Production in the summer usually shows a marked seasonal letup, but this year the pace has continued at nearly the same rate as this spring. In fact, production is proceeding at a record pace for this season.

Leaders in the industry believe that trade will continue strong throughout the year. Ford's total will mount rapidly, as he is just beginning to get back to normal production. This will have a marked effect on the totals for the last half of the year.

Style has continued to play an important role in the motor business. There has been a strong public interest in the new offerings presented in the past few weeks.

Style element will always be a factor in the motor business and the opinion is expressed that there will always be a place for small as well as large producers. Some people prefer to have automobiles which are like those of their neighbors, whereas others desire cars of a type different from the mass of vehicles on the road. Furthermore, there is always an opportunity for the competent manufacturer who can develop an individual, beautiful car at a price which the public can afford to pay.

The used car market has been much strengthened by two conditions. The first is that many families are on a two-car basis, and are adopting the policy of keeping the old car for secondary use. The second factor is that the public has gradually come to realize that it cannot expect to get high values in trade for used automobiles after vehicles have been in service two or three years.

A Trip Into The Arizona That Is Not Hot and Dry

By ROBERT H. HALL,
Automobile Editor.

ARIZONA to the uninitiated suggests sand dunes, arid stretches on which sagebrush, cactus and prickly pear are the only vegetation; great mountain ranges with red, forbidding walls; the lonely Painted Desert and probably Grand Canyon! But this is not the Arizona the writer is thinking of.

Picture, if you can, an Arizona of lofty, snow-capped mountains, whose pinon-clad sides form the walls of deep, cool valleys; of great lakes and swift fish-stocked streams; an Arizona which in daytime is pleasantly warm, at night so cool that several blankets are needed to keep the body warm. That is East-Central Arizona. That is the Apache National Forest, the White Mountain and the Tonto Basin regions.

I am not going to try to describe the journey over the Santa Fe Trail across the prairies of Kansas nor across scenic-fickle Northern New Mexico, where sometimes that old cattle trail flirts with high mountain passes, then dips down into sage country, or meanders across range dotted by sheep and cattle.

Supposing, as a matter af variety, we meet in the hamlet of Holbrook—on the Santa Fe-National Old Trails, main transcontinental California route—1386 miles southwest of St. Louis, the point of departure for the Navajo and Hopi Indian reservations to the north, California to the west and the Mormon settlements to the south. We'll head southeast out of the village, traveling over U. S. Highway No. 20, through the new section of modern places of business and pretty homes, then through that portion erected by the pioneers where the dust of our passing is the dust of crumbled adobe buildings and rottening log structures.

LEAVING the outskirts of the village, our route leads over rolling lowlands of greasewood and sage. The highway is of excellent gravel, and, at the altitude of 5000 feet, provides comfortable, pleasant driving virtually the year 'round.

Eighteen miles on the way, the southwestern part of the third National Petrified Forest is entered. Now for awhile our eyes are busy scanning acres upon acres of flinty monuments, perpetual reminders of a magnificent forest which grew there ages ago. Some of these shafts rise gaunt and dismal into the air; others have wearily fallen to the wayside. In color they are red and yellow, blue and green—startling to the eye. But their significance—of great forests decayed and gone—is the thing that is indelibly impressed upon one's mind.

Bearing away from the forest, the grade becomes steep and we climb higher. The hill slopes are pine-clad, the vegetation greener, more luxurious. Soon the Little Colorado River is approached and crossed. The climb becomes even quicker now, and, at the hamlet of Hunt, six miles beyond the river, we are a thousand feet higher than when we slipped through the outskirts of Holbrook.

Now, at Hunt, we'll stop a while to get a bit of exercise and to determine whether road conditions will permit our taking the 10-mile cross-country trail to St. Johns, or whether it will be best to continue south on U. S. 20 to Concho, thence east to St. Johns. Probably the latter route will be selected, for, though twice as long, it is as excellently made as the stretch out of Holbrook.

Continuing south from St. Johns, our journey is not only over U. S. 20, but also over the recently established Coronado Trail, a route of great historic significance. Francisco Vasquez de Coronado, inspector of New Spain, later Governor of New Gallicia, always intrepid conquistador, followed this trail from Old Mexico in 1536, in search of the fabled Seven Cities of Cibola. We'll follow this highway now to Springerville, 30 miles beyond—60 miles from Holbrook.

The going is upward toward the summit of the White Mountain range, which we have just begun to climb. We'll climb more than 3000 feet before Springerville is reached. And what an experience! Miles now are swiftly left behind. Never a homestead breaks the primeval glory of the virgin mountain land. Turn a bend in the highway, there's a glorious valley stretching below and a limpid stream runs through its dark, green

RIGHT TURNS NOT ALLOWED IN OHIO CITY

Peculiar Regulations in Springfield Puzzle Tourists.

Motorists from Missouri or Illinois, accustomed to "No Left Turn" traffic signals, find themselves in trouble in some Ohio cities, especially Springfield, if they have occasion to leave the main highway. "No Right Turn" is the rule at busy street intersections in Springfield. But one can make all the left turns he wants to.

Two St. Louisans, bound for Washington over United States Highway No. 40, desired to send a telegram from Springfield, O. By the time they had parked their car near the telegraph office, which was on a side street to the right of the direction they were traveling, they had barely escaped collisions, had been "bawled out" by several policemen and other motorists, and were in a state bordering on nervous prastration. Nor did it make them feel any happier to have Springfield people tell them how much simpler, easier and safer motoring was when right turns were forbidden.

Nearing the business section of Springfield, one notices diamond-shaped posts bearing the warning "No Right Turn." But by pulling out to the extreme right of the crossing and waiting for the light to change he may make a left hand turn and still always travel in the direction indicated by the green signal.

For example, supposing an autoist is going east and wishes to go north. He cross the street two-thirds of the way, pulling out to the extreme right until he is nearly in the pedestrians' safety zone, and awaits the light change. When the green light allows traffic to travel north and south he continues on his way.

Should he want to make a "U" turn, he pulls out again, going the other direction and waits for the east-west clear signal.

If several drivers wish to make this turn, each pulls over as close to the rear of the car ahead as possible. Under such circumstances a right hand turn is not feasible; it would be necessary for a motorist to break through this line of waiting cars.

Then, too, supporters of the plan say, a pedestrian need not worry, as he is sure that a car will not turn while he is crossing, supposedly in safety, and run him down.

At times the Springfield rules slow traffic decidedly. During a busy hour many cars will have pulled aside to make a turn and several of these are along the curb back in the line of cars forbidden to proceed. By moving up they tie up the line having the right of way, and if they wait it takes several light changes before they are able to proceed.

The traffic system use varies greatly in Ohio, other cities using something of the same method as Springfield with slight changes. Ohio motorists find themselves constantly in difficulties with traffic police when visiting other cities.

"Hard to get used to, but not dangerous," seems to be the concensus in Springfield.

partments allows a private dressing room for each directly adjoining. This space is 6 feet 4 inches high, permitting occupants of the compartment to stand upright while dressing. It is a little over three feet long, and while only 18 inches wide, the berth space gives additional room to make dressing easy. A plate glass mirror above the wash basin is an additional convenience. The dressing room is curtained off from the aisle and is provided with a folding seat.

In the compact kitchen in the front of the car the steward prepares hot lunches on order at any time of the day. They are served on large trays to passengers in their compartments. The chef's culinary equipment consists of a range, refrigerator, coffee percolator, food containers, space for all cooking utensils and tableware. Aisle space at the entrance of the car gives plenty of elbow room in the witchen while the car is in motion and the door closed.

Lavatory is located at rear of car. Chemical tanks take care of all waste until division points are reached on cross-country runs.

The Nitecoach carries a crew of three—driver, steward and porter—assuring prompt service for all needs of passengers.

The Nitecoach is different in construction from any previous type of motor stage. It has no chassis, as the word is generally understood, the frame and body being built as a unit. For additional strength they are riveted together, not bolted. The heavy frame of I-beam steel is seen on the outside of the car, extending clear around as a graceful band or belt line. Passengers on the lower deck are inside this sturdy barrier, practically impregnable to outside shocks.

The motor in the Nitecoach is exclusive in design and construction. It develops over 110 horsepower, ample for sustained power over all kinds of highways, and can be removed for repairs or replacements.

The Nitecoach is being manufactured in the shops of the Pickwick System at Los Angeles. The firm operates bus service over the entire United States, and expects soon to have busses of the type in service from coast to coast.

SPECIFICATIONS OF NEW FORD WASP PLANE

All-Metal Monoplane Has Three Motors of 425 H. P. Each

DETROIT, Aug. 18.—Specifications of the new Wasp-engined Ford tri-motor plane which was given its test flights at Ford Airport last week, have been announced by William B. Mayo, chief engineer of the Ford Motor Co.

The new all-metal monoplane is similar in design to the Whirlwind Ford tri-motor plane, which has been in production for some time at the Stout Metal Airplane factory, a division of the Ford Motor Co.

The wing span on the new plane is 78 feet, an increase of four feet over the other type. It is designed to carry 14 passengers, in addition to the pilot and mechanic.

The plane is powered with three Wasp motors manufactured by the Pratt & Whitney Co. Each motor develops 425 horse-power, giving the plane a total of 1275 horse-power.

In performance tests, conducted under the direction of John Collings, chief test pilot for the Ford Motor Co., the new plane showed a cruising speed of 115 to 120 miles per hour, and a top speed of from 135 to 140 miles an hour.

The new plane is priced at $65,000 ready for delivery at the factory.

"The new plane showed up well in the tests," Mayo said. "It gets off the ground in about three-quarters of the time taken by the other tri-motored plane of which it is a larger edition.

"We plan to build the new Wasp-engined job at the rate of two a month at first. The Whirlwind Ford tri-motor planes are being produced at the rate of two a week at the present time."

The Wasp-engined plane consumes 60 gallons of gasoline per hour at cruising speed, according to Mayo.

Col. E. A. Deeds of Dayton, one of the directors of the Pratt & Whitney Co., has purchased one of the first planes of the new type to be turned out. He will use the plane for business and pleasure purposes.

Bumpers a Necessity.

Not so long ago bumpers were considered an extra accessory and few cars had them. Today, with increased and limited parking space, they are a necessity and are standard equipment on a few of the better cars. Oldsmobiles not only are equipped with bumpers at the factory, but they are mounted in rubber and chrome plated to give additional wear.

28,538 MILES OF NEW STATE ROADS IN 1928

Highway Departments to Expend $1,307,821,000 on Construction.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—Forty-five state highway departments will construct 28,538 miles of good roads during 1928, the American Road Builders' Association stated today. Both states and counties are now in the midst of the most elaborate road construction program in history, it is stated.

Three states have not reported their programs. They are Connecticut, Virginia and West Virginia. It is thought that these three states will add at least 1000 miles to the year's state highway program. The number of miles of road under construction on the county system is not known.

Expenditures during the year will total approximately $1,307,821,000 in the 46 states reporting their estimated appropriations for both county and state work. Connecticut and West Virginia did not report. The total expenditures during 1927 for all states was $1,123,607,055, or $184,216,661 less than will be expended in 46 states during 1928.

The association pointed out that the cost of good roads this year will be less than eight-tenths of 1 cent for each mile traveled by motor vehicles, and that a good road saves from 2 to 3 cents per mile in cost of vehicle operation.

Vast resources back up . . . PEERLESS

New 1929 Models

IN this day and age people want to know just what is back of a series of new car models. It isn't enough that the cars be beautiful—that they perform in a way past all belief.

But, are they the offspring of a dependable, year-after-year, established company?

Peerless is 27 years old. For 27 years the name Peerless has been associated with the finest of fine cars. And now in August 1928 just where does Peerless stand?

Get this; Peerless has resources of over $9,000,000. Not a dime does it owe any bank. Not a cent of bonded indebtedness against it. And there's $2,000,000 cold cash in the bank.

Its credit is of the very highest. Its outlook far brighter than ever before.

With a great, modern factory (over 750,000 square feet of floor space) it is given over entirely to producing new Peerless 1929 models.

Not a dollars worth of old equipment aging in storage—not a single old model in stock to be moved out.

But, every ounce of energy—every dollar of surplus turned in behind the new 1929 models.

For a generation Peerless has kept faith with American motorists and turned out cars of exceptional performance and dependability. And now in the new 1929 Six-81 and Six-91 Peerless again "Keeps Faith." But this time, Peerless even betters Peerless.

Drive one of these new models and see for yourself.

At St Louis

THE Curtiss-Robertson Airplane Manufacturing Co. has entered two of its "Robins"—three-place inclosed monoplanes with OX-5 motors—in the New York-to-Los Angeles race, to begin at New York on Sept. 5.

The pilots are to be Dan Robertson and Stancill Gilley. Robertson, although still in his early twenties, is one of the old heads at Lambert-St. Louis Field. He flew a "Robin" in the National Reliability Tour.

"Bud" Gilley, another youngster learned the flying game as an army cadet and recently has been pilot for Bill Chaudet, the brake service man who keeps his own Travel-Air at Lambert Field. Gilley and Robertson will leave New York about Sept. 1, Robertson carrying a mechanic and Gilley a load of spare parts.

Crash Stresses Need for Code.

In the crash of Alfred J. Kuechenmeister at Lambert Field Thursday in which one of his passengers was killed and another critically injured, pilots see the need for more stringent piloting regulations in the Federal code and the absolute necessity for a State code of aeronautics such as New York and Pennsylvania have.

Under the Federal law a pilot must have at least 200 hours in the air to carry passengers for hire or reward, but any licensed pilot may carry passengers merely as a favor. Thus a pilot holding the lowest classification, a private license, may carry passengers, even in interstate traffic, providing he does not accept pay or reward.

It is generally agreed that the average flyer does not gain complete mastery of his ship under 50 hours of solo flying, so that many pilots are of the opinion flyers should not be allowed to carry passengers until they have that much time in the air. Such an amendment would work a slight hardship on private pilots, but would vastly increase the safety of passenger flying.

Incidentally, pilots are almost universally of the opinion that the States also should have aeronautic codes. The Federal law applies only to airmen engaged in interstate flying.

At Lambert Field, however, the manager, O. E. Scott, has enforced a regulation which allows only licensed transport pilots—flyers with more than 200 hours—to carry passengers for hire, so that the visitor who purchases a ride is safeguarded. Over the passengers who ride with pilots as non-pay passengers the management has no jurisdiction.

Monocoupe Goes Through Storm.

Art Heman and Sam Lambert made a flight to Mexico, Mo., Thursday in one of Lambert's monocoupes. On the return trip they flew through a heavy rainstorm, but Heman reported that the new Velie motor in the plane functioned perfectly. A Lambert Field Julius Johannpeter, the air mail and National Guard pilot, took over the controls from Heman and piloted Lambert to Parks Airport, where he had left his automobile before departing for Mexico.

35th to Begin Encampment.

The Thirty-fifth Division Air Service begins its annual two-week encampment at Lambert Field today. Tents will be pitched just north of the National Guard hangars on grassy ground well out of reach of the dust. The outfit is recruited almost to war strength and has a full complement of flying officers, headed by Maj. Ray Wassall, who has been flying in St. Louis since the post-war days when a Hisso-Jennie was considered a first-class ship.

Instructors Fly 1351 Hours.

With 196 students clamoring for time in the air, the Parks Airlines instructors have been piling up unusually high flying time records. During July, for instance, the instructors flew a total of 1351 hours. For most of the month, 12 instructors were on duty, so that each averaged well over 100 hours, a lot of flying at anybody's field.

Visits Jefferson City in Plane.

"Boots" Dempsey, pilot for Oscar Johnson, visited Jefferson City Wednesday in Johnson's Whirlwind Travel-Air. Dempsey returned recently from a flight to New York, where he had Johnson's motor overhauled at the Wright factory.

Marine Flyer Returns East.

Lieut. Christian Frank Schilt of the Marine Corps, who recently received the Congressional Medal for gallantry under fire, left Scott Field Monday in a Fokker tri-motor after week-end there. He landed at Washington Monday night and shortly will fly the Fokker to Nicaragua. With him were five enlisted men.

Schilt is the pilot who landed a Vought Corsair several times in the street of a Nicaraguan village, rescuing eight or nine marines who were wounded there. The plane was well shot up during the rescue, but Schilt escaped injury.

To Begin Chicago Air Service.

Robertson Aircraft Corporation will begin its new passenger service to Chicago tomorrow, using the tri-motored Fords recently delivered. The service will give St. Louis passengers two planes to Chicago daily and two returning.

The first plane will leave at 9 a. m., arriving at Chicago at noon. The second, carrying the mail, will leave at 4:15 p. m. and arrive at 7:30. Southbound, the first plane—with the mail—will leave at 5:50 a. m. and arrive in St. Louis at 9:15. The second will leave at 2 p. m., arriving at the municipal airport at 6:15.

The planes will be flown by the regular mail pilots, "Bud" Gurney, chief pilot, E. L. Sloniger, Julius

During the last week the Fords have been flown daily, carrying hundreds of St. Louisans. Last Sunday 220 passengers were carried on trips over the city. The sightseeing service will be a regular feature of the Sunday program at Lambert Field.

Beal Wins Harrison Cup.

William Beal won the Harrison cup in the OX-5 race at Parks Airport last Sunday. Beal was also the winner of the Ambassador Theater trophy in a race a month ago.

Runs Air Service at Fair.

Earl Baskey, who used to fly Hisso-Jennies out of the Forest Park on St. Louis' first air mail line, spent last week at Martinsville, Ill., hauling patrons of the Clark County fair in a Ryan brougham owned by the Von Hoffman Aircraft Co. Another Von Hoffmann brougham was brought in by John Hunter last Tuesday after a barnstorming trip through Missouri in which scores of passengers were carried.

25 New Students at Air College.

Twenty-five flying and ground school students were enrolled by Parks Air College the last two days of July. Despite the letdown in student flying that always comes with the late summer, Parks Air College now has 165 flying students and 55 in its shop course.

Last Thursday four of its students passed the test for a limited commercial license. They are J. R. Hosterman of Millhern, Pa.; Donald Beardslee of Owego, N. Y.; L. G. West of Perry, O., and M. C. Hack of Shelbyville, Ind.

Since the school began operations last spring 12 of its students have qualified as limited commercial pilots. There have been no failures. The examiner Thursday was R. L. Copsey of Chicago.

U. S. Speeding Up Aviator Permits

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18. — A new system to facilitate the issuance of student aviator permits is being adopted by the aeronautics branch of the commerce department. Under the new plan, the student turns his application over to an authorized examining physician who will check it for correctness. The student is no longer required to send the application to Washington. Upon successfully passing the medical examination the physician will issue the student a letter of authority, allowing him to operate pending receipt of the actual permit.

Los Angeles Air Races to Begin On September 8

Civilian and Government Planes to Participate in National Event.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 18.—Plans for a spectacular air parade over Southern California, Sept. 8, as the opening gun of the national air races and aeronautical exposition, have just been announced here by Dr. T. C. Young of the Air Race Executive Committee.

More than 400 civilian planes, and it is expected a squadron of army and navy ships, will participate in the air spectacle, flying over Long Beach, Whittier, Pasadena, Glendale, Hollywood and finally over Broadway, this city's main business artery, to Mines Field, scene of the exposition, where it will terminate its flight. This will be the greatest number of civilian planes ever to be in the air at one time in a single formation, according to Young.

Assisting Young in arrangements is a committee, including Lieut. Henry H. Ogden, 'round the world flyer; C. C. McWhinney of Long Beach, Col. T. C. Macauley of San Diego, Frank McKee of San Francisco, secretary of the aeronautic department of the California Development Association, and Frank Parent of Inglewood.

Young has enlisted the co-operation of every airport in Southern California, as well as several in the Northern cities, among them San Francisco, Sacramento, Oakland, Fresno, Bakersfield and Santa Barbara, appointing at each field a captain. Each captain, in turn, is encouraging participation in the spectacle by all of the ships attached to his particular field.

Every safety measure is being taken. Military orders will be in force, with each captain in command of the squadron from his field, and Young in command of the entire flight. The planes will receive their directions by radio broadcast from KFI, here.

Hoover Outlines Aviation Progress

That commercial aviation in this country has almost reached, and within 12 months will certainly reach, a point of development greater than that of all Europe, is prophesied by Herbert Hoover in an article, "Air Pinoeering," in the current issue of the Magazine of Business.

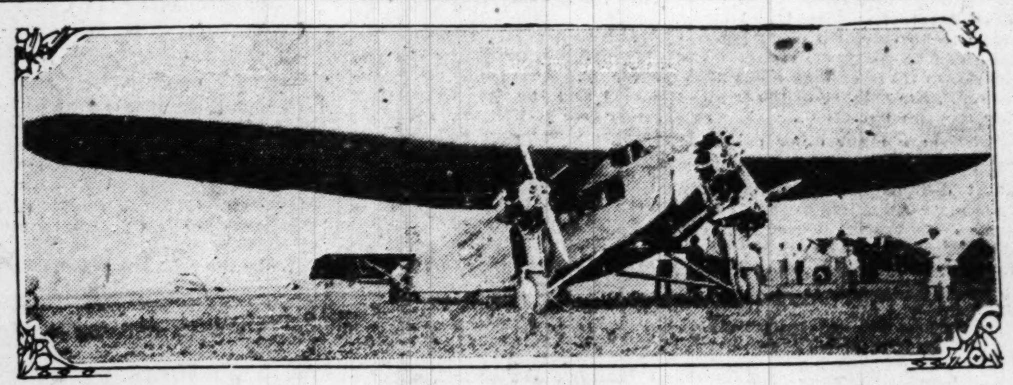
The American plan of developing commercial aviation has followed that of a sound transportation enterprise developed by private initiative without Government subsidy, Mr. Hoover explained.

"In following this plan," Hoover said, "the Government has declared the routes of national airways, built their equipment of lights and emergency landing fields, furnished charts, licensed the planes for safety and the pilots for their competence, engaged itself in scientific investigation, and promoted local enterprise to accomplish the rest of the development."

Commercial aviation in the United States has probably a greater opportunity in that the Government does not regard it largely as a supplement to military defense with transportation objectives secondary.

Hoover further pointed out that European development has been based first upon passenger carrying where in the United States the growth has hinged on carrying mail and express.

IN REGULAR PASSENGER SERVICE NOW



THIS FORD ALL-METAL tri-motor monoplane, recently purchased by the Robertson Aircraft Corp., will be placed in regular passenger service between St. Louis and Chicago tomorrow.

WORLD'S LARGEST PRODUCERS OF STRAIGHT-EIGHTS

LOW-PRICED CHANDLER 8 ON DISPLAY

New Line of Four Body Styles Priced From $1295 to $1495.

Chandler Motors Corporation has announced a new low-priced eight-cylinder line of cars priced from $1295 to $1495. This latest eight-cylinder series is entirely new and apart from the current Chandler royal "85" eight line. It is on display here by the Midstates Motor Co., local distributer, and its dealers.

Four body styles are announced as follows: A five-passenger brougham at $1295, five-passenger sedan at $1395, a de luxe sedan at $1495 and a four-passenger rumble seat coupe listing at $1295, all on a 118-inch wheelbase chassis.

The new car has long, low body contours, new style radiator and insignia. Doors are broad and open wide. Windows are wide, allowing full vision in all directions. Seats are high-backed, form fitting type.

The power plant is a straight eight type with a bore of 3 inches and a stroke of 4½ inches. It has a total piston displacement of 254.47 cubic inches. The speed range is said to be up to 75 miles per hour.

One of the new developments featured on this motor is a new type cylinder head with a high compression chamber head to improve combustion and flame propagation. It is said to be less sensitive to spark adjustment as well as being particularly free from the so-called "ping-ping" knocks with low-grade fuel. Its acceleration and high gear capacity on the hills is said to be remarkable.

Like the Royal "85" and Big Six series, the new Royal "75" is equipped with the "one-shot" system of chassis lubrication. By just pressing a plunger the entire chassis can be lubricated in two seconds, without the use of an oil can or grease gun.

Westinghouse vacuum brakes are stanrard equipment. This type is said to require only one-third the pressure required to operate the average brake, yet the braking effort on all four wheels is said to be three times greater than the ordinary brake.

Standard equipment with all models includes an automatic windshield cleaner, twin beam head lights, light control from the steering wheel and electric ignition lock. Combination tail and stop light, bumpers, bumperettes and Lovejoy shock absorbers can be secured at a low combination price for this equipment.

Six wire wheels, two mounted on the sides, with trunk rack and trunk included can also be provided with any model, as special equipment at extra cost.

Retail sales of Gardner cars for July showed a marked increase over the same period in 1927, according to Russell E. Gardner Jr., president of Gardner Motor Co., Inc.

upon a site that especially commemorates some historic event of the early days.

Pequot Trail, the Braddock road, Cumberland Pike, Santa Fe Trail, the Natchez Trail; these are but a few of the picturesque names that parts of this historic highway knew in youth. Now, as the National Old Trails Highway, these early names will pass away, but their significance is to be emblazoned upon the minds of the modern tourist by the stone shafts being erected along its route.

Trip Into the Arzona That is Not Hot and Dry

recesses. On the straight stretches the trail is through forests of pungent pine. Then, before us, lies Springerville.

Springerville is the capital of the White Mountain, Apache Forest and Tonto Basin regions. It is situated on what is commonly referred to as "neutral ground" between the Apache and Navajo Indian reservations. Actually, it is in the extreme northern part of the Apache National Forest. We'll make our headquarters here, at Apache Tavern, or Diamond Back Lodge.

Possibly you will prefer a place in still more rustic setting. There are places of the type at Greer, a Mormon hamlet a short distance to the north, or at Alpine, another little village to the southeast, approached over a delightful drive through the quaint hamlet of Nutrisso.

Within a short distance from Springerville there are 300 miles of trout streams. The Little Colorado River, beginning at the New Mexico-Arizona line, flows past the town, fed by many creeks and streams. On the southern slope of the White Mountain range, through the territory which the tourist travels from Globe up through the Indian reservation, are the Black River, the White River and a hundred creeks and smaller streams, all fish stocked.

The highest peak of the White Mountain range is Mt. Baldy, more than 11,000 feet above sea level. The summit may be reached by horseback, and the trip will be a delightful excursion for us. From the top we'll be able to see the North Rim of the Grand Canyon, 200 miles northward, and the snow-capped peaks of the Seirra Madre in Old Mexico, as many miles to the south.

A delightful drive will be that across the White Mountains on the new highway between Springerville and McNary. This trail is surfaced with volcanic cinders and goes over rolling country through beautiful parks of fir spruce, yellow pine and quaking aspen. Probably at McNary we'll decide to go on down through Fort Apache to Rice, then strike northwest on U. S. 180 to Globe, the gateway to the historic Tonto Basin country. Here we'll continue on to the hamlet of Kirby and outfit for a pack trip through the basin or for a fishing trip on Roosevelt Lake.

We'll find that Tonto Basin country highly interesting. It was the scene of one of the bloodiest cattle wars in the old west—the Graham-Tewksbury feud—rivaling in killings the Lincoln County (New Mexico) war, which was brought to a close when Sheriff Pat Garrett killed Billy the Kid. It is a wild, upland country especially adapted to the tourist with the camping mania.

Within a few miles of Springerville are many interesting places. The Valley of Dwarfed Trees, at the head of the White River, lies at an altitude of 10,000 feet and abounds in trout streams. It is surrounded by spruce and fir trees, many of which, although two feet in diameter, do not grow more than 25 feet high. They give the impression of a fairyland inhabited by gnomes and elves. The valley is at the foot of Mount Ord which rises to an elevation of 11,700 feet and can be reached by automobile to within three or four miles of its summit, the balance of the trip being madeon horseback.

There are many other points of interest in the White Mountains a short distance from Springerville. It is but a short trip to the Apache Indian reservation where the Indians may be seen in their ancient manner of living. It is a delightful drive over the Water Canyon road through Eager to Black River, Espero and Diamond Rock Lodge.

And so it goes. There are probably many other places the writer never has heard of. But those named and the places described surely give sufficient proof that all Arizona is not arid and sandy and uninhabitable except in winter.

Monoxide Deadly.

Carbon monoxide from the exhaust of motor vehicles is reported to have killed more than 700 people last year in the United States.

Stutz Sales Show Increase

With orders on file at the factory and anticipated deliveries for the remainder of June, the sales of splendid Stutz cars for the first half of 1928 show an appreciable increase over the same period of 1927. This statement, by Col. E. S. Gorrell, vice president of the Stutz Motor Car Co., was received by Benjamin Motor Co., local Stutz distributer.

While the sales increase has been general throughout the territory, several instances of outstanding sales performance have been demonstrated by distributers in various parts of the country. Chicago recorded 14 deliveries in four days in the second week of June. The Indianapolis distributer registered four sales on June 16 and similar results were obtained in other localities.

The policy announced by Stutz early in January, "each car as exclusive as a Paris gown, no two alike" has struck a responsive note.

FORD AGAIN A FACTOR IN CAR INDUSTRY

Accounted for 32 Per Cent Of "$500 Class" Output in July.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 18.—Production of cars and trucks in the so-called "$500 class" amounted to 1,374,929 units in the first seven months of 1928. This compared with 1,185,195 units for the same period of 1927, a gain of about 16 per cent in production.

In January, Ford produced only 7 per cent of the cars and trucks in the low-priced group. Now, however, he is accouning for a larger percentage of the total each month. In February, Ford accounted for 12.5 per cent of the total; in March, 17.2 per cent; April, 21 per cent; May, 21.6 per cent; June, 26 per cent and July, 32 per cent.

At the same time, while the total number of cars produced each month showed an increase over the previous month, except in July, the total number of "$500 class" cars produced by Chevrolet dropped gradually.

In January, Chevrolet produced 79 per cent of the cars in this class; in February, 73.5 per cent; March, 68 per cent; April, 63 per cent; May, 60 per cent; June, 59 per cent, and July, 55½ per cent. In spite of its slowly diminishing percentage of the total, Chevrolet production increased month by month except for July.

While the gains made by Ford have been generally greater than those made by Chevrolet, month over month and for the first six months, both in number of units and in percentage, this is what might be expected under the circumstances. Chevrolet has been carrying through a steady seasonal gain over the high months of its career, while Ford has been coming out of the greatest slump in production ever experienced.

Cadillac New Car Announcement Is Expected Soon

UNDERWOOD & UNDERWOOD

THIS TRAILER, the Aerocar—so called because it is built like the fuselage of an airplane—which, with the auto attached to it, will attempt to set a new speed record between Florida and New York. The trailer is very light and will not retard the speed of the car. It can, in fact, go as fast as the auto ahead without skidding or tipping because of a new coupling device, an airplane wheel, which is placed well forward of its rear axle.

MEETINGS OF AUTOMOTIVE ENGINEERS

Six National Gatherings Announced — Three Aeronautic Sessions.

Six national meetings have been scheduled for the coming autumn and winter by the Society of Automotive Engineers.

It is indicative of the tremendous interest in aviation that the aeronautic meeting will be held in three sections in as many cities.

The Western aeronautic meeting is to be held Sept. 13 and 14 in Los Angeles, at the time of the National Air Races; a central aeronautic meeting is planned for Dec. 6 and 7 in Chicago, at the time of the National Aircraft Show, and a third section of the aeronautic meeting will be held in New York City during the National Automobile Show next January.

An automotive transportation meeting to occupy three days is scheduled for Oct. 17 to 19 at Newark, N. J. Developments and problems in mass transportation by motor truck, motor coach and rail-car are to be discussed.

At the production meeting, now being arranged for Nov. 22 and 23 at Detroit, details of mass manufacturing of vehicles and parts will be dealt with in addresses and discussion.

The annual dinner has been set for Jan. 10 at New York City, during the week of the National Automobile Show as usual.

In the following week the four-day annual meeting will take place in Detroit. The dates are Jan. 15 to 18.

The Ahlberg Sales Co., 2841 Locust boulevard, has been appointed distributer here for the new Hassler Steering Stabilizer, made by the Hassler Co., of Indianapolis. The new product is said to eliminate steering rod vibration. It is anchored to the tir-rod of a car and operates on a lubricated friction principle.

It is designed for the following cars: Auburn, Buick, Cadillac, Chevrolet, Chrysler, Dodge, Durant, Essex, Franklin, Graham-Paige, Hupmobile, Hudson, La Salle, Locomobile, Lincoln, Marmon, Nash, Oakland, Oldsmobile, Packard, Pontiac, Reo, Studebaker, Whippet and Willys-Knight.

Stearns-Knight Sales Increase

Since the advent of the Stearns-Knight Six, designated as the Series 80, which is a companion car to the Stearns-Knight de luxe eight, the products of the Stearns-Knight Sales Corporation have made a notable advance in sales, executives of the company declare.

Since the present interests, headed by John N. Willys, took control of the Stearns organization less than a year ago, there has been a complete revision of policies, the present organization centering its production and engineering efforts solely on cars in the quality class rather than pressing in quantity output.

Arthur Hermann Now A Goodyear Dealer

Arthur Hermann, for 10 years with the Methudy Tire & Rubber Co., here, has organized his own tire service firm at 2800 Olive street, operating under the name of the Hermann Tire Co. He has been appointed authorized Goodyear dealer and is equipped to give road and vulcanizing service, besides selling new tires and tubes.

Durant Output High

With an increase in production and shipments in July of 24 per cent over July, 1927, Durant Motors continues to progress with amazing rapidity.

Sales are keeping up with production, registration returns from all states of the Union show. In June, Durant sales jumped from twelfth to tenth place, and for the first six months have shown an increase of over 20 per cent more than the first half of 1927.

Arrow Design on Chandler Fenders

In addition to full crown fenders on the latest Chandler models, front fenders have a raised design in the shape of an arrow head. On the Big Six and Royal "75" and "85" series, this design is in colors, corresponding to those in the Chandler radiator insignia.

Peru Builds 7000 Miles Of Roads in Seven Years

Officials Would Spend More Than $4,000,000 for Additional Highways Next Thee Years.

The reclaiming, resurfacing, and building of 7000 miles of motor roads in seven years is not a bad showing for one of the world's most mountainous countries.

Today, Peru looks back on this accomplishment as one of the highly important features of her progress. But President Leguia calls for more roads, and his sentiments are echoed all over the country by progressive citizens.

"Let's spend $3,500,000 more in the next three years," say the Peruvian officials. This sum will add connecting links to the roads already in operation and thereby open new regions to exploitation—to the sheepman, the plowman, the mine operator, the immigrant from Europe. In addition to the several millions of dollars above noted, $800,00 has been provided in the Government's budget; and this sum is to come from the general revenues, while the larger amount is provided by a national loan. On some of the new roads the system of tolls has been established and from this source a constantly increasing revenue is derived.

Today there are in operation more than 10,500 motor vehicles in the country, and some of the traffic, particularly on the eastern slopes of the Andes, is through the primeval wilderness which until recent years was traveled only by the mule and the llama.

In Lima, Callao, and other coastal cities, the splendid new boulevards and suburban highways and the extension of some of these roads far into the country are notable.

Nash Deliveries Largest in History

Following a trip through the territory served by the Southwest Nash Co., Nash distributer here, J. H. Bonham, general wholesale manager for the firm, reports Nash deliveries to dealers the largest in the history of the organization, but that because of the large demand for the new "400" series of Nash cars, deliveries are still behind, despite increased production by the factory.

Bonham also reported the addition of new dealers in Arkansas, Kentucky, Illinois and Missouri. He said that his firm is having an unusual large amount of requests for dealer franchises because of the popularity of the new cars.

NEW MARMON EIGHT-MODELS BEING SHOWN

Larger Engine, New Hood, Radiator Lines Among Improvements.

New models of its two lines of straight eight-cylinder cars, the Marmon 68 and 78, have been announced by the Marmon Motor Car Co. The cars are now on display here by the Archer-Mann Motor Co., Marmon distributer here.

Major improvements include an eight-cylinder engine with a one-sixteenth inch larger bore and a new and larger cooling system, new hood and radiator lines, including the use of horizontal hood louvres replacing the vertical type in use heretofore and chromium plated parts.

In each series there are the following body styles: Five-passenger sedan, four-passenger Victoria coupe, two-passenger standard coupe and two-passenger speedster. The new Series 68 has a base price of $1495, factory list, and the Series 78 a base price of $1965, factory list.

Body designs, with the exception of the Series 78 coupe, closely follow that of the two preceding series and the same general interior hardware and upholstery effect has been retained with refinements.

The use of celotex insulating material in constructing the body is being given wide publicity. The factory engineers claim that through its use between the dash and power plant engine heat cannot penetrate into the interior of the car.

Auto License Tags Are to Boost Kentucky

By the Associated Press.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Aug. 18.—Kentucky automobile license tags are to play their part in the progressive movement in Kentucky, if the plan of Gov. Sampson and the Progress Commission is carried out.

The Automobile Department has granted permission that one of the two tags to be placed on every car licensed in Kentucky, shall be devoid of numbers, but shall carry the message of Kentucky wherever it goes.

The present tags are both numbered and have the name of the county in large letters with a small "Ky."

It is the plan ofthe commission to get away from the little "Ky.," according to C. Frank Dunn, executive secretary of the commission.

The new tags, if approved by the State Tax Commission, will bear the large name "Kentucky," with the number, which will be placed on the rear of the car. The front tag, which now bears the same number as the rear tag, will have no number at all, but a message from Kentucky. Dunn, the Governor and members of the Tax Commission are now planning slogans for the tag. One submitted by Dunn goes like this:

"Follow me to KENTUCKY
and Prosper."

These tags, it is pointed out, will be Kentucky's advertisement wherever Kentuckians are, and will still serve their purpose, as the numbers will be on the rear of the car.

Nash Sales Gaining

KENOSHA, Wis., Aug. 18.—August opened for the Nash Motors Co. with the greatest demand for immediate delivery of new "400" Series cars ever recorded by sales department officials.

When the July books were checked at the close of business on Tuesday, it was found that 31,049 orders for the shipment of new cars to domestic and export distribution points had been received during the month. To meet this record demand, a total of 17,891 cars had been shipped and placed in the hands of new owners. This shipment total constituted the biggest July business in the history of Nash Motors and has been eclipsed by but one month on company records.

At the same time, the sales department reported a total of 32,360 orders already received for August delivery of the popular "Four Hundreds," and the number of August shipment orders increasing daily.

Tells How to Enjoy Tour Through the Grand Canyon

Eastern Writer Says Favorite Mottos of Tourists Should Be, "Use Your Own Judgement."

Grand Canyon Station, of the Grand Canyon, Colorado, next to Ellis Island, is the most cosmopolitan spot in the Western Hemisphere, according to Charles Phelps Cushing, in August McCall's, who tells how to motor through this scenic country, and what places must not be missed.

The favorite mottos of the tourists should be "use your own judgment" and "do a little exploring," according to Cushing, who says:

"No one's imagination, in advance, can get any fair notion of the sublimity of the Grand Canyon's size, or the glory of its coloring. A mile deep. Twelve or thirteen miles across to that higher north rim. As long as from New York to Boston. It is not the widest of panoramas that we see here at El Tovar. But it is stunning enough! 'Sublime' is the adjective most often used. Or 'stupendous.'

"What's it like, on that other side? And 'how far do you suppose you'd have to drive to get over there in a car?' It is '12 miles across there to Bright Angel Point.'

"By the best motor road, that Point is so far away that you probably won't take my word for the distance until after you have studied the motor maps for yourself.

"Far around into the southwest you must circle, tracing out a gigantic letter 'C.' Out of the state of Arizona, into California and Nevada, on up into southern Utah and back again through northern Arizona you must trek to get there by good highways. To that cape you see over there, only a dozen miles or so away, the best road to follow is as long as, say from Indianapolis to the Gulf of Mexico—a little matter of something more than 600 miles.

"There is another road swinging in a big semi-circle in the other direction, to the northeast. It goes across the Painted Desert and over the Colorado River at Lee's Ferry. The Government booklet on Grand Canyon National Park (a copy of which you should ask for as soon as you've had time to pitch camp) speaks of this as 'a poor road' which 'reduces the distance to 238 miles.' But note carefully the warning which follows. U. S. Official: 'None but experienced drivers over bad roads should attempt this trip. Those who undertake it must carry a reserve supply of gasoline and oil.'

"There is, however, a third way to get across—and this a fairly short one. To make it you first store your car at a garage in Grand Canyon Village, where you'll hear, 'the charge, lady, is only six bits a day.' Then you take to the saddle of a horse. This ride requires two days. The first relay, of 12 miles, sees you across the canyon by way of the Kaibab Suspension Bridge, passing the night at Phantom Ranch; the second, of 20 miles, takes you on up the gorge of Bright Angel Creek to a camp in the pine woods just back of the north rim at Bright Angel Point for the second night.

"'Is there anything on the other side worth all the pains and the extra cost?' Enough, certainly, to warrant your serious consideration. The view from the north rim is one which many prefer to that from the South. And at not too staggering a price you there can take automobile stages through Kaibab National Forest, where you will glimpse hundreds of deer in a real forest primaeval; thence past Pipe Spring National Monument and on to a new and strikingly beautiful national park, Zion in Utah. Mammoth gorges, vividly colored and fantastically carved, are the outstanding features of Zion and of its neighbor Bryce, another national monument."

Illinois Third In Cycle Output

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 18.—With four out of the 29 motor cycle and bicycle plants in the United States located in Illinois, this State ranks third in the nation in the manufacture of the two vehicles, a biennial census of the United States Department of Commerce has reported.

More than 35,000 motor cycles valued at $11,390,000, including parts, were manufactured in the period by the concerns, and bicycles and parts valued at $21,000,000 were produced. Massachusetts led the states with six plants, New York with five and Illinois and Ohio with four each.

Body Noises Are Overcome By Hupmobile

Hupmobile engineers say that 10 times the labor and material deemed necessary for the motor car of 10 years ago are expended to assure riding comfort in their new Century eights and sixes.

One of the most important objectives has been to attain freedom from the annoying squeaks, rattles and other noises which used to be the motorist's bugbear.

The stresses and strains of high compression, terrific speed, sudden starting and equally sudden stopping under the compulsion of four-wheel brakes have enormously enhanced the possibilities for noise and shock—evils which have been overcome by bringing to bear resources of skill and knowledge acquired in years of experiment and experience.

Production of Olds De Luxe Line Raised

LANSING, Mich., Aug. 18.—Production has been ordered increased on the new de luxe line of Oldsmobile cars, introduced two weeks ago. Orders received from dealers when the first of the de luxe models were delivered equaled the entire production schedule for the remainder of the year, hence the production increase, Olds Motor Works officials here have announced.

The new de luxe line consists of specially designed and finely finished body types on the new Oldsmobile chassis. It supplements the standard line of body models which, with the chassis, remain unchanged.

Santa Fe Trail Repair About Done

By the Associated Press.

LARKIN, Kan., Aug. 18.—Santa Fe trail traffic will be routed over the regular road from Lakin west soon. Since last winter a detour of about 20 miles has been in use through Kendall, following the Santa Fe Railroad, because the trail was closed for improvements.

The largest single item was a long concrete bridge across a ravine. The old bridge washed out last August when a cloudburst took out roads and railroad tracks.

New Moon Brougham

Announcement was made yesterday by officials of the Moon Motor Car Co., here that a new 1929 model of the 4-passenger Moon Aerotype Victoria brougham has been placed into production. The new car is available in both the 6-cylinder and 8-cylinder lines, it was stated. Deliveries will begin Aug. 1.

The general body design, from the dash to the rear edge of the door, is virtually a duplicate of the present Moon-Aerotype sedan and coupe models.

Oldsmobile Lights Made for Safety

As a contribution to safety in night driving, Oldsmobile headlights are so closely adjusted that the light beam at 25 feet cannot vary more than a quarter of an inch. This adjustment guarantees a light that fully illuminates the road more than 300 feet ahead and across its entire width without glare or discomfort to approaching motorists.

Franklin Sales High

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Aug. 11.—Shipments of the new Airman Limited line of Franklin motor cars in July were 51 per cent greater than in July, 1927, factory executives said today.

Watson Devises "Rubber Flow" Stabilator Type

Compound Runs Over Polished Steel Surfaces in Mechanism.

John Warren Watson, maker of Watson Stabilators, is responsible for the manufacturer of the Rubber Flow principle of shock absorption, it is announced. The new product, to be known as the Watson 18 to 1 Rubber Flow Stabilator, is in production.

For some time it has been reported that Watson was developing a new product of the hydraulic principle. "We have passed right by the old type of friction shock absorber and the hydraulic principle, with their limitations, and developed Rubber Flow, which, because of its complete fitness for the work, we predict will supersede all earlier means of shock absorption," Watson says.

Rubber Flow, it is understood, gets its name from the inclusion of a specially devised rubber compound which flows over polished steel surfaces in the mechanism of the Stabilator.

CANADA LEADS IN AERIAL PHOTOGRAPHY

More Than 200,000 Square Miles of Hitherto Inaccessible Country "Shot."

Upper Canada is fast emerging from the unmapped and undeveloped wilderness state through the instrumentality of the airplane, according to A. M. Narraway, of the Topographical Survey of Canada, who told, in an address at the summer meeting of the Society of Automotive Engineers in Quebec, recently, how the enormous natural resources are being brought to light and made more accessible in the undeveloped four-fifths of the Dominion by means of the airplane.

Canada's contribution to aviation has not been appreciated fully, according to the speaker, because the money has not been available for polar or trans-Atlantic flights, yet Canada has attained a leadership in at least one branch of aeronautics—that of aerial surveys and investigations.

Within the last five years she has photographed from the air more than 200,000 square miles of hitherto inaccessible country that is richly endowed with natural resources such as timber and ores.

This accomplishment is equivalent to eight flights entirely around the world, with a photograph of every foot of the way. Against the polar and trans-oceanic flights Canada sets the aerial protection from fire of 200,000,000 acres of forest land each year, the type mapping of 30,000 square miles of almost completely unmapped country per season, and the revolutionizing of the geological survey which provides the mining engineer with the initial step in the examination of the mineral resources of the country.

These achievements have moved at least one generation ahead the development of the Dominion's resources, and thus the airplane is playing a most important part in advancing the prosperity of Canada and her place among the nations of the world.

The airplane increases the rate of investigation by the geologist, the forester, or other expert from one or two to 70 or 100 miles per hour.

Air-Cooled Engine Meets Test of Heat

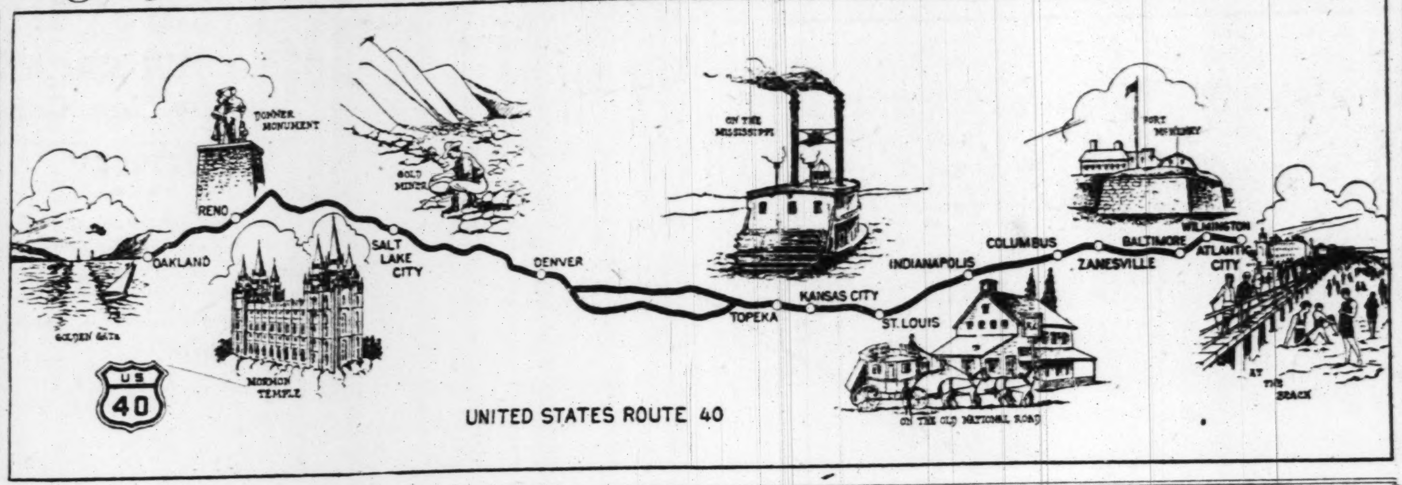
Franklin Picked Up Power During Grind Across Arizona Desert.

The ability of a Franklin air-cooled engine to function perfectly under a high temperature where a water-cooled engine would have lost power was demonstrated recently when a Franklin Airman set a new world record for a transcontinental round trip between Los Angeles and New York City, according to Cannon Ball Baker, who piloted the Franklin on its run.

"Before I started at 6692-mile grind from coast to coast and return, I equipped the Franklin with a heat indicator," Baker said. "At one point of the terrific grind, after I had driven the Franklin several thousand miles, we were crossing the desert wastes of Arizona. The heat was blazing at 115 and the temperature of the engine mounted. As the engine heat continued to increase, it was noticeable that the efficiency of the air-cooled power plant became more pronounced and it speeded on mile after mile through the sandy stretches.

"Finally, the heat indicator registered 250 degrees—a temperature that would have burnt up a water-cooled engine which must work below 212 degrees, the boiling point of water. However, the only effect this heat had on the Franklin engine was to bring out its maximum power."

U. S. 40—A Log of This Great Transcontinental Highway From Coast-to-Coast



It Crosses Fourteen States, Including Missouri, in Its 3205-Mile Course From Atlantic City to Its Terminus at San Francisco.

Paved for 1234 Miles From Wilmington, Del., to St. Marys Kan. — Between Salt Lake City and San Francisco, 890 Miles, It Is Surfaced.

WESTWARD, along routes traversed by the pioneers of America from the Atlantic to the Golden Gate, and including in the Ohio Valley, the longest stretch of practically straight road in the country, United States Route 40 crosses 14 states, and offers to the transcontinental motor tourist a panorama of the midsection of the country that epitomizes the westward expansion of the nation from colonial days to the present.

From its eastern terminus at Atlantic City this highway follows for 3205 miles the same course or one closely parallel to that of the earliest settlers of the Ohio, Mississippi and Missouri valleys. It touches on the two great gold fields of California and Colorado which accelerated so greatly the settlement of the western half of the continent. It traverses also the Mormon settlement in Utah, the great pioneer agricultural experiment sponsored by Brigham Young.

From Wilmington, Del., to St. Marys, Kan., the highway is paved for 1234 miles. From Salt Lake City to San Francisco—890 miles—it is surfaced. Less than 14 per cent of its length is unimproved. East of the Rockies the road is passable the year round. In the passes of the Rockies and in the Sierras it has not proved feasible to keep the road open in the winter and the route is not to be depended on from Oct. 15 to April or May.

The United States Government has contributed nearly $18,000,000 to the improvement. Federal aid projects on this route include 700 miles of pavement, 725 miles of surfaced road, 132 miles of graded road, and more than four miles of bridges.

A summary of the various types of surfacing, furnished by the Bureau of Public Roads, United States Department of Agriculture, follows:

	Miles.	Pct.
Hard-surface roads, including brick, macadam and bituminous macadam	1,550	48.4
Gravel	539	16.8
Earth and graded and drained roads	672	20.9
Unimproved	444	13.9
Totals	3,205	100.0

Travelog of the Road.

New Jersey—Beginning at Atlantic City, United States route 40 extends in a northwesterly direction through the practically level truck-farming and fruit-growing areas of New Jersey. Of the 66 miles in this State, 44 are paved, and the rest are surfaced with gravel.

Delaware—Crossing the Delaware River by ferry at Penn's Grove, the traveler arrives in Wilmington, where, in 1638, the Swedes made their first landing in America. There is a 19-mile stretch in this State.

Maryland—The route proceeds westward to Elkton, 21 miles from Wilmington. The first view of Chesapeake Bay is glimpsed opposite Charleston, about 10 miles further on. Then comes Baltimore. Continuing westward, the motorist passes through Ellicott City—the western terminus of Peter Cooper's initial experiment with a locomotive. Further over the rolling hills, at Frederick, is found the home of Barbara Frietchie—the aged heroine of John Greenleaf Whittier's Civil War poem. Then the traveler passes through Hagerstown; and next arrives in Cumberland, in the heart of the Allegheny Mountains. From Cumberland—the junction of the Cumberland road with the Old National Pike—it is about 31 miles to Keysers Ridge, the summit of the Allegheny Mountains and the highest point on Route 40 in the Eastern States—elevation 2900 feet above sea level. For the entire distance of 226 miles Route 40 is paved.

Pennsylvania — Crossing the Pennsylvania State line, a short distance west of Keysers Ridge, the traveler passes over that portion of Route 40 made famous by George Washington. The entire 81 miles of the route here is paved.

West Virginia—At West Alexander Route 40 crosses into West Virginia, and from this point 16 miles of road have been paved across the northern section of the State to Wheeling, the oldest town on the Ohio River.

Ohio—Two bridges cross the Ohio River. The toll from eastbound travelers is collected on the Wheeling side and from the westbound travelers on the Bridgeport end. Entering upon the straightaway road across Ohio the traveler is impressed with the directness with which the early pioneers selected the route for the Old National Pike. Passing through the State capitals of Ohio and Indiana, and through Vandalia, capital of Illinois in 1839, this highway is the longest stretch of practically straight road in the United States. The road is paved for the entire 225-mile distance across Ohio. East of Zanesville is the famous Y Bridge over the Muskingum River, said to be the only one of its kind in the United States. Between Zanesville and Hebron, a distance of 24 miles, is a section of experimental concrete pavement built in 1915 by the Office of Public Roads, now the Bureau of Public Roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. At that time concrete road construction was still in its infancy. This road is still in good condition.

Indiana—The highway crosses the line just east of Richmond. The entire 151 miles across the State is paved. The birthplace of James Whitcomb Riley may be seen at Greenfield, 44 miles west of Richmond.

Illinois — After crossing the Wabash River, the State line is passed between Terre Haute, Ind., and Marshall, Ill. Passing through Effingham, the road leads to Vandalia, the capital of Illinois, from 1819 to 1839, and in the courthouse beside the route may be seen the window from which Abraham Lincoln is said to have jumped during one of the sessions of the State Legislature. After driving over continuous pavement through Illinois for a distance of 161 miles, the traveler reaches the Mississipi River at East St. Louis. There are three bridges across the river at this location—the Eads, McKinley and the Free—but route 40 passes over the structure free from tolls.

Missouri—At the west end of the bridge is St. Louis. Continuing westward over a paved road, the traveler passes through St. Charles, and then reaches Booneville, 151 miles from St. Louis. It was over this section, known as the Boone's Lick Road, that Daniel Boone and his two sons Nathan and Daniel, transported supplies of salt to the little French village of St. Louis, in 1800. It was also from Booneville, in the early part of the nineteenth century, that great wagon trains started over the Sante Fe trail for the Southwestern country. From Booneville the driving is easy to Kansas City on the State boundary. The 256 miles through Missouri are paved.

Kansas—From Kansas City the paved road continues for 101 miles through Lawrence and Topeka to St. Marys. This is the end of the 1234-mile paved section which begins at Wilmington, Del. Thirty-six miles further on is Manhattan, where the route divides into 40-north and 40-south, and continues as two branches of the same road as far as Limon, Colo. Of the 486-mile distance across Kansas, 101 miles is paved, 73 miles is gravel surfaced, and 292 miles is earth, or graded and drained road.

Colorado—In the Western States, the passes over the Rocky Mountains and the Sierra Nevada range may be expected to be blocked by snow at any time after Oct. 15, and remain closed to travel until the following April or May. Beginning at little above sea level at St. Louis, the traveler has now motored over the gently-rising topography of Kansas and has climbed gradually to an elevation of a mile above sea level at Denver. Many scenic drives adjacent to the city afford interesting side trips to Estes Park, the entrance to Rocky Mountain National Park, and the grave of Buffalo Bill on Lookout Mountain, 14 miles west of the city. Proceeding by circuitous mountain construction, the road now is built across the Continental Divide, through the Berthoud Pass—62 miles west of Denver—at an elevation of 11,313 feet. Again it crosses the Rocky Mountains at Muddy Pass—34 miles north of the Berthoud—at an elevation of 8772 feet; and for the third time via the Rabbit Ears Pass—7 miles northwest of the Muddy Pass—at an altitude of 9808 feet above sea level. Thus, the Continental Divide is crossed three times within 163 miles of Denever. Of the 512-mile length of United States route 40 across Colorado, there are 20 miles of concrete pavement, 38 miles of gravel surfacing, 287 miles of graded and drained earth road, and 167 miles of unimproved road.

Utah—After crossing the Utah State line 29 miles east of Jensen, the traveler arrives at Vernal, 17 miles further on. Twenty-two miles to the southeast is the Dinosaur National Monument. West of Fruitland—93 miles west of Vernal—approximately 29 miles of the route is at an elevation of 7000 feet. Included in this section, there are 22 miles at an altitude greater than 7500 feet, with an 8000-foot summit at Berthar's Ranch, at the entrance to Daniel's Canyon. The next summit worthy of note is at Parley's Canyon, 18 miles east of Salt Lake City—at an elevation of 7100 feet. From here the road descends rapidly to an altitude of 4200 feet at Salt Lake City. Of the 371 miles across Utah, 81 miles is paved, 107 miles consists of gravel surfacing, and 183 miles is unimproved.

Nevada.—The Nevada State line is passed 0.4 miles west of Wendover, Utah, and from here the ascent is rather rapid through Silver Zone Pass—elevation 5800 feet—to the summit of the Pequop range—elevation 7000 feet above sea level. West of Wells the road passes around the Ruby Mountains, follows the valley of the Humboldt River through a sparsely-settled cattle-raising country, and skirts the Carson Sink, another one of the salty remnants of ancient Lake Bonneville. The 424-mile length across Nevada is surfaced with gravel or better, and is travelable at 40 miles an hour. Practically the entire distance has been constructed with Federal-aid funds. The sparse settlement of this State makes Federal aid essential. The State boundary is 12 miles west of Reno.

CALIFORNIA.—Leaving Reno, the road follows the Truckee River, and at the State boundary begins the ascent of a long grade into the heart of the Sierra Nevada Mountains. Twenty-two miles west of the State line, the town of Truckee is passed, and 2½ miles further along may be seen the Donner Pass Pioneer Monument. Seven miles beyond, the summit of the High Sierra is passed, through the Donner Pass, at an elevation of 7236 feet above sea level, the east side of the summit, through Emigrant Gap—20 miles west of the summit—elevation 5800 feet, to Blue Canyon—elevation 4700 feet—is likely to be blocked by snow at any time after Oct. 15, and to remain closed until the following April or May. After passing over the seven miles of forest highway, built with Federal funds over the Sierra Nevada range, the route gradually leaves the timbered areas and reaches Auburn. Sacramento, 36 miles further, is now a beautiful city. From here it is only 96 miles to Oakland, on San Francisco Bay, and then 5½ miles across the bay by ferry to San Francisco. Of the 233 miles in California, 142 miles are paved, 16 are surfaced with bituminous macadam, and 75 miles are graded and drained. Seventy-eight miles in this State have been built or are being improved with Federal aid and forest funds totaling $1,401,274. Arr ing in San Francisco — days after leaving Atlantic C at the eastern terminus of 40, one of the first sights is Ports mouth Square in the center the city. It was here, on July 1846, that Capt. Montgomery, the United States sloop-of-w Portsmouth, raised the Americ flag on the plaza of the city called "Yerba Buena" and an nounced that the United has taken possession of North California. The trip across country has been made at an erage rate of 100 miles a This includes week-end stops side trips for sight-seeing.

OZARK RIDGE ROADS EASY TO CONSTRUCT

Cost Is Less Than Gravel Highways, Mobberly Says.

Building of state highways along what are known as "ridge roads" in the Ozarks presents a different problem than is found in any other section of the state and, with the exception of bridges, means less expense for a graveled highway, according to H. P. Mobberly, division highway engineer with headquarters at Springfield, Mo.

"Specifications for constructed graveled highways along those sections that follow Ozark ridges are different from those provided for the construction of such roads in any other part of the state," Mobberly said. "About the only specification needed for a state highway that is to follow a ridge in the Ozarks is to scarify and grade.

"When the state department first began building roads in the Ozarks, the standard specifications were expected to be followed. This meant that the grade was to be established by the engineers, after which a contract would be awarded for grading the highway and then adding an eight inch course of gravel.

"It wasn't long before we found out that in building roads along the ridges, such specifications were unnecessary. With about 800 feet of gravel and rock already on the ground, there wasn't any need of grading the road and then hauling more gravel to be put on for the wearing surface.

"So we changed the specifications to "scarify and grade." Most of these roads have been followed for nearly a year, but even this isn't necessary because the ridges are about the same whether they have or haven't been followed by highways.

"The scarifying is done in order to remove the larger rock. The surface is torn up, the larger rock are thrown aside and then the remaining gavel is graded. That provides about as good a gravel road as anyone can ask, and the expense is far less than if the road had been graded first and then gravel hauled from somewhere else to be used for surfacing.

"Where the road follows a valley, however, the procedure is different. The road has to be buil up more in order to prevent washing—and even then the washing isn't altogether stopped by any means."

An effort is being made, according to the engineer, to work ou a system of county highways i the Ozarks that will follow th ridges as extensively as possible i order to lessen grades and reduc costs, especially through the elimination of concrete bridges necessary where a road crosses rathe than runs parallel to the wate courses.

Cost Is Less Than Gravel Highways, Mobberly Says.

Building of state highways along what are known as "ridge roads" in the Ozarks presents a different problem than is found in any other section of the state and, with the exception of bridges, means less expense for a graveled highway, according to H. P. Mobberly, division highway engineer with headquarters at Springfield, Mo.

"Specifications for constructed graveled highways along those sections that follow Ozark ridges are different from those provided for the construction of such roads in any other part of the state," Mobberly said. "About the only specification needed for a state highway that is to follow a ridge in the Ozarks is to scarify and grade.

"When the state department first began building roads in the Ozarks, the standard specifications were expected to be followed. This meant that the grade was to be established by the engineers, after which a contract would be awarded for grading the highway and then adding an eight inch course of gravel.

"It wasn't long before we found out that in building roads along the ridges, such specifications were unnecessary. With about 800 feet of gravel and rock already on the ground, there wasn't any need of grading the road and then hauling more gravel to be put on for the wearing surface.

"So we changed the specifications to "scarify and grade." Most of these roads have been followed for nearly a year, but even this isn't necessary because the ridges are about the same whether they have or haven't been followed by highways.

"The scarifying is done in order to remove the larger rock. The surface is torn up, the larger rock are thrown aside and then the remaining gavel is graded. That provides about as good a gravel road as anyone can ask, and the expense is far less than if the road had been graded first and then gravel hauled from somewhere else to be used for surfacing.

"Where the road follows a valley, however, the procedure is different. The road has to be built up more in order to prevent washing—and even then the washing isn't altogether stopped by any means."

An effort is being made, according to the engineer, to work out a system of county highways in the Ozarks that will follow the ridges as extensively as possible in order to lessen grades and reduce costs, especially through the elimination of concrete bridges necessary where a road crosses rather than runs parallel to the water courses.

First Auto Shrine.

The first "automobile shrine" or blessing station in the United States is planned at Cincinnati, O.. Rev. William P. O'Conner has been granted permission to establish the shrine at his church, St. Vincent de Paul's, on the Atlantic-Pacific highway, where hundreds of tourists pass daily, by the Archbishop of Cincinnati, John T. McNicholas. If the tourists wish, a St. Christopher medallion will be attached to the car. St. Christopher is the patron and protecting saint of travelers.

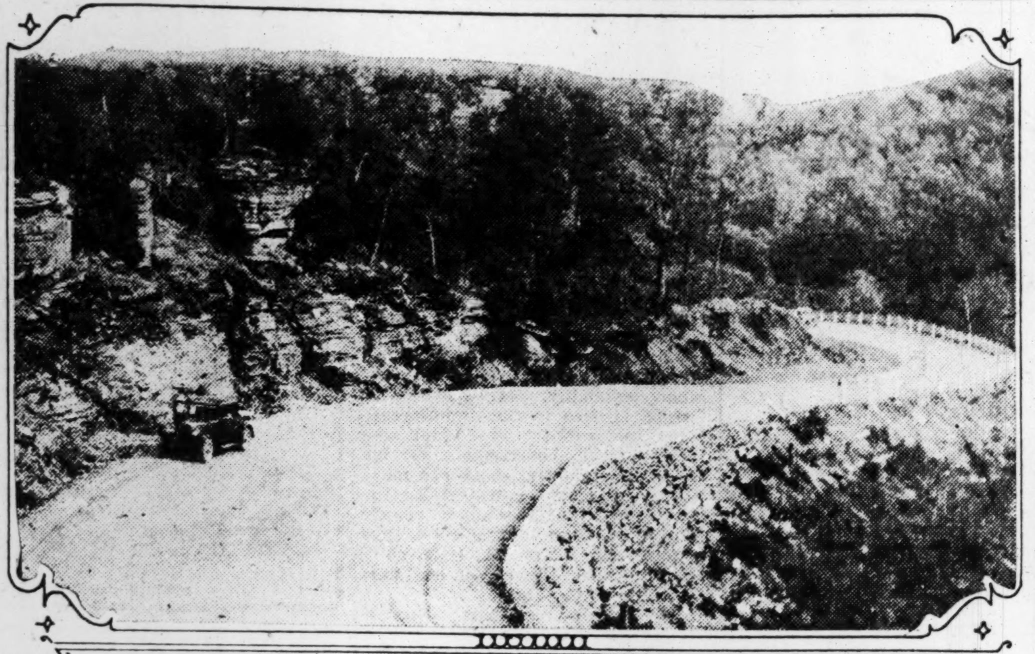
TYPE OF ROADS ARKANSAS IS BUILDING



THE ABOVE PHOTOGRAPH was made on Arkansas State Highway No. 72, between Eureka Springs and Rogers, and is considered one of the most beautiful scenic drives in the Ozarks. It is one of the Arkansas $52,000,000 roads.

Good Morning, Your Car Has Gas and Oil!

A TOURIST from St. Louis recently encountered a pleasant surprise at a garage in Charleston, W. Va., where he left his car overnight. Calling for it in the morning, it was brought down promptly from an upper floor with a printed card stuck under the blade of the windshield. The card said:

"Good morning. Your windshield has been cleaned; your gas tank shows 'full;' your oil gauge shows 'full.'"

The parking charge was only 75 cents and there was no tipping. The attention and service was in marked contrast with many ostensibly first-class establishments found on the road, and this is an idea which other garage operators might wish to adopt. It is a good way, incidentally, to boost gasoline and oil sales. Every tourist knows, also, the need of frequent windshield cleaning.

Gardner Ranked High by Wall Street Journal

Placed Fifth in Production in Entire Auto Industry.

Production figures of the 30 manufacturers of passenger automobiles in the United States, for the first six months of 1928, recently compiled by the Wall Street Journal, place the Gardner Motor Car Co. here high among the leaders in the industry.

With a large percentage production gain for the first six months of 1928 over the same period of 1927, Gardner is numbered among the five companies in the entire industry showing the largest gain. Gardner has shown a substantial percentage gain in production for the first six months of the years 1926, 1927 and 1928, according to the figures compiled.

Detroit Auto Squad Chief Favors Thief Proof Door Handle

Inspector Parker, Inventor of First Car "Lock," Inspects Oakland Device.

Detective-Inspector Lucius H. Parker, veteran chief of the automobile recovery squad of the Detroit Police Department, approves heartily of the additional protection afforded Oakland and Pontiac owners by the new type of outside door handle which cannot be forced by automobile thieves.

Inspector Parker was invited to test the new device. He brought with him a set of "tools" taken from a captured automobile thief. The set included a long-handled wrench and sections if iron pipe which the thieves use to force open the doors of locked cars.

Attaching the wrench to the locked door handle of a Pontiac six, Inspector Parker exerted his full strength. Under the extreme force of the wrench the door handle slowly turned.

"That ought to do it," said the inspector, but the door remained securely locked. The new handle is so devised that it merely will turn under pressure without releasing the locked door catch. Any Oakland-Pontiac service station can restore the door handle in a few moments to its proper position. The door locks of course are in addition to the semicoincidental lock which locks both ignition and transmission with a turn of the ignition key.

'Any device such as this lock which complicates the work of the automobile thief naturally is welcomed by the police," said Inspector Parker.

The auto squad chief, incidentally, recovered the first automobile stolen in Detroit and in so doing invented the first automobile lock. Twenty years ago he rode a bicycle as a member of the Detroit "Scorcher squad," which pursued fast cyclists. Parker found the stolen car abandoned on a side street. In order to be sure it would not be stolen again while he was notifying the owner, he rolled it close to an iron fence to which he handcuffed one of the wheels.

Graham-Paige Production Is Setting Record

Production by the Graham-Paige Motors Corporation for 1928 reached 43,556 units on July 18, passing the total for the entire year 1923, which has heretofore stood as the high record for production in the 18 years' history of the factory. The next day's production put the total over 43,762, double the output for all last year.

All old records for production, by the day, week, month and year, have now been surpassed by the new line of cars introduced this year by the Graham Brothers as the first passenger cars to bear their name.

Three Records for Oakland-Pontiac

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PONTIAC, Mich., Aug. 18.—Registering a gain of more than 62 per cent over any previous six months in its history, the Oakland Motor Car Co. for the half-year ended July 1, sold a total of 161,548 Oakland and Pontiac cars, W. R. Tracy, vice president in charge of sales announces. The six months' record compares with shipment of 99,366 cars during the corresponding period in 1927, and 60,597 from Jan. 1 to July 1, in 1926.

Not only was this period the largest on record, but June also was the greatest month in Oakland history, with 30,245 cars sold. The figure for June this year compares with 20,080 cars last June and is nearly three times the 11,591 Oaklands and Pontiacs shipped in June, 1926.

A record high day also was reached on June 30, Tracy announced, when 1677 Pontiac and Oakland sixes went out to dealers.

What's a Dynamo?

In England the generator is refered to as a "dynamo." The windshield is termed the "windscreen." A sedan model is a "saloon." Gasoline is known as "petrol." "Antibounce clips" take the roughness out of British highways.

Political Plates.

Roadside canvassers in Massachusetts have found a new way to take straw votes on President. They count the "political nameplates" on automobiles.

New Pontiac Assemblying Plant In Saskatchewan

Factory at Regina Also Will Do Body Building and Painting.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PONTIAC, Mich., Aug. 18.—Construction is now under way on a new Canadian Pontiac six factory at Regina, Saskatchewan, where 88 acres of city property have been taken over by General Motors of Canada for the project.

Daily production will reach 150 cars and employment is estimated at 800 workers.

In addition to assembling cars the plant also will be used for body building, trimming and painting operations.

Increased Profits For Graham-Paige

Based on schedules for the latter part of June, it is expected that Graham-Paige Motors Corporation will report earnings for the first six months of the current year of $1,875,000, after all charges and Federal taxes. Of this amount, $257,783 was earned in the first quarter and $1,617,000 is estimated for the second quarter.

A progressive monthly increase in profits is indicated for the current quarter. Earnings for April are estimated at $475,000, and May at $548,000. It is expected that June will show profits of about $600,000. June alone, therefore, should show more than double net of the entire first quarter of the year.

All Brakes Not Self-Energizing

Wouldn't you prefer a car built in the World's Most Modern Automobile Plant?

Today you demand infinitely more in your automobile than you did five years ago. You demand higher top speed. You insist on more trustworthy performance. You want greater snap and acceleration. And you expect longer life, because you understand the importance of long life to resale value.

In order to satisfy you, Oakland now builds the All-American Six and the Pontiac Six with greater care than ever before. Where tolerances of one-thousandth of an inch were once permissible, now scores of operations are accurate within one ten-thousandth of an inch.

Oakland and Pontiac Sixes are built in factories constructed almost entirely within the past two years. Oakland is constantly discarding and replacing equipment, content to use only the very newest, most accurate designs. Oakland inspection standards are second to none in the industry, regardless of the price of the cars to which they are applied.

Wouldn't you prefer a car built in the world's most modern automobile plant with standards of precision such as Oakland employs? Drive an All-American Six or a Pontiac Six, and you'll find the answer to your question in the superior performance, stamina and reliability of these two great General Motors cars.

Oakland All-American Six, $1045 to $1265. Pontiac Six, $745 to $875. All prices at factory. Check Oakland-Pontiac delivered prices—they include lowest handling charges. General Motors Time Payment Plan available at minimum rate.

HEAVY AUTO OUTPUT FOR 1928 EXPECTED

Total Should Be 4,399,000 Units, Authorities Are Agreed.

THE total production of motor vehicles for the United States and Canada for 1928 should be in excess of 4,399,000 passenger cars and trucks, coming within a relatively few thousands of the record of 4,503,531 units set by the industry in 1926, industry authorities in Detroit are agreed.

This forecast is based on the assumption that the percentage of cars built in the last half of the year will be in line with the average percentage of the yearly total built in the second six months of the year over the past 10 years. As a matter of fact, the estimate for 1928 can be termed conservative in that the latter half of the year gives promise of producing more than its usual percentage of the yearly total.

Over a period of 10 years, the production for the second six months has averaged 47.2 per cent of each year's total production. The total number of vehicles produced by the industry in the first six months of this year was 2,326,887.

The total motor vehicles produced for the first six months of 1928 was 5.8 per cent greater than the total for the same period of last year when 2,195,155 motor vehicles were manufactured. This year's output fell 6.4 per cent short of the 2,483,453 January-June production of the record year of 1926.

While production of passenger cars was increased 8.9 per cent in the first six months of this year over the total produced in the like period of 1927, the wholesale value of passenger cars increased only 1.4 per cent.

Holds That Future Of Auto Depends On Rubber Supply

Marmon Chief Decries Foreign Monopoly of Product.

"One reason why the United States operates more automobiles than all the European nations combined is that we control our own output of petroleum. The future of the automobile, however, depends on rubber as on gasoline, and while America consumes 76 per cent of the world's output of this commodity, 81 per cent of which is used in the manufacture of tires, rubber production and control still constitute a foreign monopoly, and unless we can manage to grow rubber in America, the development of the motor vehicle will continue to be more or less hampered," says H. H. Brooks, general sales director of the Marmon Motor Car Co.

"A foreign monopoly," Brooks said recently, "can control prices only up to certain limits. Synthetic rubber has been made from turpentine and even from the soya bean, now being cultivated so extensively in Manchuria in the Japanese controlled zone of the South Manchuria railroads. Germany, pressed by wartime necessity, evolved several laboratory substitutes, though in all probability, the lack of rubber had a good deal to do with breaking down the German war machine.

"A country so highly motorized as America would be seriously inconvenienced, especially in wartime, by an interruption even for a short period, of the rubber supply, and there is not enough rubber on hand to meet the world demand for more than five of six months at the most.

"If the automobile is to continue as a factor in American progress, we must do something to break this foreign monopoly."

Radio to Warn Atlantic Coast Of Hurricanes

Special Storm Service From Station in Carribean Sea Planned.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—From Swan island in the Carribean Sea famed in pirate legend as the burial place of treasure, radio will send warnings of impending hurricanes.

The United States weather bureau has arranged with the Tropical Radio Co. to establish a station on the island and to transmit observations by the operator twice a day during the hurricane season, in August, September and October. In addition, special warnings will be broadcast regarding the inception and location of storms.

Lying northeast of Honduras and south of Cuba, the island is near the center of America's hurricane breeding belt. It is in the path of many of the big storms which lash the Antilles, wreck shipping and occasionally sweep on to the Gulf states.

A wireless station operated there years ago by the Tropical Radio Co. was discontinued. At the request of the Weather Bureau, this station is to be reopened.

A. L. Meggers, veteran radio operator and experienced weather observer, will be in charge. He and a mechanic, the only white men on the island, are setting up the plant.

"Governor's Day at the County Fair" will be depicted in the broadcast of the Stetson Parade over KSD at 4:00 this afternoon.

The program opens with the planting of a microphone on the midway with the crowds around its attractions, on their way to the grandstand and the race track. As usual, a band concert precedes the racing part of the afternoon. The concert brings back to radio listeners George Ventre's American Legion Band of Weymouth Post. The races get under way and a description is broadcast while officials of the fair are awaiting the arrival of the Governor. Just at the end of the first heat, the distinguished visitor arrives and listeners are switched to another misrophone at the entrance gates where the band and the whole county gather to greet the State Executive. The party then returns to the grandstand for a windup of the racing and a broadcast description of other features.

Debussy's Quartet in G, the only music he composed in this form, is to be played over KSD at 5 o'clock this evening by the National String Quartet.

The usual Capitol Family concert will be broadcast from New York over KSD from 5:30 to 7 o'clock this evening.

The story of treachery in payment for unflagging devotion and kindness is contained in "The Revolt of Absalom" in the Biblical drama broadcast over KSD at 7.45 tonight. Absalom was first exiled from Jerusalem by his father, King David, for having murdered his brother, Amnon, in a fit of anger. Three years later he was allowed to return and enjoy in full measure the favor of his father. In return for his father's forgiveness, he soon becomes involved in another plot to wrest the kingdom from David's hands and install himself as ruler over Israel. Fortunately, for the king, his councillor stumbled upon the plot and in spite of David's affection for his son, manages to twist Absalom's plot to effect the traitor's own death.

DECLARES THAT TELEVISION IS BUT EXPERIMENT

their audiences and, so, could not survive. The status of broadcasting today was shown, he said, by the fact that political leaders believed the election would be won or lost by radio. Speaking as a manufacturer, he declared belief that the broadcasting situation looked more promising than ever before, now that the Federal Radio Commission was functioning.

The radio industry has reached the point where a set is an electrical device, but not an electrical appliance, Frost said. That is, it may be classed with the electrical refrogerator or sewing machine, but not with the vacuum cleaner.

Frost found that at last radio manufacturer, jobber and dealer were realizing that their interest was common, and that the industry had become stabilized. The manufacturers have solved the mass production problem; but they still are wrestling with that of the cost of distribution, which is due largely to the fact that radio products are sold in connection with so many other businesses, all with different overhead and methods of reckoning costs. The chain stores will be recognized and dealt with by American manufacturers, Frost said, but that does not mean that any dealer will be put out of business unless he deserves to be. The successful, live dealer has nothing to fear from the chain store."

Frost, who has won his way to leadership in the radio industry, is a large man physically—an inch or two over six feet tall, big-chested, husky looking, devoted to his dogs, his horses, his guns.

Incidentally, Frost is a partner of "Uncle Jim" Owens, the noted lion hunter of Arizona, in ownership of a herd of b[illegible] that ranges a tract back of the North Rim of the Grand Canyon. He hunts with Owens whenever he gets a chance, and is thoroughly familiar with that rugged part of the West.

He started in radio by managing a department in a Chicago business, in 1915. Enlisting that year as a private in the Illinois National Guard, he saw service as a Second Lieutenant on the Mexican border, then was in the Regular Army from 1916 to 1919, coming out as a major. He started his own radio business in 1921 and sold it in 1925 to become general salesmanager of the E. T. Cunninghai [illegible] the tube manufacturer. He re[illegible]sented Illinois on the Hoover radio conference, 1922-24. He was the first president of the Radio Manufacturers' Association, in 1923. Last February he became president of the Kolster Radio Corporation.

G. M. C. Will Use Chain on Coast

General Motors is to extend its broadcasting activities to the Pacific Coast, according to Alfred H. Swayne, vice president of the corporation.

CHRYSLER genius produces a wizardry of Style and Value

New Chrysler "75" 2-passenger Coupe (with rumble seat), $1535 (Wire wheels extra)

IT IS PERFECTLY apparent that the new Chrysler "75" and "65," in the richness of their dress and the marvelous efficiency of their performance, reach upward and outdo cars far, far beyond them in price.

They are readily singled out by a host of distinctive features of the style that re-styles all motor cars. The new slender-profile chromium-plated radiator harmonizes with the cowl mouldings. The "arched-window" silhouette matches the louvre panels of the bonnet. There is unusual grace in the sweep of the "air-wing" fenders and in the lines of the rear deck of roadsters and coupes.

And for performance, the new Chryslers have the "Silver-Dome" high-compression engine using any fuel—the counterweighted 7-bearing crankshaft—the unusual safety and ease of internal-expanding hydraulic 4-wheel brakes, with squeakless moulded brake lining, efficient in any weather.

The new Chryslers have special ease of riding, due to longer chassis, exclusive design springs, rubber shock insulators and Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers.

There is no wizardry in such additions of greater value—they have their source and explanation in the solid, substantial manufacturing policy of Standardized Quality, originated by and peculiar to Chrysler, which passes on to its cars of lesser price the quality features of its cars of highest price.

If there is the shadow of a doubt in your mind of the working-efficiency of this unique principle—closely compare the "75" and "65" with the best cars you can find selling for hundreds—yes, even a thousand dollars more. 1399

5000-WATT STATION IN TENNESSEE

WLAC, at Nashville, to Use Super-Power—Screen Grid Tubes for WHAS.

A 5000-watt transmitter is being built for WLAC, Nashville, Tenn., and is to be in operation in a few weeks, permission to use that much power having been granted by the Federal Radio Commission.

Heretofore, WLAC, which is owned by the Life and Casualty Insurance Co., has been authorized to use only 150 watts on the 226-meter (1330-kilocycle) wave length. So this station is seldom tuned in by listeners in the St. Louis district.

Once the new transmitter is in operation, WLAC should be picked up easily by St. Louis receivers.

The 5000-watt transmitter that WHAS, Louisville, Ky., is to have in operation Oct. 1 will replace a 500-watt plant that sent out its first program July 18, 1922. This new transmitter is said to reproduce sounds for broadcasting with remarkable fidelity. Screen grid tubes are to be used in the transmitter amplifier, as well as a constant-current system of modulation.

Coolidge Assured Of Summer Radio

WASHINGTON.—President Coolidge is assured good radio reception at his summer residence on the Brule River, an isolated spot in Wisconsin, as a result of action by the Federal Radio Commission.

To make sure that the President may have reception from the outside world, the commission decided temporarily to increase the power of WEBC, at Superior, Wis., from 250 to 1000 watts for evening broadcasting during the summer.

WEBC is said to be a representative station of that section of the country. It is operated by the Head of the Lakes Broadcasting Co.

For the Notebook.

Weak "C" batteries will cause buzzing in a loud speaker.

Corrosion of a battery terminal may appear green or white.

Ammonia can be used to clean corrosion of battery terminals, but do not get any of the liquid inside the cells.

New tubes may be damaged by a heavy static discharge, such as operating the set during a severe lightning storm.

DX results depend on the effectiveness of the ground. Try different connections until a satisfactory one is found.

Cheap grades of grid lead employing inked paper strips or uncertain metallic coatings or even smoked glass, are apt to introduce a great deal of "static" in the radio reception.

HOOVER WILL SPEAK ON AIR AGAIN AUG. 21

Home-coming Celebration in Iowa to Be Broadcast Tuesday Evening.

A "home-coming" celebration for Herbert Hoover at West Branch, Ia., is to be broadcast over a chain of stations allied with the National Broadcasting Co. KWK will be the St. Louis station in the network. The broadcast is scheduled to begin at 7 p. m. St. Louis time next Tuesday.

Hoover will speak at West Branch before people who knew him as a school boy. Although the population of the town is only about 750, it is expected that 30,000 or more persons will attend the celebration.

Norman Sweetser, NBC announcer, will be at the microphone.

Stations scheduled to broadcast at the Hoover celebration are: WCCO, Minneapolis; WTMJ, Milwaukee; KOA, Denver; WHAS, Louisville; WLW, Cincinnati; WSM, Nashville; WMC, Memphis; WSB, Atlanta; WBT, Charlotte; KVOO, Tulsa; WFAA, Dallas; KPRC, Houston; WOAI, San Antonio; KWK, St. Louis; KYW, Chicago; WREN, Kansas City; WOC, Davenport; WHO, Des Moines; WOW, Omaha.

Radio Trade Notes.

The new Kolster receivers and speakers were shown to dealers in the St Louis territory at a meeting held at Hotel Coronado Wednesday which was attended by Herbert H. Frost, president of the Kolster Radio Corporation and head of the Radio Manufacturers' Association. The program, which was arranged by Gene Straus, vice-president of the Straus Co., Kolster distributer, included a meeting in the forenoon; a buffet luncheon; an afternoon session, and a banquet at night. There were 209 dealers and their representatives present. Speakers at the business sessions included H. A. Hutchins, general sales manager of the Kolster Corporation; Fred Kahn, service manager, and Walter Thinn, district manager. A point brought out by Hutchins was that 60 per cent of a radio receiver's cost goes for raw materials.

Speakers at the banquet, at which Gene Straus presided, were Frost and John Cole, a noted New York advertising expert, who is in charge of Kolster advertising. An incident at the banquet was the presentation by Frost of a silver-mounted ebony gavel to E. E. Bruns, who is president of the Kolster Dealers' Club in this district.

Sixteen new Kolster receivers were on exhibition—electric sets, battery sets and portables. There were also magnetic and dynamic speakers for use with 171A or 310 power tubes and a 60 cycle B eliminator.

The electric sets are in two classes—one class including complete 6-tube and 7-tube receivers, the other made up of a 4-tube and a 5 tube set. The 4-tube and 5-tube types are in metal containers and are for insertion in bookcases, wall recesses or special furniture. They are to be used with separate audio amplifiers.

The 6-tube electric and battery sets have walnut cabinets of new design. The console models have magnetic speakers built in the Kolster plant.

There are three models of the 7-tube console sets, one having a 371 power tube, one a 310 tube and the third a 350 super power tube.

A switch varies sensitivity and selectivity in the 6-tube sets, while the extra tube in the 7-tubers and new developments in antenna and R. F. systems give greater distance range.

Single dial tuning, illuminated dials and thorough shielding are common to all the receivers. The volume control is changed from varying the filament current to a method that keeps the filament constant and gives instantaneous volume control. There is also a new filter system.

Otto E. Heilmann has been appointed factory representative for the Benjamin radio line, including tube sockets.

Harry W. Menges has taken on the line of Champion radio tubes as factory representative.

What the broadcasting of the national conventions, the speeches of Hoover and Smith and other important events this summer have meant to the radio industry is illustrated by a report from the Crosley plants in Cincinnati to Gellar, Ward-Hasner, Crosley distributer here, that July sales of receivers and speakers were several times as large as those in the same month in previous years. The report stated that the factory has been making 1500 of the new Crosley Dynacone dynamic speakers a day, is to raise production to 2000 a day this week and to 4000 daily in a few weeks.

The Silverstone Music Co. has been appointed distributer of an AC tube radio receiver and a radio-phonograph combination which Thomas Edison is to put on the market. It is expected that the new Edison sets will be seen in St. Louis within a month.

The Edison receiver is designed in console models only. Each model has a super power amplifier using a 250-tube, and each has a dynamic speaker built in. The result, of course, is great volume if wanted and realism of reproduction.

Tuning control is by a single dial. Shielding is complete. Each receiver has a phonograph jack and change-over switch. Cabinets are made in Edison's own woodworking plants.

A feature is provision for sharply selective tuning when it is desired to shut out unwanted local stations, and for increased sensitivity for distance tuning. A turn of a switch one way makes the receiver a straight radio frequency set of great selectivity. A turn of the switch the other way makes it a distance getter of unusual ability.

The Edison radio-phonograph set contains an Edison receiver and an Edison electric phonograph electrically driven. Its electric pick-up plays Edison and other kinds of records, whether "hill-and-dale" or "needle type."

A Sonatron power tube, containing a filament for use with alternating current, is announced. It is called X171 AC. Engineers say this tube has a longer life than the direct current 171 or 171A.

W. E. Fuetterer has been appointed distributer of Federal receivers and speakers in the St. Louis territory. The new Federal sets include AC tube, all-electric and battery models, all with special balanced, shielded circuits and single tuning control, and all built according to precision standards. Federal is making its own speakers and furniture as well as receivers.

There are both six-tube and seven-tube models, in table and console types. The seven-tube sets have push-pull final audio stage, using two of the 210 power tubes, and so are capable of great volume as well as realistic reproduction. Selectivity and distance getting ability are said to be exceptional.

Console models have built-in speakers, either the large air column or the drynamic type, as preferred. In the past Federal receivers have been recognized as leaders in tone quality; the new sets surpass last season's models in this respect, due largely to improvement in the audio amplification.

The seven-tube Federals are operated with loops instead of antenna, the console models having the loops in the doors.

Singing Contest Dates Announced

St. Louis District Contest in Atwater Kent Audition on Sept 6 and 7.

The St. Louis district elimination contest in the National Atwater Kent Foundation audition is to be held at the Congress Hotel, this city, on the nights of Sept. 6 and 7. Entries for the district contest, which will be closed Sept. 1, are being received by Mrs. Frederick Nussbaum, Missouri State chairman.

Winners in the district eliminations will compete in a Missouri State audition, winners of which will meet other State winners in a Mid-West district competition in Chicago. The finals will be held in New York, probably in December.

Radio to Aid in Marketing Fruit And Vegetables

California Growers to Establish Chain of Short Wave Stations.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—Radio is to be used extensively by the fruit and vegetable growing industries of California to promote efficiency and economy in marketing produce.

The Federal Radio Commission has granted temporary permission to the California Department of Agriculture to establish a network of short wave radio stations which will transmit hourly market information by code. These reports will be received at amateur stations and on receiving sets owned by producers and will be distributed to the local growers and associations in the form of news bulletins.

It is planned to use stations operated by the California Fish and Game Department for the service which is to start early in October.

Permission has been requested to establish at Sacramento a central station, linked with regular broadcasting stations, for radio telephone dissemination of daily market news and weather reports.

Radio Expedition To Borneo Planned

Broadcast and Short Wave Tests Under Tropical Conditions Would Be Objectives.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Aug. 18.—A small, but thoroughly equipped semi-scientific expedition is to be sent to Borneo by the All-American Mohawk Corporation, according to E. N. Rauland, president of the company. The expedition, he said, would study tropical radio reception problems and demonstrate the utility of the standard American radio receiver in remote parts of the world. There are a number of broadcasting stations in Australia and the Orient.

One aim of the expedition, Rauland said, would be to conduct a series of tests to determine the exact effects of tropical atmosphere and climatic conditions on reception, using a receiver made by the corporation and laboratory apparatus. There also would be a fine opportunity to study short wave transmission and reception under tropical conditions, and to determine what wave lengths would be most suitable in such regions. A special portable short wave transmitter is to be developed for compactness and simplicity.

"Will Rogers for President" Program

The Kolster period on the Columbia chain on the night of Sept. 12 is to be turned over to the magazine, "Life," which is to arrange a "Will Rogers for President" broadcast.

The idea for this program, evidently, was derived from the incident in a nation-wide broadcast when Will Rogers humorously pretended to be speaking as President Coolidge.

Balkite announces the new AC set

Refinement is the keynote—a simple, practical, trouble-free set that fully matches the reception of complicated laboratory mechanisms—with cabinets by Berkey & Gay

Balkite A-5—The Table Model. Walnut cabinet, by Berkey & Gay. Complete, but for tubes and speaker—$230.00.

Balkite A-3—The same, in a simple but sightly all-metal case. Complete, but for tubes and speaker—$197.50.

Balkite A-7—Housed in a beautifully hand-carved walnut cabinet by Berkey & Gay. Dynamic speaker. Complete, but for tubes—$487.50.

CABINETS BY Berkey & Gay

The time has come for radio that will serve you just as a fine car does—with no thought on your part for the mechanism.

Balkite announces such radio in this new AC set. It embodies notable inventive features, developed in the Balkite laboratories; but chiefly we wish to emphasize the engineering fineness of it.

For it is engineering refinement that makes this set so simple, compact and trouble-free; yet that gives you the same beautiful quality of reception that has hitherto been possible only with complicated devices and laboratory conditions.

Balkite, as one of the important factors in radio development, has long foreseen the necessity of such a set and has devoted its energies, over a long period of time, to production of it.

This new set is AC in every sense of that loose term, a complete unit ready to operate from your light socket. It is AC without hum. It has push-pull audio, complete shielding, dynamic speaker power, a jack for reproducing records electrically, tube protection against high voltage.

"The Two Black Crows," at 7:30 p. m. Moran and Mack are planning to include in the first two broadcasts of this series, just enough of their now famous "lines" to establish them for the radio audience as their "old familiar selves." Beginning with the third performance of the series, Moran and Mack are to bring a group of new sketches, based on the experiences of a colored man in the war. This material, according to Charles E. Mack, is "brand-new," never before having been played on the stage or recorded. It will consist largely of material from a book which they are to publish, which will not be made public for several months. Other humorous sketches new to the radio audience which are to be included in the series pertain to a rural colored volunteer fire department, and another is the Jail Sketch, known to some theatergoers, but new to the radio audience.

Two Power Plants In Gas-Electric Bus

One of the latest contributions to surface traffic is a 40-passenger gas-electric bus resembling a trolley car in general appearance, with vestibules in the front and rear and the driving mechanism mounted beneath the body instead within the conventional hood. The vehicle weighs 17,200 pounds without passengers.

Two power plants are installed. Each consists of a 50-horsepower gasoline engine driving a generator which furnishess electricity to the motors which drive the bus. Each is geared to a rear wheel. Each power plant is complete and independent of the other with the exception of the gasoline throttles, which are operated by one accelerator pedal.

Kingsford Smith and Charles Ulm, co-pilots of the Southern Cross, which recently made one of the longest airplane flights in history, have each purchased a new Studebaker President eight state sedan. The two cars were delivered to these intrepid airmen in Sydney, Australia, on July 12.

Four Causes Found For Sluggish Engines

Considering their task is fairly easy, starting motors should not be inclined to be sluggish during warm weather. But, due to causes other than the temperature, they frequently are inclined to loaf on the job. Usually, one of four possible causes will be found responsible. These include a low battery, poor battery connections, burned or partially grounded starting switch, or trouble in the starting motor itself. In the latter case, the service expert probably will be needed.

DRAMA-MUSIC-MOVIES

PART SIX. ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, AUGUST 19, 1928. PAGES 1—4D

'Aida' Ends Opera Season

American Debut of Lydia Van Gilder to Be One of the High Spots in Wind Up of Tenth Year of Municipal Organization in Forest Park. Leone Kruse and Joseph Wetzel Also in Cast With the Chorus Augmented by One Hundred Local Singers.

WITH a production in English of Giuseppe Verdi's "Aida" in which an augmented cast of grand opera stars and a chorus of 200 singers will participate, Municipal Opera this week, beginning tomorrow night will bring its tenth season to a close. The lighter works will end tonight with the final performance of "Mary."

"Aida" is the single grand opera production listed in the 1928 repertory, in keeping with the association's policy of presenting one classic work each year. Essentially a spectacular pageant, the Verdi masterpiece lends itself ideally to the vast open air stage in Forest Park. Twice before have the music and scenic splendors of "Aida" been unfolded on the park stage—first in 1917 before a meeting of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, and again in 1925.

The presentation this year, however, takes on a national significance because of the American debut in grand opera of Miss Lydia Van Gilder. A native of Hammond, Ind., she has been studying for the past six years in Europe and has been taking major parts at La Scala Opera House in Milan, where most of Verdi's operas were given their first showing.

Miss Van Gilder, a contralto, will be heard in the role of Amneris, and for her debut citizens of Hammond, Ind., are planning a cheering delegation that is expected to give her a more rousing sendoff than that accorded Missouri's Marion Talley when she made her debut at the Metropolitan Opera House.

THE other principals specially engaged for "Aida," are Leone Kruse, a prima donna soprano of the Chicago Civic Opera Company, who next fall is to be one of the stars of the Vienna Opera Company, Howard Preston, also of the Chicago organization, and Joseph Wetzel, tenor, who was heard last season in Municipal Opera's production of "Tales of Hoffman." These vocalists will appear in addition to Joseph Royer and Charles Galagher, members of the regular cast, who have enjoyed an extensive grand opera career.

"Aida" stands out as one of the fertile Verdi's most successful as well as greatest works. "Trovatore" is its only rival for the number of presentations. It marks, indeed, the beginning of the third and richest period of the composer's life, and served to bring him back into the field of composition after he was apparently content to retire to his garden and enjoy the riches his tuneful operas had earned for him.

The Khedive of Egypt was responsible for Verdi's emergence after a retirement of 10 years. On a visit to Italy he visited the composer, and after returning to his home forwarded him a command for an opera to be written on an Egyptian subject for the opening of his Opera House at Cairo, an event occurring in connection with the ceremonies attendant the opening of the Suez Canal.

That the Khedive should think operas were created in such a fashion was a matter of amusing comment in the Verdi household, but finally the idea took hold with the composer, and he turned to his task with his usual intensity. Contrary to general assumption, "Aida" was not the labored product of Verdi's 10 years' retirement, but was completed within a comparatively short time.

The libretto was translated from the French of Locle by Antonio Ghislanzoni, and the story of the opera is said to have originated with Marietta Bey, the famous Egyptologist.

The story seems to have inspired Verdi to unusual efforts, and its presentation at Cairo in 1871 was an event attended by music critics from London, Paris and Berlin. They professed to see in "Aida," a Verdi who cast off the melodic lightness of "Rigoletto" and "Il Trovatore" and found a more organic harmony after the fashion of Richard Wagner.

IN "Aida" Verdi has contributed some of his most melodic strains the while placing them in a stirring harmonic structure. Of all the arias in "Aida," the "Celeste Aida" is perhaps best known but least heard by American opera audiences, for it occurs almost immediately after the beginning of the opera.

Other distinctive arias are "Return Victorious," "Triumphal March," "My Native Land," "Ah, Fly With Me," "Ah, Me! Death Approaches," "The Fatal Stone," and "Farewell, O Earth."

The first scene of the opera is laid in a hall of the palace of the King of Memphis, where Rhadames and the High Priest Ramfis are discussing the coming invasion of Ethiopia, and Ramfis hints that some young brave warrior may be chosen to command the expedition. Left alone, Rhadames hopes that he himself may gain the coveted honor, and promises to lay his triumphs at the feet of Aida, daughter of Amonasro, King of Ethiopia, who has been captured by the Egyptians and is held a slave at the Court of Memphis.

Amneris, daughter of the King of Memphis, enters and seeing the young warrior's glowing enthusiasm, delicately hints of her secret affection for him. In turn Rhadames begins to explain his hope of securing command of the expedition against the Ethiopians, but when Aida enters, he glances at her so expressively that Amneris perceives his love for the Egyptian slave.

After the King and his guards enter, a messenger brings word of the invasion of Egypt by Amonasro in command of the Ethiopian army. Amid great excitement Rhadames is appointed leader of the army to impel the Egyptian forces to guard with their lives the sacred Nile, and as all depart to prepare for the expedition, Aida gives vent to her conflicting emotions, longing for Rhadames to triumph and at the same time praying for her father's safety.

Rhadames before his departure is consecrated by Ramfis, the High Priest, and in the second act the Princess is being adorned by her slaves for the triumphal festival in honor of Rhadames, meanwhile singing an ode to the returned hero. As Aida approaches the Princess dismisses her slaves, and in a stirring duet enjoys her revenge over Aida whom she knows to love Rhadames.

Pola Negri in "Loves of an Actress," at the Missouri.

THE next scene is one of the most impressive of the opera. Laid outside the city gate of Thebes, the King and his court are assembled on a magnificent throne to receive Rhadames. Preceded by trumpeters, the Egyptian troops enter with Rhadames under a canopy borne by 12 slaves. On the entrance of the prisoners Aida perceives her father, Amonasro, and cries out to him, much to the amazement of the assemblage. Amonasro, however, signals her not to betray his true rank.

As the people and prisoners ap-

Second Thoughts On First Nights

By Alison Smith.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.

LAST week the much-trumpeted stage version of "Elmer Gantry" finally arrived after being considered and abandoned by two adaptors before it was undertaken by the valiant Patrick Kearney and after causing a mild flurry of excitement in Cleveland. These misadventures were forgotten long ago and it was as a clear start that the piece came in last Monday. It proved to be a comic strip caricature of Sinclair Lewis' gross and unctuous monster which stalked across the stage of the Playhouse on that night.

"Elmer Gantry was drunk," the novel begins with the emphatic brevity of the Duchess who hitherto had taken no part in the conversation, but a bewildered adapter, faced with such an alarming collection of the Reverend Gentleman's vices, decided, in desperation, to concentrate on one. Elmer Gantry was also almost continually engaged in squalid, back-pulpit amours and the stage version of his history emerges as farce-comedy consideration of the affairs of Elmer.

IN JUSTICE to the impossible task of the dramatist, it may be added that Mr. Lewis himself failed to make a human being out of Elmer. He was never a personality in the sense that George F. Babbitt was a personality, definite enough to be identified with a familiar type on "the American bandwagon." He stands as a symbol of Mr. Lewis' flaming indignation against the system he represents and he is surrounded by innumerable minor figures (some of them far more subtly drawn) which round out the author's infuriate denunciation of what Broadway would call "the salvation racket." The survey included a detailed consideration of all possible phases of our evangelical scene from the Methodist doctrine of the fall from grace to hypocrisies of the vice crusader and the hysteria of the hallelujah tent shows.

It is not difficult to imagine the first frantic confusion of Mr. Patrick Kearney as he viewed the four hundred pages of closely written critique which he had been blandly assigned to make into a play. An attack on evangelical short-comings may have the controversial values on the best-seller book stands, but it is not the stuff from which Broadway successes are made. Floundering in this mass, he apparently clung to three principles; that illicit love affairs are the best possible dramatic material, that laughs must be supplied throughout by way of comedy relief and that the entire structure must explode occasionally into melodrama to break the pattern of its repetitious action.

THIS last requirement probably was responsible for the extraordinary goings on at the Playhouse that night. Brother Gantry was duly involved in his amorous adventures—his seduction of the rustic ingenue, his union with the woman evangelist, his disastrous intrigue with the blackmailing blonde—all presented with the sly chuckles of an American-French farce. It was evident, even to Mr. Kearney, that this was not enough. So a limp and suffocating audience, seeking breezes in the intermission, was suddenly summoned by the brassy strains of "Throw Out the Lifeline" to a revival meeting outside the theater and was just as firmly herded inside where the revival continued on the stage. Some attempt was made to induce the audience to assume their roles as converted sinners, but this Reinhardt gesture didn't quite come off. The crowd laughed, but it wouldn't play and the action halted temporarily until the evangelist's Atlantic City Tabernacle blew up in an excellent imitation of a steam laundry gone mad.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.

MY friend George M. Cohan has pot-shotted columnists in one of his new plays. According to the Yankee Doodle impresario, the columnist is a whisky soaked fellow who makes himself a general nuisance mouthing epigrams. He wears soup spotted clothes, needs a shave and looks as though he might be halitoxic.

He has cast off a good wife and goes the round of amorous activities until he reaches the stage of believing women are the bunk. He goes everywhere there is free food and drink and then curls up on a sofa and cracks cynically at everybody, including his host and hostess.

Cohan had a row with Heywood Broun over something or other this spring and this may be his revenge, but it is a little rough on the average columnist. Being a columnist—anyway I write a column for newspapers—and knowing most of them fairly well and observing the others at various times I am fairly competent to discuss them.

Of all writing men, the columnist is most self-effacing in public. He may sprinkle "I's" through his daily pieces, but he has long since learned the "I" has more of what technicians call "reader interest" than the "we." The "I" is not egoism. It is mere writing carpentry.

With two notable exceptions, I have never seen a columnist showing off or seemingly touched with the conceit he was important. And that is something that can rarely be said of actors. I do not know of a columnist who is not happily married and, if you ask me, pretty good husbands as husbands go. They may step out now and then and make jack-asses of themselves, but who doesn't?

Nor do I know a columnist who is a confirmed sot. Indeed I can name six of the top-notchers who never indulge more than one cocktail or a glass of beer at a sitting. And as for being loud mouthed, I have failed to find a single one who is not inarticulate in a crowd. Nobody ever meets a columnist in company without carrying away an impression of his dumbness.

And if columnists accepted one out of every hundred invitations for free food and drink they would have no time to write a column.

As for shoddy clothes spotted with soup stains, that is too ridiculous to refute. The columnist is almost always a fairly good dresser and one of the best things he does is swing a cane.

Finally the majority of columnists do not in anywise consider they are enriching literature with their daily offering. It is their job to entertain with light, frothy material that will be forgotten in a day. They do not do much harm nor do they do any great amount of good.

So in a rather scared voice I suggest they be allowed to live. After all, the world is tolerant. We allow a lot of actors and playwrights to live.

I like the story of the old lady who came out of the West Virginia hills to the nearest city and had her first glass of soda-water. On the way home she was asked how she liked it.

"Nothing but sweetened wind!" she snorted.

Writes a girl who signs initials R. C. C.: "I am one of those butterfly girls of Broadway you and others have written about so much. I used to think it was just 'newspaper stuff.' But here I am in a cheap hotel, broke and disfigured by a joy riding automobile accident and it is surprising how many former good friends are too busy to answer my letters or to see me when I call. But it is useless to paint those word pictures. None of us will believe it until we hit the bottom. Then all the warnings are too late."

Short Shavings: Ring Lardner is giving up magazine writing to write plays. . . . Charlie Chaplin's favorite dish in New York is corned beef and cabbage. . . . . In New York the talking movie is drawing the heaviest patronage. . . . Those who know say they will eventually kill the silent drama. . . . Freiburg Players in Passion Play Here

Frederick Fischer, St. Louis musical conductor, will conduct the musical part of the American tour of the Freiburg Passion Players. This world's oldest Passion play, antedating Oberammergau by some 400 years, will be presented for the first time in America in the Krug Bowl, St. Joseph, Mo., under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce and Mayor Louis V. Stigall, for eight presentations commencing tonight.

Mr. Fischer prepared a special score for this pageant of the life of the Savior.

Arrangements are under way for the appearance here in St. Louis at the Municipal Theater, probably for nine nights, starting Sept. 1 of these players. A general invitation has been sent out by Mr. Fischer to all members of choral organizations or other unattached singers, both adults and children, who wish to participate in the local presentations.

Harold A. Loring, who has been in St. Joseph directing the choir rehearsals, will arrive in St. Louis this week, and it is expected that active rehearsals will commence next Tuesday night at the Musicians' Club, 3535 Pine street.

Jackie Coogan Comes Back

Child Movie Star Refuses to Follow in the Path of Other Infant Prodigies and Is Now Drawing Down the Highest Salary Paid to Any Vaudeville Performer in the Cinema Palaces of the Country.

By NIE.

WHEN child stage and movie stars outgrow the "cute" age they usually fade out of the picture never to be heard of again and when Jackie Coogan, the reigning sensation of kid films just a few years ago, began to fail as a drawing card on the screen there was every reason to think that he would join Baby Peggy, Wesley Barry and the many other youngsters in the discard. But Jackie fooled 'em all. He started to school, a military school, last winter and now, on his summer vacation, he arrived in St. Louis yesterday for a week at the Ambassador Theater, as the highest salaried vaudeville performer on the stage. The boy, he is just 13, is paid $5600 a week—and gets it. Furthermore his vacation period has found him 12 weeks of work at that figure and without question he could work a year making personal appearances in the cinema palaces throughout the country. Now movie theater managers are not throwing money away, not in these perilous times. The reason young Coogan draws down a king's ransom every week is because he brings a great deal more than that into the box office. Elsewhere he has broken all records for attendance and will probably do the same here.

There have been larger salaries paid for personal appearances in the movie houses but none of them, with the exception of Al Jolson who only put in a couple of weeks at it as a lark, drew down as much cash for themselves. Paul Whiteman got almost double that amount but had to pay his band himself. Gilda Gray and Mae Murray received about the same figure as Coogan but carried other performers and a load of scenery which had to be paid for. Young Jackie has only his father to assist him in his act and he goes along to look out for the boy as much as anything else, although he does take a prominent part on the bill.

JACKIE COOGAN is a perfect example of the actor who was "born to the stage." Jackie's father was a vaudeville star and also played in "Watch Your Step" and in Winter Garden shows, and was a clever dancing comedian. His mother made her debut on the stage in San Francisco as "Baby Lillian," the child songstress, and later she and Rena Rogers, now the wife of Frank Borzage, the movie director, were in vaudeville as a "sister" team.

When Jackie's parents were married they appeared in an act together, and it was while they were in vaudeville that the stork visited them in Los Angeles—and brought Jackie.

Later they went back to vaudeville, and Jackie used to be left in the wings, a toddling baby, while the act went on. One night, at the San Francisco Orpheum, he walked out on the stage and interrupted his father. The elder Coogan, quick to take advantage of the situation, had the baby do some imitations of others on the bill with which he used to amuse those behind the scenes—and Jackie's first vaudeville appearance was a riot.

They played Los Angeles, and Annette Kellermann, on the same bill, induced Coogan Sr. to let Jackie repeat his "act" with her. Charlie Chaplin was watching the show. He had been racking his brains for a story to do. Jackie gave him the idea for "The Kid" and Chaplin induced the Coogans to let the baby play it. That started Jackie to fame.

Then followed "Peck's Bad Boy," "My Boy," "Trouble," "Oliver Twist" and the rest—"A Boy of Flanders," "Long Live the King," "Little Robinson Crusoe," and among his latest, "Buttons," "The Bugle Call" and "Old Clothes."

So when Jackie made his bow in his act at the Ambassador it's no wonder that he had that professional touch. He inherited it.

CALLING the movie people names used to be more or less of a pastime. Now, it seems, it is about to become a science.

Armed with the new scientific terminology of the movies, one can tell Lon Chaney right to his face that he is pleisophonic in his middle register. And if he winces at that one can add:

"You are also a man of eulexiphonic diction, Mr. Chaney, and to me you sound absolutely acoustiphonic."

After that one can seek out Norma Shearer and remind her, without the slightest fear of contradiction, that she is very acousimotonic, not to mention lissophonic, and that her range is obviously hypermesosonic.

As might be imagined, these strange new words have something to do with talking pictures. A whole dictionary of them, about 200 words in all, has been worked out by Prof. W. R. MacDonald of the University of Southern California school of speech.

Professor MacDonald's primary object was the working out of a casting chart on which motion picture casting directors could preserve an absolutely accurate description of a player's voice. He found there was no adequate terminology of the speaking voice which he could use in drawing up the chart, so he invented one. His glossary of 200 words derived from Greek roots proved so interesting that university authorities have asked him to write a monograph on the subject.

THE voice chart is a card on which the exact terms describing each small gradation in a player's voice can be checked during the making of a microphone test. When filed away in a card index the chart preserves for future reference a mathematically exact description of the voice, with much closer shades of meaning than are attempted in the description of a singing voice as alto, contralto, baritone, bass, tenor or soprano.

The general term for any voice capable of being recorded is "cynaphonic." If it is classified as "ellipsotonic" the owner of it might as well forget about talking pictures, for that is just a scientific way of saying the microphone thinks he's terrible.

For the information of film fans who may be writing letters to their favorites of the talking screen here are a few of the new voice-terms, presented with translations into everyday English, which is not so accurate but is easier to pronounce:

pleisophonic—deep branchophonic—hoarse somphophonic—hollow compophonic—ringing diaprusophonic—piercing baraphonic—heavy abrithephonic—light siderophonic—hard apalophonic—soft acrophonic—very high mezzophonic—medium in range eulexiphonic—clear
ellipsotonic—obviously defective.

The foregoing, it should be remembered, are but a handful of the approximately 200 mathemat-

Greta Garbo in "The Mysterious Lady," at Loew's.

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 18.

ONE reason some screen stars never tire of Hollywood is that they see so little of it. Monte Blue is here again, after several months on location in the South Seas, and several more on a vacation tour of Europe. Up to the middle of July he had spent less than two weeks of the current year in this city, so often described as the home of the movie people.

He remained in Austria long enough to fall in love with Vienna, he said, "perhaps because the Viennese still keep in their hearts the traditional Viennese love of life, even without the prosperity once associated with Viennese gayety.

"Very, very few of them can afford automobiles; so they enjoy bicycles. They have little; but they enjoy what they have."

Monte apparently also fell in love with airplanes. He did most of his European traveling in planes, marveling at the safety and regularity of continental air travel. He also wrote copiously in notebooks. "Just my observations on all subjects," he explained; "half a dozen notebooks full of jottings."

In these days of popular demand for biographies it pays to take one's fountain pen along.

There are indications that some producers no longer are willing to assume the public is still interested in war pictuers. Greta Garbo's latest, which was "War in the Dark" during many weeks of production, reached the preview screen as "Woman in the Dark." Now it is being played as "The Mysterious Lady." The word "war" had been eliminated from the title on the theory that some picture goers might expect to smell the smoke of another screen battle spectacle and stay away from the picture on that account. There are no battle scenes in it, but Greta is cast as a beautiful spy who wrecks the career of an officer and then, because she loves him, helps him to clear himself of dishonor.

Conrad Nagel plays the officer. In his uniform and military moustache he looks remarkably like a blond John Gilbert.

Until very recently the word "opera" has been used in motion picture studios chiefly as a comic synonym for the silent film; as in "horse opera," meaning a western picture. Now the universal rush toward sound pictures makes it seem likely that real screen operas will become as numerous as the kind heretofore presented on the stage, and here and there one even notes the blossoming of operatic ambitions among the stars.

Carmel Myers, for example, is eagerly preparing for a screen operatic career. She sang in musical comedy in 1918-19, and since then has continued her voice studies for sheer love of singing, often in the face of a guilty feeling that she was stealing time that belonged to her silent screen career. Now that the screen offers a medium for musical as well as dramatic talent, she feels she is at the beginning of a new great career.

She has already made sound-film test singing opera, and wants as soon as possible to sing in a screen role in light opera, but meanwhile her ukulele and one of the syncopated ballads she composes are scheduled to feature her first talking picture appearance. Anything in the way of a feature-length opera probably will have to wait until sound-film production has reached a more advanced stage of development.

Another film star whose operatic ambitions undoubtedly will shape his future is Ramon Novarro. Novarro's voice has won much praise in film colony musical circles, and during his recent sojourn in Europe he was asked to open his operatic career in Berlin. He feels, however, that sound-pictures soon will offer him a greater opportunity than he could find on any legitimate opera stage.

Then there is Wallace Beery, who sang the title role in "The Prince of Pilsen" years ago. His first sound-picture effort will be a hobo song in "Beggars of Life," but he does not expect to stop there. And James Hall, who left the muscial comedy stage to become Bebe Daniels' leading man, is enthusiastically preparing himself for the coming musical comedy era of the movies.

Former grand opera singers like Andres de Segurola, who already has tried his voice in a talking picture, naturally feel that the new singing screen is arriving just in time to gild their careers as character actors with a really brilliant prosperity.

So often do movie colony orators cite the old Chinese proverb about one picture being worth 10,000 words that the innocent bystander begins to believe anything visible to the eye can be described more quickly and vividly in motion pictures than in writing.

A little conversation with directors, however, reveals that even the best of high-salaried screen writers occasionally dash off scenes on paper that are a million times simpler in words than in pictures.

For instance: "Scene No. 262. Moths fluttering madly about a kerosene lamp, dashing themselves to death against the glass chimney." Now to illuminate a set with lights brilliant enough to make good photography possible, and then make a few dozen moths turn their backs on those lights and dash themselves silly against a 15-candle-power kerosene lamp is a problem some bright cameraman might be able to figure out, and probably has, at one time or another. But the director who lately came across this scene in his script merely sighed and swore and threw it out.

Then there was the infinitely simple-looking scene Lew Cody tried to do in accordance with the script one day. At the psychological moment in a conversation the ash was to fall off his cigar onto the rug. All morning they worked on the scene, the ash falling off repeatedly, but never at the psychological moment. Finally came the psychological moment when Coddy blew up, threw away the rest of the smokes and went to lunch. And in the scrip the cigar-ash scene occupied hardly a sentence.

W. S. Van Dyke says the most annoying scene he ever was called upon to film was described in the script as "Hearing his words, she blushed." Shorter than a telegram in written words, but how to put a blush upon the screen?

No matter how skillful the screen writer, seldom does a director go all the way through a script without snorting at something like: "Scene 168. Humming bird flutters from flower to flower, hesitates, and then alights on the carnation in Mabel's hat." Simple for those who don't have to make the humming bird do it. And not six months ago all was in readiness to begin a big picture with a love scene between two amoebae. In the nick of time someone looked up "amoeba" in the encyclopedia.

By the Associated Press.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal. — A color-sound picture starring Douglas Fairbanks is among the tentatively outlined productions of 1929. Fairbanks, it will be recalled, made a feature length color picture ("The Black Pirate") several years ago, when color photography was vastly more expensive that it is now. What deterred him from making more of them was not so much the expense as a belief that color, after all, made it more difficult to emphasize action. Now sound and dialogue have arrived, with their immense capacity for emphasizing dramatic action, and Fairbanks feels a color film strengthened with sound would be really effective.

The athletic producer-actor is busy at present with "The Man in the Iron Mask," and he plans to let the color-sound film wait until after the first of the year. "By that time," he explains, "enough theaters will have been equipped with sound devices to make general distribution of such a picture possible."

Another color-sound venture is an independent picture scheduled to go into production with Sessue Hayakawa in the leading role. Before he quit the screen some years ago this Japanese actor ranked high among the stars, and if his attempt to come back in "The Bandit Prince" is successful it will be no less spectacular because of the color and sound features. Lately Hayakawa has been appearing in vaudeville.

Here is a story that should be saved for "Be Kind to Dumb Animals Week": Seven years ago Nadine and Katherine Dennis arrived in Hollywood looking for film fame. Years passed and they still struggled in the extra ranks. Then one night Nadine pitied a stray kitten she found mewing helplessly in a vacant lot. She took it home and the two girls whiled away much time teaching it tricks. One day they took the now full-grown cat, Puzzums, to a studio with them. The cat's tricks attracted directional attention. And now, though Nadine and Katherine still work as extras at $5 or $7.50 a day, Puzzums shows his gratitude by bringing home $50 a day with more or less regularity. He is a star among the cat actors of the cinema.

ALMOST any motion picture is capable of leading a double or triple life, and many of them do.

Usually the film fan never guesses that the melodrama he saw yesterday was filmed originally as part of the romantic comedy he saw six weeks ago But the film editors of Hollywood know their wandering children well. They do not expect them to be always just what they started out to be. And if they can be not only that, but two or three other things, so much the better for the reputation of the editor, or "cutter," whose value lies in his ability to take all the odds and ends of celluloid coming from the camera during production and put them together into at least one marketable movie.

Sometimes only 10 or 12 reels of film are exposed in the making of a seven reel picture, in which case the cutter seldom has an opportunity of creating another picture out of the left-overs. If the film as edited according to the original story is too terrible to be shown, however, it may be up to the cutter to take it apart and string it together on an entirely different plot framework. Many a "sick" picture has been operated on in this way, the surgery consisting of entire removal of the original story and substitution of a new narrative to be told by the scenes already shot for the old one.

THIS is difficult to do, but not so difficult as it seems at first glance. A terrific fist fight between a handsome young man and another man not so handsome, for instance, would be interpreted by spectators who see it on the screen as the big fight between the hero and the villain, if the arrangement of scenes and subtitles preceding it make that interpretation the only logical one. The same fight, however, in connection with a different arrangement of scenes and subtitles, would be seen as the big fight between Joe and his brother before their reconciliation, or the rough-and-tumble argument between the two pals who never had a mean moment until they both fell in love with the same girl.

Again, a close-up of a handsome man kissing a beautiful woman may be used with equal success as the happy ending of a romance, or one of the first scenes of a romance destined to end unhappily. Or it could be used in the middle of a picture, just preceding the fight between the heroine's husband and the other man. If trimmed down to the proper footage it could even be a husband kissing his wife good-by on going to the office.

Frank Lawrence, one of the oldest film editors in point of experience (he learned how to cut pictures while still a projectionist in the old one-reel melodrama days), recalls numerous productions in which the spare celluloid was so plentiful and so good that he was able to put together one picture telling the original story, and then use the left-over pieces to make two other photoplays telling entirely different stories.

SUMMER OPERA ENDS WITH SINGING OF "AIDA" IN ENGLISH

peal to the King for mercy and the priests demand death for the captives, Rhadames takes advantage of the King's hesitation, and pleads for leniency for the prisoners. The King yields, stipulating only that Aida and her father be held as hostages, and then announces that Rhadames shall have the hand of Amneris as his reward.

The third act is laid on the banks of the Nile near the Temple of Isis, to which came Ramfis and Amneris. Aida, hoping that Rhadames will also come thither, enters cautiously, and is about to depart when she sees her father. Amonasro, who reproaches her for falling in love with Rhadames and who tells her with significant emphasis that she may again behold her native land. He tells of his people's recent uprising and proposes that she influence Rhadames to betray the plans of his army in the new campaign.

By appealing to her loyalty and picturing the suffering of her people, Amonasro wins Aida to his purpose, and Aida prepares to win Rhadames to her side. She rebuffs his advances, and then pleads with him to fly with her.

In consenting he reveals that the army will go by the pass of Napata, and Amonasro, who has overheard, overcomes Rhadames' scruples about betraying his army to the King of the Ethiopians. Amneris, coming from the temple, overhears the plot, and mad with jealousy, denounces the guilty trio, causing the arrest of Rhadames as a traitor, though Amonasro and Aida escape.

After turning Rhadames over to the priests, Amneris is grief stricken, and seeks Rhadames out to free him provided he will renounce his love for Aida. This Rhadames refuses to do, and the priests take him away to pronounce the death sentence.

In a vault beneath the Temple of Ptah, Rhadames awaits a slow starvation, and then perceives Aida has found her way to him that they may meet death together.

The cast follows:

King of Egypt	Howard Preston
Amneris	Lydia Van Gilder
Aida	Leone Kruse
Rhadames	Joseph Wetzel
Amonasro	Joseph Royer
Ramfis	Charles Galagher

Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus Is Coming

Hagenbeck-Wallace circus will come to St. Louis for performances afternoon and evening, Aug. 25 and 26. The show this year has a number of new features, including the smallest and largest hippopotami. The baby hippo was born near Marinette, Wis., three weeks ago and now weighs 150 pounds.

Other features will include the opening spectacle, "The Geisha," a pageant which tells a story of a great love between a Japanese Prince and a dancing girl in the land of cherry blossoms. More than 1000 persons take part in its offering.

Capt. Clyde Beatty has added a few lions and tigers to his act, and now enters a cage in which there are 32 of them. Beatty is ut 24 years old, but is considered one of the foremost lion trainers in the country today.

Of the "Merry Andrews," otherwise known as clowns, there are 45 of them with Earl Shipley, Micky McDonald and Pete Mardo taking most of the bows.

ASKS $100,000 IN ALIENATION SUIT

Salesman Names Frank J. Klapp, East St. Louis Shoe Merchant.

Frank J. Klapp, 46 years old, East Side shoe merchant and president of the East St. Louis Downtown Business Men's Association, is defendant in a suit for $100,000 damages, charging alienation of affections, filed in Circuit Court of St. Clair County Friday by Michael Lindenberger, 42, a bakery supply salesman of East St. Louis.

"There's nothing to it," Klapp said yesterday when seen at his store, 229 Collinsville avenue.

Lindenberger, who is employed by Swift & Co. and resides at the Knights of Columbus Club., charges that since Nov. 11, 1926, his wife, Eda, 40, with their adopted daughter, has been living at Klapp's home in "Oak Knoll," a subdivision of Belleville, against Lindenberger's wishes, acting as housekeeper.

Lindenberger's attorney, Joseph Troy of East St. Louis, said the two men married sisters in 1909 and for many years lived in the same house. Mrs. Klapp died about five years ago, he said, and Klapp lived alone until Mrs. Lindenberger became his housekeeper.

Brockman, president of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association and former president of the Board of Police Commissioners, has been appointed to membership on the Board of Governors of the St. Louis Y. ACTIVITIES OF BOY SCOUTS

STEAMER EXCURSION FOR SCOUTS SATURDAY

Boys and Relatives to Go on Trip to Historic Points Along River.

A steamboat trip exclusively for Boy Scouts and their relatives will be held by the local Boy Scout Council Saturday afternoon and evening on the Steamer St. Paul. All scouts and officers in uniform will be admitted for 25 cents. The steamer has been reserved by the council. The boat will leave its regular dock at 2:30 o'clock, and return at 8.

Besides the regular recreational purpose, the trip will also be somewhat in the nature of a sightseeing tour of historical spots along this part of the Mississippi, the council, with the assistance of the Missouri Historical Society, which has prepared a leaflet describing and locating 40 historical sites along the route of the trip. The points include Bloody Island, the favorite dueling ground of the city a century ago; the Piasa Bird, the reproduction of the famous "mystery" painting on the rocks above Alton, whose origin has never been solved; the new Lewis and Clark bridge, the waterworks. The leaflets will be printed and given to scoutmasters for distribution among their troops. The buletin is the work of Scoutmaster Newcomb of Troop Overland 1, and chairman of the Historical Commitee of the council.

A series of contests and games, for which prizes will be awarded, has been arranged, under the direction of Scoutmaster Lange of Troop 107. Bugling, fire by friction, fire by flint and steel, a cracker-eating contest, and a string-chewing event are on the program. Scouts entering the bugling contest should bring their own bugles.

The trip as a whole will be under the direction of a committee headed by Harry S. Holbrook, a member of the Executive Committee of the St. Louis Council.

TROOP NOTES

SOUTH DISTRICT.

Twelve scouts of Troop 51, of Our Lady of Sorrows Church, attended Camp Irondale this summer, and all but two earned merit badges in cooking, leathercraft, and woodcraft. Nearly all of these scouts are now first class. Wolf patrol was awarded a Boy Scout statue for winning a knot-board contest, and Eagle patrol a baseball bat for taking second, at the last meeting. John Koch received a scout compass as first prize in a bird-house building contest, and John Zuzack was given a Scout knife as second prize. The troop has organized a Patrol Leaders' Council, made up of the new leaders of each patrol. It is planned to go on a hike today.

Troop 57, of American Legion Post No. 3, has added swimming to its activities, through the courtesy of Capt. Calemton of Battery A, who has given the troop permission to use the battery swimming pool and rill grounds. Part of the last meeting was taken up with swimming. Two new members joined the troop at the meting.

Lessons in boxing, followed by several boxing matches, were held at the last meeting of Troop 105, of the Assumption Church. An overnight hike to Sugarloaf was taken by the troop last week-end.

NORTH DISTRICT.

Troop 3 of Holy Cross Church. is on a hike to Kenwood Springs today. It is intended to pass tests in nature study and cooking. Scout Jack Hunt passed his 14-mile hike test last week. Two new recruits and one scout who transferred from Troop 243 have been added to the membership of Troop 3.

Scouts Richard and Edward Godt of Troop 206 have returned from Camp Irondale. They told of their experiences in camp at the regular troop meeting last week. Scouts Harold Install and Edward Knollman won prizes in an inspection for having the neatest uniforms, while Scouts Richard and Edward Godt won for having the neatest summer uniforms.

West District.

The Fox patrol of Troop 101, meeting at West Park Baptist Church, won an inter-patrol contest sponsored by Scoutmaster Lane during the summer, and as a reward will be given a trip to the new Meramec State Park at Sullivan, Mo. All expenses of the outing will be paid by the troop. The patrol comprises Lloyd Bugele, patrol leader, and Scouts Thompson, McCormick, Keiler, Van Doren and Cassidy.

The scouts of Troop 116 held a motor truck hike to Long Lake, near Mitchell, Ill., a week ago yesterday. Fishing and swimming occupied most of the time. The truck was furnished by one of the troop committeemen.

Suburban District.

Eleven scouts of Troop Overland 1, of Overland School, went on the August overnight hike of the troop last week-end. This troop conducts at least one overnight hike each month. Swimming, crawfishing, and a treasure hike put on by Se- "hunter," Scout Charlie Lindhorst, nior Patrol Leader Herb Miller formed the major activities. A snipe hunt failed because the chief got lost in the woods. Several fossils were collected for the troop museum.

FALL TO BRING ACTIVITY IN REALTY FIELD

Numerous Deals Reported Under Consideration and Rumors of Other Transactions Are Current.

MANY PROJECTS FOR WIDENED OLIVE ST.

Construction Has Already Begun on Two Apartment House Structures—Hotel Plans.

By Berry Moore.

As judged by surface indications activities in the real estate field bid fair to be resumed on a broad scale in spirited fashion with the advent of the fall season. This is based on the fact that the downtown section of the market normally comparatively dormant in July and August, has been characterized by more or less buoyancy throughout the summer months, notwithstanding an unusually large vacation exodus.

Operations in the section between Twelfth and Grand boulevards, from Clark to Franklin avenues, manifestly will be on a more aggressive basis as indicated from tentative offers submitted within the last week. As one agent summarized it, both the speculative and investment contingent are aroused to a realization of the fact that as yet St. Louis is in the early stages of growth with her future still in the perspective.

A report was current throughout the week that the Rozur heirs, the owners of the northeast corner of Thirteenth and Olive streets had capitulated to promoters with pretentious building plans for this site. One, which proved to be a myth, was to the effect that Montgomery Ward had acquired control, either through purchase or by 99-year lease of the corner. In a letter to the Martin Breitt Real Estate Co. this week, the mail order house disclaimed any intentions of establishing retail stores or warehouses in St. Louis at this time. Negotiations in no instance have reached a definite status, it was stated

Plaza Enhances Values.

The corner is admittedly one of the most imposing and attractive sites that will command the Memorial Plaza, and is decidedly one for a representative structure. The five store Park Hotel building, better known to the older generation of the city as the Rozier Hotel, occupies the site which has a frontage on Olive of 88 feet, with a depth of 106 feet. The value of the property has been enhanced phenomenally as the result of the Memorial Plaza project.

The northwest and southwest corner of Fourteenth and Olive streets, owned by the Thomas Wright estate, and a syndicate headed by W. J. Holbrook, respectively, are also scheduled for improvements on a commensurate scale, with the Memorial Plaza as chief inspiration. Both these sites have been increased in value most appreciably with the virtual realization of this ambitious civic improvement. Olive, Pine and Chestnut streets east of Grand boulevard promise to be outstanding centers under the wholesome effects of civic improvements.

Large Sums Available.

An impressive number of new large building projects has been disclosed for Olive street since its conversion into a boulevard, while the hotel and apartment building program is a distinguishing feature, with Lindell, South Grand and West Pine boulevards setting the pace.

Since the money stringency is confined principally to the stock market, it is not having a restraining effect on building operations, which are financed as a rule by private capital, and for which apparently there is a pleothra of funds available.

Plans have been completed for the eight-story concrete garage for the northwest corner of Ninth and Chestnut streets, work on which is to start within the next week. It will be known as the Ferro Concrete Garage, and is to be built by Cincinnati clients of the Singer Klein Realty Co. The ground floor will include 12 stores and offices.

To Start Building.

Ground will be broken within the next two weeks for the 12-story Plaza-Olive office building projected for the south side of Olive street just east of and adjoining the new Missouri Pacific Building at Thirteenth and Olive streets, according to Henry R. Weisels, its promoter. As contemplated, the building will extend from Olive to Pine, with frontage on both streets.

Incidentally, the Twelfth street front of this block has been submitted by Henry R. Weisels, Inc., for the proposed new Federal Building, the value placed on it being $1,500,000, which, however, is more than double the amount

Incidentally, the Twelfth street front of this block has been submitted by Henry R. Weisels, Inc., for the proposed new Federal Building, the value placed on it being $1,500,000, which, however, is more than double the amount alloted by the United States Treasury Department for the proposed structure.

Plans are being perfected for the new 17-story hotel designed for the northeast corner of Twelfth and Locust street, according to W. J. Holbrook, president of the Holbrook-Blackwelder Co. The 14-story addition to Hotel Jefferson is rapidly approaching a finished state. The present building is being altered and improved to conform with the new one.

Construction already has been begun on the 10-story apartment project of Carl Anschuetz, on the east side of Grand boulevard just north of Magnolia avenue, and opposite Tower Grove park, announced exclusively in the Post-Dispatch three weeks ago. The building will occupy a lot with a frontage of 170 feet on Grand with a depth of 250 feet extending through to Alhambra Court. It will contain 125 apartments and cost in excess of $1,000,000.

Excavation is about finished for the new 16-story Hawthorne apartment building, which will occupy a lot 175x210 feet on the north side of West Pine boulevard, 175 feet east of Taylor avenue. It is being financed by the New York Life Insurance Co. through the Hemmelman & Spackler Real Estate Co., local loan correspondent, with a loan of $750,000 at 5½ per cent, the lowest rate ever made for apartment house construction in St. Louis. Estimated cost of this improvement is more than $1,500,000. The New York Life Insurance Co. made a loan of $2,500,000 at 5 per cent through Hemmelmann-Spackler for construction of the Paul Brown Building on the east side of Ninth street, extending from Olive to Pine streets, which with the ground and building has a value of around $7,000,000. These rates are unprecedented for building loans.

W. B. Shelp & Co. Move.

W. B. Shelp & Co. announce the removal of their offices from 109 North Ninth street to the City Club Building, Eleventh and Locust streets. This company was established in 1890 with a capital of $2000, and for over 25 years was located at 109 North Ninth street. This property was recently sold by W. B. Shelp & Co. and the present buildings are to be replaced by a 12-story office and garage building.

$1,000,000 TERMINAL IMPROVEMENT STARTED

Contract Let for Piling for Foundation of Express Building at Eighteenth and Clark.

The $1,000,000 improvement program at the Union Station by the Terminal Railroad Association of St. Louis has been started with the awarding of the contract for the piling for the new express building. The foundation of the building will rest on 1000 30-foot piles. The contract was let to Smith & Brennan.

The express building, which will be erected at Eighteenth street and Clark avenue, will be four stories high, fronting 210 feet on Clark and extending 700 feet and two stories in height on Eighteenth.

The building will be equipped with a track arrangement for 250 cars, having every modern convenience for the loading and unloading of express at the building, or, in case of carloads, on team tracks.

Facilities will be provided for the refrigeration of shipments originating or passing through the building.

The building will be of reinforced concrete, steel and brick construction.

The plant will be connected with the Union Station by means of a subway under Eighteenth street. It will be more accessible and convenient to the jobbing district than are the present express facilities.

AIRPLANE VIEW OF OSAGE HILLS GROUNDS

An airplane view has been taken of the Osage Hills Country Club Grounds, the Bixby-Smith, Inc., residential development on Big end boulevard, looking west toward the Osage Country Club's clubhouse and swimming pool which face the big oval roadway. The winding concrete driveways bound the golf course which surrounds all the homes.

The northern section of the golf course is not shown in the picture and the western nine holes may be only partly seen stretching over the hills behind the heavily wooded section. The contour of the entire acreage is rolling.

6305 PERSHING AV. BOUGHT BY CLIENT OF HEATH FIRM

The Chauncey P. Heath Real Estate Co. reports the sale of 6305 Pershing avenue, an 11-room residence, with three baths, hardwood floors and oil burner. The lot is 55x150 feet. There is a three-car heated garage, with butler's quarters above.

This residence was sold for Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Einstein, who were represented by the Albert T. Terry Real Estate Co., to a client of the Chauncey P. Heath Real Estate Co.

STEEL FRAMED RESIDENCE TO BE BUILT IN COUNTY

The Thermo-Steel Construction Co. of 7720 Forsythe boulevard, Clayton, soon will construct a nine-room English country home in Algonquinwood, overlooking the Algonquin golf course on Berry road, which will be a steel-framed structure with an exterior of stone and stucco.

The framework is to be entirely of steel; the joints are to be electrically welded; an exterior face of stone, or stucco, will be followed by a wall of concrete backed up by three or four inches of gypsum composition.

The total cost, it is said, will be about the same as that of ordinary construction.

The Thermo-Steel Construction Co. has plans for incorporation under way. The organizers are F. M. Weir, 7457 Bland drive, Clayton, contractor, as president; J. Robert Herr, 724 Belt avenue, architect, vice president, and Lionel E. Hencken, 237 Linden avenue, Clayton, secretary and treasurer.

250 MAKE BUS TOUR TO JEFFERSON COUNTY

Trip Was Arranged to Show Possibility of Residence There.

The tour made by more than 250 county residents into Jefferson County last Tuesday has convinced them that there is no manner of home site or estate site that is not reached within a few hours' ride from the metropolitan St. Louis district. The tourists visited more than 20 settlements in St. Louis and Jefferson Counties, making more than 125 miles.

The tour is one of a series promoted by the St. Louis County Chamber fo Commerce and the St. Louis County Real Estate Board. The next tours will be to Franklin and St. Charles Counties. The Franklin County tour probably will be arranged for Saturday, Sept. 8, with a stop at Meramec State Park which will be dedicated that day with talks by Gov. Baker, Walter B. Weisenburger, president of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce; Eugene D. Ruth, president of the County Chamber and Keith McCanse, Missouri Game and Fish Commissioner.

The delegation was taken to Jefferson County in eight busses, which left Clayton at 9 a. m. and returned there at 6 p. m., as guests of Dan C. Kerckhoff. The delegation dined at De Soto, and was entertained by the De Soto Chamber of Commerce. Details of the trip were made by B. Cordell Stevens, president of the County Real Estate Board and Jefferson Smith, secretary of the St. Louis County Chamber of Commerce.

GROUND ON DELMAR BRINGS $500 A FOOT

50 Feet Just East of Skinker Road Sold to Smith Bros.

Smith Bros. have purchased 50 feet of vacant ground on the north side of Delmar boulevard, just east of Skinker road, through the Oreon E. & R. G. Scott Realty Co., While the prices was not announced, it was understood that it was around $500 a front foot, which is noteworthy as contrasted with the purchase price of $60 a foot at which it was acquired by the sellers, the Muckerman Investment Co., 15 years ago.

The old Delmar race track formerly comprised this section before it was cut up into building lots.

Smith Bros. contemplate improving the lot, it is understood, but the character of the building has not been disclosed. The site is just east of and adjoining the new gasoline station at the northeast corner of Skinker road and Delmar. New life has been imparted to this section of the city with the extension north of Skinker avenue, which has reawakened business development.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—The Evening Post in copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"The rather wide fluctuations in call money furnished the most interesting development in Wall street during the week. Money ruled fairly firm at the start of the week but on Thursday the call rate went down to 4½ per cent, encouraging the belief in stock market circles that a period of easier funds was in sight. On Friday, however, the rate returned to the seven per cent level once more leaving the speculative community very confused.

Rumor of Altered Policy.

"The easier tone of the money market of Thursday started rumors that the Federal Reserve Bank had altered its policy toward the money market and report even went so far as to say that the next revision of the local rediscount rate would be downward. Usually well informed bankers disagreed with this report, however.

Lowest Rate Since May.

"The 4½ per cent call rate was the lowest since May 3 last and compared with a 7 and 7½ per cent rate ruling at the beginning of the week. The secret of the sudden break in the rate undoubtedly was that corporations and others with surplus funds attracted by the 7½ per cent rate, suddenly threw in larg amounts to be used for speculative purposes. One lesson of the week was that despite the measures adopted by the New York Clearing House Association for checking the inflow of outside funds into the stock market such sudden floods of money can be expected from time to time, with resultant violent fluctuations.

Money Gets Attention.

"The money situation is attracting serious attention of all bankers and generally speaking they do not appear to be very optimistic concerning the prospects for relaxation for some time to come. In a discussion of the situation at the end of the week, the National Bank of Commerce says: "Firmness in money conditions has become more pronounced. Money rates in mid-August were substantially higher than these prevailing a month previously. On the whole, during the recent period no influences have worked toward an easing of money conditions. There has been no significant slackening in the total demand for credit and the member banks have not yet succeeded in making a large reduction in their aggregate indebtedness to the reserve banks. Both demand and supply forces have operated toward the maintenance of firmness on money conditions.

"The major factor of uncertainty in the business outlook arises from the relatively high current level of interest rates. Over the past several years, when rates were very low, it was commonly observed that industrial and commercial operations were not essentially stimulated by cheap money. Now that conditions in the speculative securities markets have pushed money rates to higher levels, the question is again to the fore whether commerce and industry may not prove able to move along steadily, as impervious to high as they were to low money rates.

Stock Market Strong.

"The stock market was strong throughout the week, although it was distinctly a specialty market. Bull pools in several issues rushed their favorites confidently forward regardless of the fluctuations in money rates. A drop of more than $50,000,000 in brokers' loans as reported Thursday cause astonishment, as Wall street was not expecting a cut of say $10,000,000.

Gains in Various Industries.

"Further gains in various lines of industry brightened the business picture considerably this week. An active fall is now confidently predicted in trade circles. The steel trade is particularly optimistic and the better feeling was reflected in a good demand for steel stocks on the Exchange. Car loadings continued to gain."

Dry Goods Market Review.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug 18.—Cotton goods markets are steadier and business prospects for the coming week appear brighter. Sales in some divisions of gray cloths equalled the production of the week. Burlaps have become easier after the speculative rise in Calcutta. Moderate trading is reported in broadcloth coatings for fall and there is some filling in business noted on fall suitings and overcoatings. Silk closed the week somewhat easier. Silk fabrics are moving quite well for fall.

SHARES SOLD

RAILROAD SHARES ARE BOUGHT IN WEEK-END TRADE

Profit-Taking Forces Recessions in Some of the Recently Popular Industrials —Fairly Heavy Business.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—Stock prices made further recovery in today's brief session of the market, which was featured by a broad demand for the railroad shares. Week-end profit-taking forced recessions in some of the recently popular industrials, but nearly a score issues in the group, including Allied Chemical, American Can and Columbia Gas, reached new high ground. Trading was fairly heavy for a midsummer half holiday session, the day's sales running close to 1,000,000 shares.

Inasmuch as Friday's final rate carries over the week-end, call money was not a factor in today's market although the subject received widespread comment in week-end market letters. Time money held steady at 6 to 6¼ per cent, as against a ruling rate of 6½ a week ago.

Wall Street derived considerable encouragement from the optimistic comments on business by William C. Durant, Alvan Macauley and other business executives on the eve of their departure for Europe. Charles E. Mitchell, president of the National City Bank, expressed the opinion that the call rate would average 6½ per cent this fall, and that commercial rates would rule about 1 per cent lower.

Interest in Rails.

There was nothing in the day's news to explain the sudden revival of interest in the railroad shares. Brokers expressed the opinion that buying was influenced by reports of business expansion and expectations of heavily increased traffic as a result of bumper crops.

Texas & Pacific soared 7 points to a new high record at 182½ and St. Louis Southwestern ran up nearly 6 points to a new top at 98⅞. St. Paul common and preferred, Canadian Pacific, Chicago & Eastern Illinois preferred, Gulf, Mobile & Northern and the Missouri Pacific issues all sold 2 or more points above yesterday's final quotations, and most of them closed at or near the top.

Allied Chemical assumed the leadership of the industrial group by climbing nearly 6 points to 190⅝. Other issues to break into new high ground included Eaton Axle, Loft, Grand Union common and preferred, Purity Baking, United Biscuit and Continental Can.

Motors Quieter.

Motors quieted down somewhat. General Motors closed fractionally lower, at 185¼ and Chrysler closed about a point lower at 93. Graham Paige improved slightly, but failed to reach the high mark established yesterday. Hupp was in brisk demand, closing a point higher at 62¼. U. S. Steel advanced 1¼ points to 149, or just 5 points below the year's high.

Atlantic Refining, which has been bought recently on reports of unusually large current earnings, ran into heavy profit-taking, closing 2¾ points lower at 162.

Foreign exchanges held steady in quiet trading, with sterling cables quoted around $4.85⅝.

1927 AMERICAN PETROLEUM OUTPUT SETS NEW RECORD

Total Put at 901,129,000 Barrels by Bureau.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—Final figures on American petroleum output for 1927 were announced today by the United States Bureau of Mines at 901,129,000 barrels.

This is a new record for all time and far above any previous year's production. The oversupply of petroleum resulting was indicated, theb ureau said, by the fact that total stocks of all classes of petroleum were 65,453,000 barrels higher at the end of the year than at the beginning.

One of the principal factors in the increase was the exceptional productivity of the Seminole district in Oklahoma which was credited with a petroleum output of 136,000,000 barrels in 1927 as compared with 11,000,000 barrels in 1926.

The production of gasoline and other motor fuels from petroleum in 1927 was 334,039,000 barrels which was also a new record.

June tire shipments totaled 5,386,482, an increase of 496,365 over the preceding month and 640,731 over June, 1927. Production totaled 5,068,086, against 5,115,839 in May and 4,720,360 in June last year.

E. F. Hutton, chairman of the board of the Postum Co., said on sailing for Europe that he had completed negotiations for the acquisition of another nationally known company which does a business of about $4,000,000 annually. He said his concern which has recently acquired the Cheek-Neel Coffee Co., will continue the policy of acquiring other companies.

United Paperboard Co., with plants in New England, New York, New Jersey, Indiana and Illinois, reports net income for the year ended May 26 of $304,962, against $68,185 in the previous year.

Charles E. Mitchell, president of the National City Bank, said before sailing for Europe that he expected call money to average 6¼ per cent during the fall but that commercial paper would probably rule about 1 per cent lower.

HIGHER RANGE TO STOCK PRICES IN TRADE OF WEEK

Upward Movement in Face of Another Series of Violent Fluctuations in Call Money Rates—Rails Join Rise.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—Stock prices surged upward again this week in the face of another series of violent fluctuations in call money rates. For the moment, at least, Wall Street seemed disposed to pay more attention to other than the continued firmness of credit conditions, although the latter undoubtedly had a tendency to restrict trading in securities.

Buying in this week's stock market broadened considerably, with the railroad shares participating in the advance for the first time in several months. Speculation centered, however, in a select group of motor, accessory, food, can, merchandising and public utility issues, nearly two score of which were elevated to new high records.

Rally in Bond Prices.

Call money, which closed last week at 8 per cent, dropped to 4½ on Thursday, the lowest rate in three months, and snapped back to 7 the next day. Time money rates were slightly easier, with loans again available at 6 and 6¼ per cent, after having ruled at 6½. Commercial paper and acceptance rates held firm.

Bond prices, which have been sluggish for weeks, rallied slightly on the easing of time money rates. New offerings were only $36,000,000.

A violent decline in Japanese yen to a new low level for the year, based on the unfavorable Chinese situation, was the only development of consequence in the foreign exchange market.

Loans Drop $50,000,000.

Federal Reserve brokers' loans dropped more than $50,000,000 in the week ended Wednesday, and there was a corresponding decrease in rediscounts. No change was made in Federal Reserve rediscount rates during the week.

With British and Dutch currencies close to the "gold import" points, hopes have been aroused in some speculative quarters that an early return flow of gold from abroad was likely, but bankers were not quite so optimistic. Private cables earlier in the week indicating that Federal Reserve authorities had purchased gold in London and allowed it to remain on deposit with the Bank of England proved to be unfounded. Neither was there any American purchases of South African gold sold there during the week.

Pools Lift Issues.

Despite the handicaps of the credit situation, pools succeeded in lifting a number of specialties to new high ground. National Cash Register was heavily bought. Warner Bros. A, Paramount Famous-Lasky, Loft Candy, Kroger Stores, F. & W. Grand Stores, Mullins Corporation and Sears Roebuck were among the many other issues to better their previous tops.

HIGHER RANGE TO STOCK PRICES IN TRADE OF WEEK

Upward Movement in Face of Another Series of Violent Fluctuations in Call Money Rates—Rails Join Rise.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—Stock prices surged upward again this week in the face of another series of violent fluctuations in call money rates. For the moment, at least, Wall Street seemed disposed to pay more attention to other than the continued firmness of credit conditions, although the latter undoubtedly had a tendency to restrict trading in securities.

Buying in this week's stock market broadened considerably, with the railroad shares participating in the advance for the first time in several months. Speculation centered, however, in a select group of motor, accessory, food, can, merchandising and public utility issues, nearly two score of which were elevated to new high records.

Rally in Bond Prices.

Call money, which closed last week at 8 per cent, dropped to 4½ on Thursday, the lowest rate in three months, and snapped back to 7 the next day. Time money rates were slightly easier, with loans again available at 6 and 6¼ per cent, after having ruled at 6½. Commercial paper and acceptance rates held firm.

Bond prices, which have been sluggish for weeks, rallied slightly on the easing of time money rates. New offerings were only $36,000,000.

A violent decline in Japanese yen to a new low level for the year, based on the unfavorable Chinese situation, was the only development of consequence in the foreign exchange market.

Loans Drop $50,000,000.

Federal Reserve brokers' loans dropped more than $50,000,000 in the week ended Wednesday, and there was a corresponding decrease in rediscounts. No change was made in Federal Reserve rediscount rates during the week.

With British and Dutch currencies close to the "gold import" points, hopes have been aroused in some speculative quarters that an early return flow of gold from abroad was likely, but bankers were not quite so optimistic. Private cables earlier in the week indicating that Federal Reserve authorities had purchased gold in London and allowed it to remain on deposit with the Bank of England proved to be unfounded. Neither was there any American purchases of South African gold sold there during the week.

Pools Left Issues.

Despite the handicaps of the credit situation, pools succeeded in lifting a number of specialties to new high ground. National Cash Register was heavily bought. Warner Bros. A, Paramount Famous-Lasky, Loft Candy, Kroger Stores, F. & W. Grand Stores, Mullins Corporation and Sears Roebuck were among the many other issues to better their previous tops.

Canadian Wheat Outlook.

OTTAWA, Aug. 18.—Favorable crop reports in Canada were confirmed today by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

A bulletin issued by the bureau gave no estimate of yields, but said that harvesting conditions were generally excellent, that grades promised to be good and that hail damage even in Alberta, was comparatively light.

In Manitoba, one-fourth of the grain has been cut, while the crop in Saskatchewan and Alberta will be cut next week. Damage from insect pests was said to be unusually light.

In Eastern Canada rain has delayed the harvest and grades may suffer in consequence the bulletin said.

Argentine Probable Sown Area Estimate.

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 18.—Official estimates of the Ministry of Agriculture for the probable area sown this year are: Wheat, 8,200,000 hectares; linseed, 2,900,000 hectares; oats, 1,300,000 hectares; rye, 400,000 hectares, and canary seed, 33,000 hectares. The total increase of these grains over the previous year is 321,000 hectares. (A hectare is 2.47 acres.)

COTTON FUTURES MOVE LOWER AT NEW YARK

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—The cotton market was lower today under week-end realizing or liquidation and some Southern selling which was promoted by relatively easy Liverpool cables and the talk of an easier technical position. After selling off to 18.65c at the start, December rallied to 18.85c on covering, but later broke to 18.60c and closed at that figure, with the general market closing easy at net declines of 25 to 36 points.

The opening was barely steady at a decline of 12 to 22 points, and active months soon showed net losses of 20 to 26 points under a continuation of the selling movement, which developed after the advance to 19.47c for December contracts on Thursday. The easier showing of Liverpool was a factor on this decline, but the early offerings were quite readily absorbed by covering or fresh buying. The latter was encouraged, no doubt, by continued numerous reports of deteriorating crop prospects and increasing boll weevil infestation or damage. The demand tapered off as prices worked back to about the closing quotations of Friday, however, and the market weakened again in the late trading, with October selling off to 18.57c and January to 18.52c, with active months generally showing net declines of about 25 to 36 points.

Closing quotations were at the lowest figures of the day, with December at 18.60c, showing a reaction of 87 points from the high price of Thursday.

Some of the Southern selling reported here early appeared to come from the Southwest and was supposed to include hedging, but the bulk of the offerings were attributed to week-end realizing or liquidation.

The outlook was for further showers in the South, which some of the local traders referred to as likely to promote the activity of insects, but in some other quarters doubt was expressed as to whether the present reports of deterioration and insect damage represent anything much more than the usual August falling off in conditions.

Private cable reported Continental and Bombay selling in Liverpool and said that the turnover in cotton cloth and yarn was small, with buyers cautious. The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance was estimated at 52,464, against 67,774 last year.

Spot cotton was quiet. Middling, 18.85c.

DEMAND FOR RAIL BONDS AT WEEK END

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—Prices held fairly steady in the bond market today, despite the customary Saturday dullness, with a number of issues moving to slightly higher levels in reflection of the strength of the stock market. Industrials were somewhat irregular under profit-taking, but rails generally were in demand. United States Government issues were neglected.

St. Paul issues were prominent in the advance of the rails, the 5s of 2000 gaining more than a point. Missouri Pacific 5s, Frisco 4½s and Oregon Short Line 4s also were in demand at higher levels. Canadian Pacific 4½s, however, dropped a point and New Haven 4½s and Seaboard Air Line 6s also felt the pressure of week-end profit taking.

Chile Copper 5s, Dodge Brothers 6s, Morris & Co. 4½s, Youngstown Sheet and Tube 5s and Fisk Rubber 8s were among the industrials to show gains. These were offset by a decline of more than 2 points in Penn Dixie Cement 6s, of 1 point in Keith Corporation first 6s and smaller losses in General Motors acceptance 5½s. Some utilities improved, notably public Service of New Jersey 4½s, up nearly 2 points, and American Telephone and Telegraph 5½s.

The foreign list was inclined to heaviness. Australian Commonwealth 4½s and Dominion first 5½s especially were weak.

Foreign Exchange

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—The Evening Post in copyrighted weekly foreign exchange market review, says:

"Movements and tone of the leading foreign exchanges were of a mixed character all through the week. There were times when leading European exchanges apparently approached a gold shipping point, but the offerings quickly disappeared toward the end of the week and the early heaviness was followed by pronounced strength. Sterling which came close to $4.85⅛ for cables in the first half of the week, suddenly turned strong and yesterday sold as high as $4.85 9-16 although it did not retain much of its gain.

"French exchange was under pressure during the greater part of the week but also rallied during the past two days, and there was a special movement in German exchange, which after ranging around 23.82 moved up to above 23.85 for cables. Dutch exchange in which there were large offerings of grain bills, made a new low for the year at 40.08 for cables, but rallied three points from that level on the display of strength near the end of the week.

"There was a special movement in Japanese exchange which made a new low for the year, falling from 45.25 to 44.50 under heavy Chinese selling, which was based on the increased complications in Manchuria.

"South American Exchanges were heavy all through the week. Argentine and Chile both selling at new low levels for the year.

"Havana exchange also had a special movement on which it rose to 1-16 premium after ruling at 1-32 discount most of the week. Canadian was unusually active and strong moving up from par to 1-16 premium.

"Spanish exchange reflected the efforts to stabilize the market and moved within a narrow range, pesetas holding close to 16.70 all through the week. Italian and Belgian were firmly held all through the week and had only narrow fluctuations.

"Many of the frequent changes in European exchange rates were due to the perplexing money conditions. Call money in London was not influenced by the high rate prevailing in this market, and yesterday was quoted there at 3½.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—Foreign exchange quotations were as follows: England—Sterling. Demand $4.85 1-16; cables $4.85 13-32; 60-day bills on banks $4.81 5-16. (Quotations in cents. D. demand; C. cables.)

CURB TRADE DULL BUT TONE STRONG

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—The curb market reflected the strength of the stock market today. Trading was in rather small volume, only around 150,000 shares changing hands, but the more speculative issues made wide advances, some to new highs.

Bancitaly extended its gain about eight points to 123, but was cut to 120⅞ on profit-taking, the rise here being coincident with a 5-point gain on the Pacific Coast. Checker Cab moved to a new top at 44¾ and Franklin Manufacturing to a new top at 25, up more than two points. Deere & Co. shot up 15 points and Gamewell Co. about eight while Buff Manufacturing, Celanese, General Baking, Walgreen Co., Safe-T-Stat, Richman Bros., Newberry Co., and Fox Theater closed at substantially higher levels. Alabama Great Southern preferred advanced two points in sympathy with the strength of rails on the big board.

Utilities were rather irregular, with Electric Bond & Share, United Gas Improvement and United Light & Power "A" attracting most buying.

Oils generally were neglected, although Vacuum showed a small gain. Mines were under pressure.

AIRCRAFT STOCK IS WEEK'S TRADE LEADER

Mahoney-Ryan Sales Aggregate Over 3100 Shares, Most Transactions Being at 19.

Aside from aggregate transactions in Mahoney-Ryan Aircraft stock in excess of 3100 shares, all but 100 shares selling at uniform price of 19 and a one lot sale of 1371 shares of Best-Clymer stock at 20, there was little of interest to the trading on the St. Louis Stock Exchange the past week.

More than half of the total sales of the Aircraft issue were made at the final session when more than 2000 shares changed hand. About three-fourths of latter passed from one house to another at 19.

Missouri Portland sold higher early in week but did not hold the ground gained. Coca Cola Bottling Securities ruled on better level as did Koplar and Burkart common. Scullin Steel preference was higher and then lower, closing with net gain.

Wagner Electric sold lower during the week but range was comparatively narrow. International Shoe range was irregular. Pedigo Weber sold at 36.

Consolidated Lead was traded in at 12½ to 14¼, the latter price being closing figure.

Elder Mfg. common sold higher at 30 at week-end session.

Week's Metal Market.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—Steel plant operations in many instances were reported to have been increased due to the active demand for quick shipment against existing contracts. The railroads were somewhat more active with bids reported in the market for fair quantities of various equipment. There was also buying of finished steel for the oil industry. Prices were firm and leading manufacturers advanced various qualities of steel sheets for the fourth quarter shipment.

Pig iron was steady and fairly active.

Demand for copper from domestic consumers has tapered off somewhat, as it is estimated that they have purchased 75 per cent of their September needs. Buying for foreign account has been quiet, but, since only small September purchase have been made, there is some anticipation of improved inquiry. Some producers have sold their September domestic quota, while others still have metal available. The price remains at 14¾ cents for electrolytic delivered in the Connecticut valley.

Tin developed considerable activity toward the close of the week with consumers and dealers coming in the market for spot, August and September. The tone was firm. London also advanced.

Lead was steady with a moderate business reported principally for prompt and August shipment. Refined stocks for July showed a small net decline.

Zinc displayed very little change. Consuming inquiry was routine and for prompt and September shipment. Ore was steady.

Antimony was a trifle easier at the end of the week following a display of steadiness and moderate activity early. Far Eastern markets were firm.

LARGE LIQUID RESOURCES, IN EXCESS OF TRADE NEEDS IN LONDON, AID SPECULATION

By ARTHUR W. KIDDY.

LONDON, Aug. 18.—Large liquid resources in excess of immediate trade requirements and a keen desire on the part of the public to speculate seem to be the chief features of the market situation on both sides of the Atlantic at the present time. Mindful, however, of their responsibility as custodians of the gold resources and currency arrangements generally, the authorities on both sides of the Atlantic are evidently taking a far view of the possible movements of exchanges and are probably both remembering to extend the French foreign balances.

In London the feeling of caution is probably intensified by the extent of the French balances and by the fact that this autumn the fusion of the Bank of England and the Treasury notes will be consummated. Nevertheless the authorities are also inspired by the desire to avoid any unnecessary money stringency.

These general considerations may well explain the dislike the money authorities of New York and London have for any financial excesses like the recent Wall Street boom.

The question therefore is whether amidst the great extent of liquid resources already referred to the authorities can exercise the desired control and rightly or wrongly, London has assumed that the Federal Reserve has somewhat lost control of the situation in the United States, and that evidence of this is afforded by the late week reaction of money rates and the then resumption of the buoyancy in Wall Street. Men in good quarters say, however, that control will be reasserted. It must not be forgotten that Germany is also a factor making for firmness of money rates, loans being keenly desired in that quarter. Moreover, with the crop movements now commencing it seems improbable that any very important decline in the money rates will take place, but owing to the plentiful crops and the low prices it is considered that European exchanges should be benefited.

On the other hand foreign loan activities of the United States show less marked expansion and while Wall Street leaders are buying certain speculative descriptions in this market the interest on the part of traders in London is also growing in certain American industrial and even in American rails.

Briefly summarized, London, although less inclined now to anticipate an immediate slump in Wall street or a rise in the Federal Reserve Bank, is still disposed to regard the American market with some apprehension and unless the Federal Reserve Bank were to give some clear pronouncement that the Wall street position is now regarded as healthy any great resumption of a boom there would probably only increase the feeling of caution in London.

Balance Less Unfavorable.

The steadiness of sterling is partly explained by England's visible trade balance, which is less unfavorable, especially as regards the trade with the United States. The official analysis of the direction of trade for the first half of this year shows the total value of English exports to the United States to be £35,000,000, against £32,000,000 of last year, while the value of imports from the United States was only £94,000,000, as against £111,000,000 for the same period of last year.

The railway tactics of rate cuttings, although possibly costing the companies considerable at the start, give a brighter prospect for railway securities later on. Since the groupings inaugurated five years ago the monopoly spirit of the railroad management has greatly impaired the old popularity of the railways. As a result of the motor car competition, however, the railways are now apparently awake to the facts.

NATIONAL STOCK YARDS, Aug. 18.—Reductions in price, many of which were severe, were enforced on the majority of native cattle here the past week, light weight Western steers also coming in for a loss. Receipts were heavier than the previous week by a fair margin but a clearance was efefcted by the close. Discrimination against steers with weight was particularly apparent, especially toward the week's close. Quality and fat was not particularly inductive toward bettering packer bids on this class and prices closed 25 cents to 50 cents lower than the previous week. Strictly choice light yearling steers were about steady, although the feeling was slightly easier. Yearling steers topped for the week at $16.50, some mature steers averaging better than 1100 pounds reaching $16.25 for top on this class. Bulk of all steers cashed between $13.75 and $15.90. Grassy steers and plain offerings ranged downward to the $11 and $12 columns. Approximately 211 cars of cattle from Western ranges were offered her the past week, those weight weight and fat selling steady while light weight kinds and thin steers declined 25 cents to 40 cents. Best Oklahoma steers sold up to $13.35, while some inferior kinds ranged downward to the $9 row. Bulk cleared between $10.50 and $12.85.

Mixed steer and heifer yearlings displayed unevenness also and, while choice kinds held to or near a steady basis, a decline of 25c to 50c was recorded on grass-fed kinds, both native and Westerns. Straight heifers from native feedlots recorded $16.25, a new high for the year and the highest for this class since 1920. Western heifers sold upward to $13, with less desirable kinds from $11.25 to $12.25. Grass natives ranged from $7.50 to $12.50 largely. Just a few heavy fat beef cows reached the $12 mark during the six days of trading and sales above $10.50 were far from numerous. Cows coming in this price range figured about steady, medium and plain beef cows 25c to 50c lower and canners 15c to 25c off. Bulk of beef cows were noted between $8 and $9.75, while cutters cleared at $6.50 to $7.25 and conners $5.50 to $6.25, mostly $5.75 to $6. While the demand was more uneven than has usually been the case of late in bulls, there was no appreciable deviation in price and all kinds closed the week about steady. Beef bulls sold from $9 to $10 and $10.50, some heavy offerings up to $10. Bolognas ranged from $8.75 downward, common and inferior bulls from $6.50 to $7. Stocker and feeder cattle, both steers and she stuff, encountered a good demand and prices were fully steady. Steers sold largely in a spread of $7.10 to $12.10, those at $11 and above mostly weighty kinds, although a few light weight steers sold as high as $11.50. Most cows were cleared around $7 to $7.25, while heifers varied from $8.50 to $9.50, some desirable kinds up to $10.50. Closing trade in veal calves was steady to 25c lower on tops. $16.50 and $16.75 this week, against $16.25 at the close of last. First cuts were in proportion, with tops at $14 and $14.25. Next outs and heavy calves, however, were sharply lower, that class of fat heavy calves that had been selling close to the top showing the greatest loss, amounting to as much as $2 per cwt. in some instances. The price range was $9 to $13 largely. Rannies varied from $6.50 to $6.75 over the week, closing deals mostly at $6.60 and $6.65.

Hog Receipts Lighter.

Lighter receipts around the 11 market circuit shot hog prices up to the highest levels since February, 1927. The local market showed the least decrease in receipts, offerings each day being about in line with a week ago and consequently the market fails to show as much upturn as some other markets. However, the week's closing top is the highest last day top of the Western markets. Today and a week ago receipts were very light and not enough hogs were on sale to call the market. Therefore, comparisons are made from yesterday to Friday a week ago. The market on mature hogs is generally 55c to 70c higher with pigs and light lights and packing sows 75c to $1.25 higher, packing sows the least advanced. The first day of the week demand was good and values advanced 25c to 35c in an active trade. Late periods, however, were draggy affairs and buyers fought the market continuously, packers being the most bearish. The small portion of the run during the week that these buyers accounted was very disappointing to the trade. The market, however, showed stronger trends each day, advances at other markets helping salesmen to bull prices. High top was $12.75 and also the highest prices since early 1927. Bulk of sales of all weights were made at $12 to $12.60. Light and handyweight hogs brought top prices with others being discounted according to weight. Grassy hogs and half fat kinds were dull movers at sharply discounted prices. Pigs and light lights found a fairly good outlet each day. Prices ranged during the week from $7.50 to $12.25. Packing sows advanced steadily also and top at the close was $11 with the bulk at $10.75 to $10.85. Stags quotable $10.75 down.

Lamb Prices Down.

Under pressure of increased receipts the early part of the week the market took to a lower trend and although receipts were lighter late in the week the demand was slow and the market never recovered the loss. As compared with a week ago values are around 25c lower on best lambs while plainer grades are steady. Quality of the offerings rated from fair to good. Top was $14.25 paid early in the week for a short load of choice trimmed ewe and wether lambs. Bulk of desirable quality natives cashed at $13.75 to $14.00 with Southwest kinds going from $13.50 to $13.75 principally. Common to fair kinds from all territories cashed at $10 to $13.50. Culls went principally at $9 with skips dipping to $8. Aged sheep held to steady levels under a light supply. Best light ewes made $6.50 with weightier descriptions at $4 to $6. Cull sheep changed hands largely at $2 to $3. Quotations: Slaughter stock: Good to choice ewe and wether lambs $14 to $14.25; fair to good $13 to $14; plain to fair $10 to $13; cull and common $8.50 to $10; skips $6 to $8. Good to choice yearling wethers $11 to $12; medium to good $10 to $11; plain to medium $9 to $10; cull and common $7 to $9. Good to choice mutton ewes $6 to $6.50, plain to good $4 to $6; chippers and bucks $3; canners $1 to $2. Fair to good breeding ewes yearlings to 4 year $7.50 to $11.50, plain to fair $6 to $8.50.

Horses and Mules.

Receipts of horses and mules for the regular auction held here this week were of modest to light proportions and price changes were negligible in quiet trade that saw local traders purchasing the majority of arrivals. The regular trade was good for work horses and chunks, sound chunks or good big horses selling best. Good big mules, miners and cotton feeder mules were also in demand and some inquiry was also heard for fat cotton mules. All offerings were afforded a satisfactory clearance for the week.

WHEAT PRICES LOWER ON MOVEMENT FORECASTS

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 18.—Railroad forecasts that the September movement of domestic grain in the Northwest will be the largest ever known, led to lower prices today for wheat. Traffic officials were quoted as saying the Northwest wheat movement to terminals has begun to start in earnest, and that two of the leading lines expect to haul a total of 240,000,000 bu.

Closing quotations on wheat were weak, ½c to 1⅛c net lower, with corn at ½c to 1⅜c advance, oats unchanged to ⅜c off, and provisions varying from 15c decline to a rise of 5c.

Increasing the downward tendency of wheat values today was news of auspicious harvest weather in Canada. Moreover, advices at hand said the United States spring wheat crop, the harvest of which is now virtually complete except in extreme northern and northwest sections, has turned out better than expected, although some damage in the shock has been done, and in the far northwest high temperatures have also caused more or less harm. On the other hand, relative firmness of Liverpool wheat quotations today and increasing strength of the corn market were sustaining factor at times as to wheat.

Lowest prices of the day in the wheat market were reached just at the close. Speculative selling and dearth of general demand were much in evidence. Notice was taken, too, of slackness of export call today for wheat from North America. Total purchases of wheat to be shipped to Europe amounted to only 500,000 bu., and included no United States wheat beyond a small cargo to go by way of the Gulf of Mexico. Meanwhile, the Argentine Government officially estimated the 1928 Argentine wheat acreage at 20,254,000 acres, compared with 19,706,000 acres in 1927.

Prices for September delivery of corn displayed notable strength today, and ran up at one time more than 2¼c above yesterdays finish, but then sagged off about 1c from the top as a result of profit-taking. Chicago arrivals of corn today totaled only 68 cars, and there were practically no country offerings of old corn. New crop months were somewhat responsive to the action of September and there were Nebraska complaints of need of more moisture.

In the oats market, nearby deliveries touched a new low price record for the season as a result of hedging pressure.

For the most part, provisions held firm, despite lower quotations on hogs.

Cash wheat market closed unchanged. Corn 1@2c higher; oats unchanged; rye ¼c higher, and barley steady. Demand continues moderate, while offerings of corn light. Local shipping sales totaled 1000 bushels wheat, 25,000 bushels corn, 190,000 bushels oats and 5000 bushels barley. Booked to arrive: Corn, 49,000 bushels, and 3000 bushels barley. There were sales of 10,000 bushels oats to go to store. Warehouse receipts were cancelled for the shipment of 7070 bushels wheat, 109,327 bushels corn and 26,870 bushels No. 2 rye. Export business in all positions estimated at 400,000 to 500,000 bushels wheat, including a cargo of hard winter via the gulf.

WHEAT CLOSES LOWER AND CORN MIXED

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Aug. 18.—Report of railroad forecast of big movement of wheat to Northwest terminals in November was credited with being main bearish influence in wheat trade at week-end session. September corn was strong.

In the cash grain market Saturday red wheat was ½c to 1c lower after opening steady. No. 2 red wheat sold late at prices ½c to 1c down and No. 4s averaged 1c lower. The demand was slow. Bright wheat of selected qualities and samples with low moisture content moved pretty well at the lower prices. Hard wheat was down ½c to 1c. Demand for accumulations was fair, but mills took little. Export interests bought ordinary No. 2 hard late at $1.07½ to $1.10. High moisture No. 3s mostly at $1.09. No. 4s at $1.07. For export, 50,000 bu No. 2 hard sold on basis ¾c under Chicago September price, f. o. b. barge St. Louis. Corn was up 1c to 3c. Offerings were moderate. Some shipping orders for yellow and fair amounts of white and mixed corn to industries described the demand. Oats were ½c to 1½c lower. The demand at the decline was only fair. Most of the buying was done by shippers. White oats sold relatively better than either mixed or red.

Wheat has a narrow price range early, being influenced on one hand by favorable Canadian weather and on other by tone of Liverpool, which closed unchanged on October and December and ½d higher on March. Corn showed strength early, September rising more than cent.

September wheat opened at $1.11⅞, December wheat $1.16¾, September corn 89⅞c and December wheat 72¾c.

Local wheat receipts, which were 429,800 bushels, compared with 438,200 a week ago and 124,600 a year ago, included 254 cars local and 53 through. Corn receipts, which were 126,000 bushels, compared with 161,000 a week ago and 70,000 a year ago, included 37 cars local and 53 through. Oats receipts, which were 188,000 bushels, compared with 202,000 a week ago and 56,000 a year ago, included 71 cars local and 23 through. Hay receipts included 4 cars local and 8 through.

Stocks in St. Louis public grain elevators amounted to 3,224,665 bushels of wheat, 35,310 bushels of corn, 259,909 bushels of oats. Grain stocks comprised: 85,069 bushels of No. 1 red wheat; 283,008 bushels of No. 2 red wheat; 810,384 bushels of No. 1 hard wheat; 805,511 bushels of No. 2 hard wheat; 6097 bushels of No. 2 corn; 10,902 bushels of No. 2 yellow corn, 11,868 bushels of No. 2 white corn; 6530 bushels of No. 2 oats; 17,015 bushels of No. 2 white oats; 139,515 bushels of No. 3 white oats.

TEXAS CONGRESSMAN LINKS HOOVER WITH OIL SCANDALS

J. J. Mansfield Says Candidate Juggled Bureaus Giving Fall Navy Reserves.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

VICTORIA, Tex., Aug. 18.—Columbus, Tex., ranking Demo-Columbus, Tex., ranking Democratic member of Congress, in a luncheon talk here today directly linked Herbert Hoover with the scandals of the Harding-Coolidge administration and intimated that matters involving the transfer of valuable patents might be the subject of a congressional investigation.

"Mr. Hoover," said the Congressman, "was one of the main men in juggling bureaus and reserves from departments where they rightfull belonged to other departments where they did not properly belong. One of these was to give Fall of the Interior Department the naval oil reserves and then take for himself the patent office, which Fall was willing to give up in return."

After declaring that Hoover's long employment abroad was by interests closely allied with the Standard Oil Co., Congressman Mansfield said that this company was interested in mining patents and had obtained practically all of the valuble Herman Frosch patents except the one for mining sulphur, now so successfully applied in Texas.

The Congressman said that the section of the Volstead act exempting wines and apple ciders from the one-half of one per cent content alcoholic provision, was put in the law at the urgent request of the grape growers of California, Hoover's home state, and the apple growers of New Jersey and Pennslyvania, principally. Hoover, he asserted, as a grape grower of California, was in favor of this provision.

Congressman Mansfield said Gov. Smith's views on prohibition were the same as those held by the late President Wilson.

SIGMUND BASS CHARGES FRAUD IN PRIMARY VOTE

Contests Nomination of His Opponent, B. O. Wheeler, for State Senate.

The election of Ben O. Wheeler as Republican nominee for State Senator in the Thirty-first District is contested on the grounds of fraund by his opponent, Sig. M. Bass, who through his attorney, H. M. Stolar, petitioned the Board of Election Commissioners yesterday for a recount and sued in Circuit Court for an order compelling a recount.

In the primary returns, Wheeler, who is a clerk at the Princess Hotel, Eighteenth and Chestnut streets, received 1719 votes, and Bass, an attorney, 1588.

The petitions charge that Bass was defrauded of 600 votes and specifically allege that in the precincts of the Fourth Ward, 511 votes which were cast for Bass were counted for Wheeler, and that in three precincts of the Seventh Ward 20 votes for Bass were counted for Wheeler.

It is also charged that in various precincts votes cast for Bass were marked "rejected."

The Thirty-first Senatorial District includes the Fourth Ward and parts of the Fifth, Sixth and Seventh Wards. State Senator Michael Kinney is the Democratic candidate to succeed himself.

MISSING EXPLORER'S WIFE SAYS SHE KNOWS HE LIVES

Mrs. P. H. Fawcett Relies on Telepathy; Husband Gone Three Years.

BEAULIEU, France, Aug. 18.—Mrs. F. H. Fawcett, wife—or widow—of the long missing British explorer and seeker of the original Garden of Eden, has requested all newspapers to deny reports of her husband's death. She affirms that, through telepathy, she absolutely knows that her husband is still alive, regardless of the fact that he has not been heard from since he entered the wilds of Brazil three years ago.

So strong is Mrs. Fawcett in her conviction that she made her announcement without waiting to hear the report of the Dyott relief expedition from which news is expected within a month or so.

"Please ask all newspapers to deny any statements that my husband is dead," Mrs. Fawcett said, scoffing at fantastic stories that have come from Brazil. She is particularly indignant at a report attributed to a young Frenchman who said that he had seen Col. Fawcett last year half-mad and almost starved in the wilderness, yet refusing to come home. Another rumor that she resents is that the explorer had turned Indian and was unwilling to return to civilization.

TRANSCONTINENTAL HIKER REPORTS WIFE DISAPPEARED

P. F. O'Hare Says She Got Into Roadster on Highway Near Arlington, Mo.

Patrick F. O'Hara, of Baltimore, engaged upon a transcontinental hike from New York to the Pacific Coast, last night asked the police to help him find his wife, Mrs. Julia White O'Hara, 19 years old, who disappeared on United States Highway No. 66 near Arlington, Mo., 123 miles southwest of St. Louis, shortly before noon Friday.

O'Hara said he was walking west, with his wife trailing 50 yards behind, when he met an eastbound roadster bearing a Missouri license and driven by a young man dressed in overalls. After it passed, he related, he looked back and saw it stop as it approached Mrs. O'Hara. She boarded it and was driven rapidly eastward. He traced the machine as far as Rolla, where he lost the trail. Mrs. O'Hara is described as being 5 feet, 3 inches tall, weighing 100 pounds, with short blond haid and dressed in brown whipcord knickers.

GASOLINE TANKS EXPLODE

PITTSBURG, Aug. 18.—Two gasoline tanks exploded here late tonight and four others took fire at a station of the American Oil Co. All available fire apparatus was called from the downtown district. Whether anyone was killed in the blast could not be ascertained because the heat kept firemen at a distance.

The tanks are at the south end of the West Liberty tubes and the flames shooting high into the air, attracted thousands of persons to the scene. The firemen could get no nearer than 200 feet from the blaze.

Oil Man Gets French Decoration.

BARTLESVILLE, Ok., Aug. 18.—Frank Phillips, president of the Phillips Petroleum Co. here, has been decorated as a chevalier of the Legion of Honor by the French Government, he was notified today. The notification invited Phillips to attend an official dinner to be given in his honor in Paris at his convenience. Phillips visited France last fall and spoke before the Parliamentary Oil Committee, which then was considering oil legislation. Recently, Viscount Allan de Leche of the French Foreign Department visited at Phillips' ranch in the Osage Hills, near here.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls or answers by mail cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

E. W.—Telephone the Board of Education Building and ask for any needed instruction in changing from a parochial school to public high school.

LOLA.—The first of 16 free municipal dental clinics for children was opened last July 16, at 901 Lami street. Stations to be opened, if not actually open at the time of this publication are to be at 7002 South Broadway, 1459 North Market street, 4613 Easton avenue, 1243 South Vandeventer avenue and in the Municipal Courts Building, Fourteenth and Market streets. The purpose of the city's clinics will be to provide free dental work for all children whose parents are unable to pay for dental work.

J. K.—To resilver a mirror: Clean glass with soda and rinse well with water and dry. For a small glass pour upon a sheet of tinfoil about three drachms of quicksilver to the square foot of foil; rub smartly with a piece of buckskin until the foil becomes brilliant, lay the glass upon a flat table face downward; place the foil upon the damaged portion of the glass; lay a sheet of paper over the foil and place upon it a block of wood, or a piece of marble, with a perfectly flat surface; put upon it sufficiet weight to press it down tightly; let it remain in this position several hours. The foil will adhere to the glass. The following is from the Scientific American: (a) Reducing solution: in 12 ounces of water dissolve 12 grains of Rochelle salts and boil. Add, while boiling, 16 grains of nitrate of silver, dissolved in one ounce of water and continue the boiling for 10 minutes more; then add water to make 12 ounces. (b) Silvering solution; dissolve one ounce of nitrate of silver in 10 ounces of water; then add liquid ammonia until the brown precipitate is nearly, but not quite, all dissolved; then add one ounce of alcohol and sufficient water to make 12 ounces. To silver, take equal parts of a and b, mix thoroughly and lay the glass, face down, on the top of the mixture while met, in a flat dish a little larger than the mirror. The glass must first be cleaned with soda and well rinsed with clean water. Distilled water should be used in solutions. About two drams of each will silver a plate two inches square. The solution should stand and settle for two or three days before being used. It will keep for a long time.

LEGAL INFORMATION

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association)

ASKED FOR—"A libel is the wilful and malicious publication, in a permanent and visible form, of some matter tending to disgrace or degrade another or to render him ridiculous in the eyes of the community." The definition (Robinson's Elementary Law, Sec. 500) further says: "It is a civil injury, and is also a crime. Its attributes as a crime are the same as in a private wrong, though its criminality consists rather in its consequences as endangering the public peace than in the injury it may inflict upon private reputation. When directed against public officers, or political institutions, it may become a crime against the sovereignty of the State itself. Re. The distinction between a criminal libel when considered as an attack upon private reputation, and the same libel in its aspect as endangering the public peace, is important in view of the defences which are open to the author of the libel upon his prosecution of the crime." The several aspects of the crime are further described in by above authority.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

NEPAC.—Please send stamped addressed envelope for your reply, referring to Nepac.

DAILY READER.—As to whether melancholia is curable and what should be done for its relief and cure depends entirely upon the cause, nature and degree of the derangement. For a correct diagnosis a thorough examination by a physician specialist in this line of practice is absolutely necessary. If you wish us to recommend some one for this service, send self-addressed envelope.

A. E. F.—For large pores and the condition of the skin described, the following should be corrective: Precipitated sulphur, one drachm; powdered tragacanth, 10 grains; powdered camphor 10 grains; glycerine, one drachm; lime water, two ounces; rose water, two ounces; mix, shake and apply night and morning after applying cloths wrung out of hot water for 10 or 15 minutes and drying thoroughly. Also correct constipation and take systematic outdoor exercise, abstaining from all alcoholics, and if tea or coffee is taken at all, take it in moderation.

PARENT.—A child of two years not making an effort to talk is of infrequent occurrence, but in such a case the child should be carefully examined for any possible cause. While you say that the general health and intelligence is normal, there may be some nervous condition that is causing the trouble. You are advised to consult the physician in the Psychiatric clinic, 153 Municipal Courts Building, Fourteenth and Market streets.

W. I.—The itching you experience after the effects of poison ivy seem to be relieved, is likely due to irritation set up by the remedy you used, and should be relieved by applying Campho-Phenique as often as necessary, pure and undiluted. Ivy poisoning is produced by a gum resin and is strictly local never "getting into the blood" or poisoning the general system. (2) Weak kidneys like the weakness of any other organ or anatomical part may sometimes be inherited, but this is the rare exception. Prevention lies in living a well regulated, hygienic life, moderation in all things, avoidance of all excesses, abstaining from all alcoholics, and using tea and coffee in moderation only, systematic outdoor exercise correcting constipation, getting plenty of sleep at regular intervals, and the avoidance of overwork and worry.

And day by day I miss him more,
As I walk through life alone.
Day by day we saw him fade,
And peacefully pass away
From this world of pain and sorrow,
To the land of peace and rest.
In our home where all seemed bright,
God took from us a shining light.

Where Dogs and Cats Are Sent to the Laundry

Everything From a Plain Wet Wash to a Permanent Wave Is Available for Los Angeles Pets.

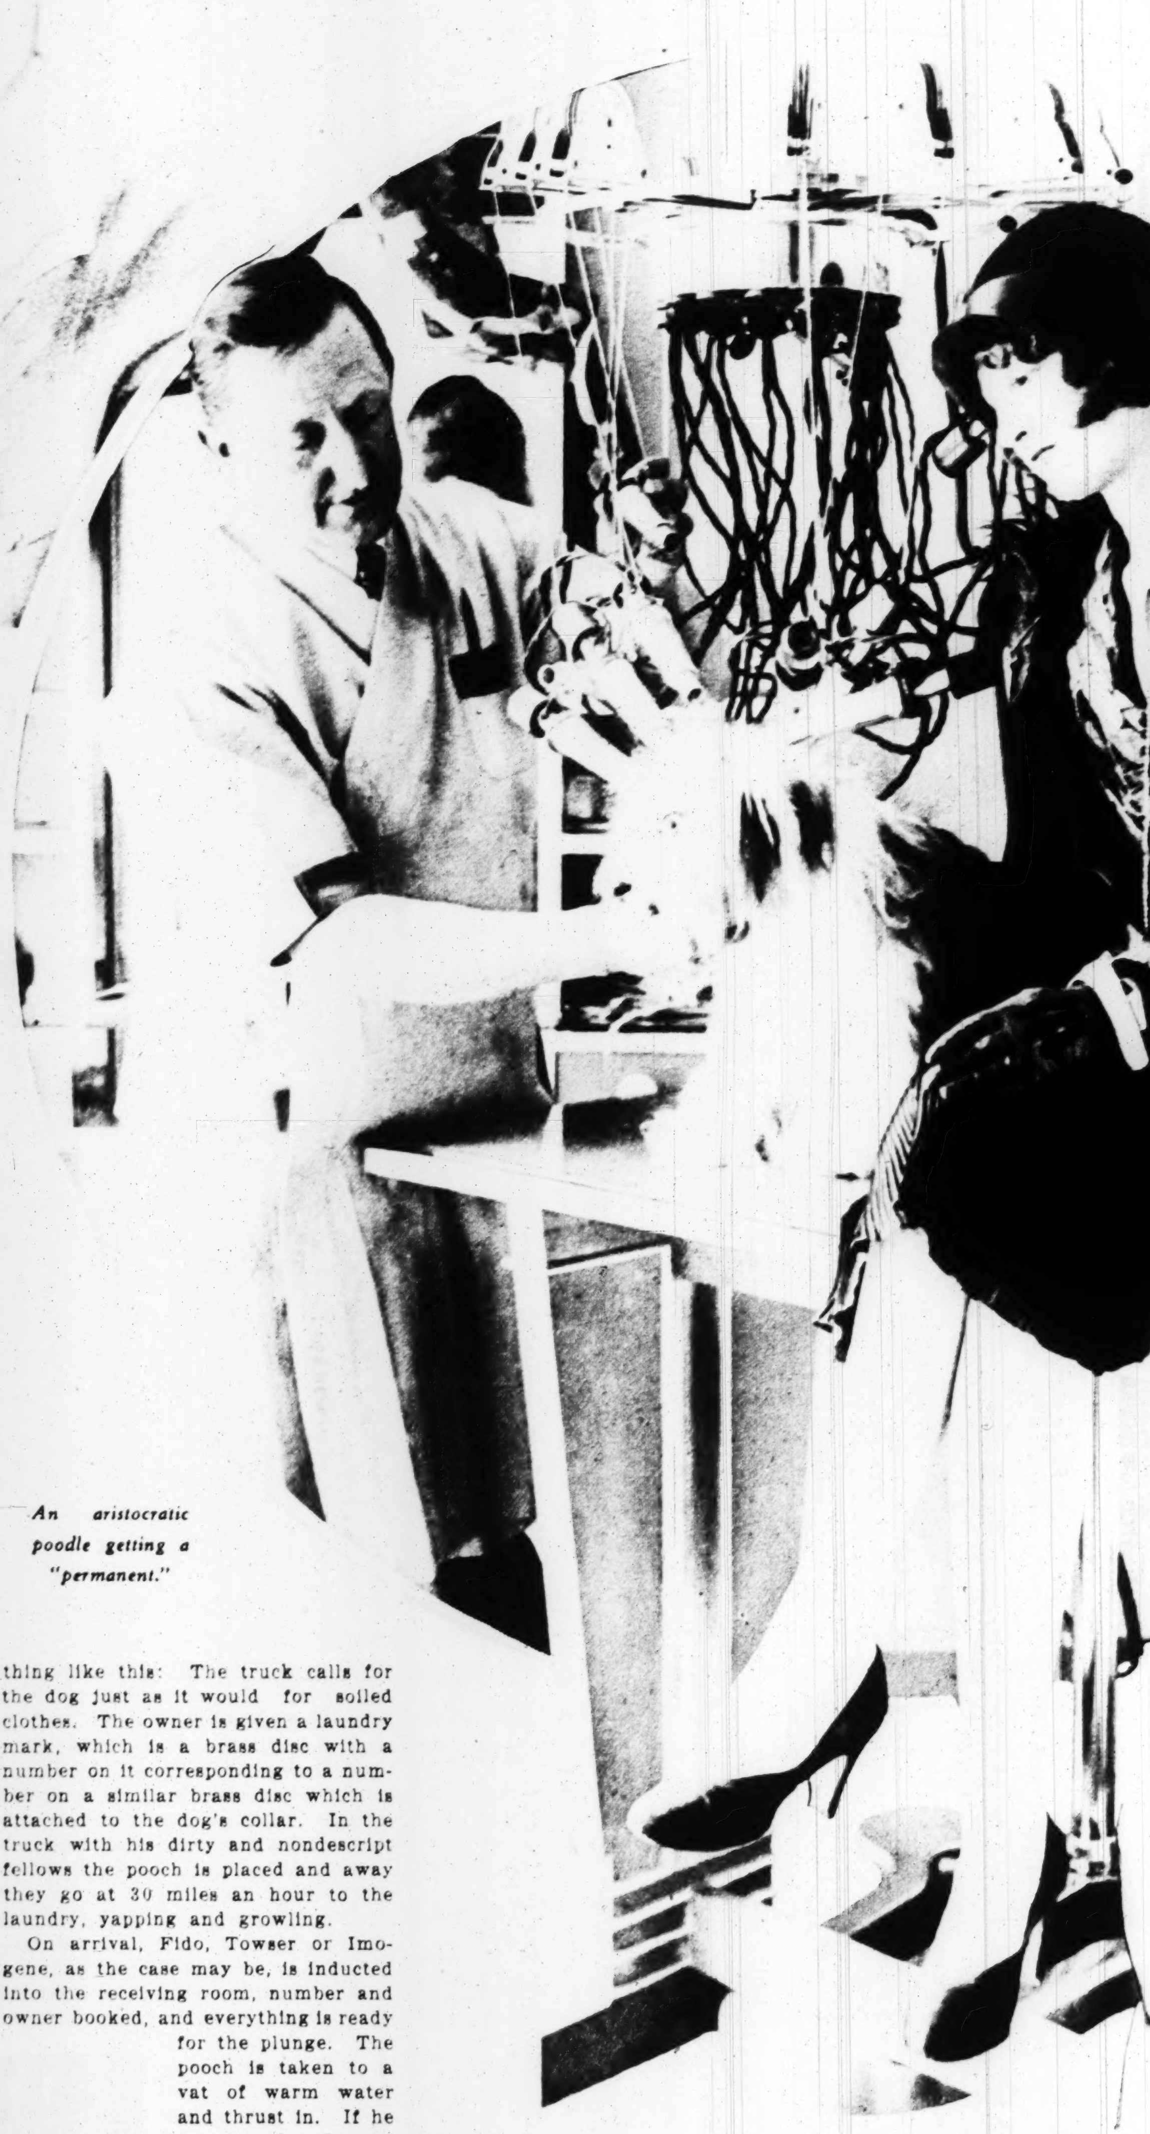
LOS ANGELES, California.

T MAY have been because this city had more dirty dogs than other cities, but that must not be spread about, because there are no reliable statistics available as to the number and comparative filthiness of dirty dogs. There are hosts of them in every city, as everybody knows, and it would be unjust to impute to Los Angeles supremacy in that particular field. More likely, it was because Los Angeles found itself less able than other cities to tolerate dirty dogs. Anyway, Los Angeles, finding itself with a lot of them, was the first to do anything in particular about it. Los Angeles solved its problem by establishing a dog laundry, or, rather, one of its forward-looking citizens did, and the dogs come pouring in every Monday morning like last week's shirts. By Wednesday they are back at home again, scrubbed, massaged, starched and ironed.

Alexander Moxley was the public spirited citizen who created the dog-washing business, thereby doing something for the community, for its mangy dogs and for himself. Starting in a small way, his laundry filled a long-felt want so capably that now he has a rushing trade. It keeps three big delivery trucks busy gathering up dogs and taking them home. The drivers of these trucks, courteous, efficient and as serious about their business as drivers of regular laundry wagons, cover the city and environs all the way from San Pedro to Hollywood and from San Fernando to San Gabriel. All manner of pooches, from woolly little lap dogs to Great Danes and Newfoundlands, are to be seen getting cleaned and pressed. And the rate for all is a dollar, regardless of size, sanitary condition or number of fleas.

On some days as many as 400 dogs are handled in the tubs and on the drying boards of the Moxley canine laundry. The main plant is at 1400 East Washington street, but the service has become so popular among residents of Hollywood and Beverly Hills that a special branch has been established for that part of the district. Of course, pooches from that section are a bit ritzy and don't care to associate with common dogs, much less share baths with them. Besides, they go to the laundry for a lot of special attention the common run of dogs don t require. There is no end to the frills affluent movie stars can think up as fitting and proper for their dogs. They demand a high polish, with manicures, marcels and permanent waves. The Hollywood branch of the dog laundry, therefore, is a good deal more than a laundry. It is a beauty shop as well.

ACCORDING to the proprietor of this unique business, however, the bulk of his trade, both as to the number of dogs laundered and the gross revenue therefrom, comes not from the movie colony, but from regular people. In spite of all the fastidious demands of the movie people for permanent waves and other such frills, it is in the family with an income of $150 to $200 a month that the most genuine affection for dogs is found. And it is this class that keeps the dog laundry business going and growing.



An aristocratic poodle getting a "permanent."

Procedure at the laundry is something like this: The truck calls for the dog just as it would for soiled clothes. The owner is given a laundry mark, which is a brass disc with a number on it corresponding to a number on a similar brass disc which is attached to the dog's collar. In the truck with his dirty and nondescript fellows the pooch is placed and away they go at 30 miles an hour to the laundry, yapping and growling.

On arrival, Fido, Towser or Imogene, as the case may be, is inducted into the receiving room, number and owner booked, and everything is ready for the plunge. The pooch is taken to a vat of warm water and thrust in. If he is a regular dog he doesn't object, as a rule, and, indeed, seems to enjoy the rubbing and scrubbing. This plunge serves two main purposes. One is to get rid of the dirt and the other is to exterminate his complement of fleas and other vermin. Strong germicidal soap accomplishes the latter purpose.

After the scrubbing the dog, now a dirty dog no longer, is treated to a thorough shower bath and then taken to the drying room, where first he is electrically dried on the drying board and then "hung out" in a warm room. This over, he is taken outside and placed in his individual wire compartment, where the drying is completed in the sunlight. After the third and final drying, Towser is massaged with a preparation to keep him free of fleas and hauled home. He arrives with his sins all washed away—for a time, as all sins are washed away—and all it costs is a dollar.

But there are dogs to fit all kinds of purses and, naturally, there must be laundry service to fit all kinds of purses. Very aristocratic pooches from Hollywood simply must have more than a dollar's worth of attention, and they get it. The beauty parlor takes care of that. It is prepared to manicure and polish toe nails, give permanent waves and even mascara for the dog's eyes. And here, in the beauty parlor, equipment is just as elaborate as that in any regular shop. Instead of ordinary laundry soap there is to be found the same scented variety used in the swankest Southern California hotels.

A complete beauty treatment is given for a rock-bottom price of $10. That sounds like a great deal merely for satisfying a dog's vanity—or maybe it is the vanity of his mistress. Anyway, it includes a permanent wave, and nearly everybody knows from first or second hand experience how expensive permanent waves are. And permanent waves, of course, are most essential for dogs which have a social position to maintain. Usually a dog's social position is commensurate with his general worthlessness and despicable traits of character. The more despicable and worthless, the higher his rank in society. And what could possibly make a dog more despicable than a permanent wave and pinked toe nails. For merely washing the dog and brushing and polishing his coat, $5 is the minimum charge, but for $10 a month the owner may have Fido bathed, manicured and brushed once a week. Then there are such extra attentions as combing and clipping, which, of course, cost extra. It may be the laundry operators figure in, at an extra charge, the item of mirror service. Anyway, there is provided a big mirror, in which Fido, or maybe it's Imogene, can gaze. A demand is found for all of these items of service, but, according to Moxley, a laundry service every two weeks suffices for the average dog.

Cleaning a dog's teeth.

NOT only does the laundry wash dogs. It also takes care of cats, and the number of felines going through the tubs weekly is surprising. Laundry service for cats is about the same as for dogs, with the same general price range—$1 for a plain "doing up" and more for beauty frills. Permanent waves for long-haired cats are especially popular, and so are facial massages and shampoos for aristocratic beasts such as Angoras and Persians. But cats do not require laundering so often as dogs. They are more careful about staying out of the dirt and they are less beleaguered by vermin. This is because they have not the characteristic body odor, as dogs have, which attracts fleas.

But cats are more temperamental at the laundry than dogs. They have a strong dislike for getting wet and frequently jump out of the tub and scamper out of reach. Where a dog voluntarily submits to a bath and enjoys it, a cat raises no end of commotion, with claws primed for business.

Most of the cats sent to the laundry, according to the proprietor's figures, are owned by spinsters, but the movie girls of the Hollywood colony contribute some handsome specimens, which require permanents and all the other trimmings. Not long ago, the truck driver answered a call and was amazed to find 45 cats at one house all ready for the laundry at once. That was the biggest cat wash day on record, but all were washed and dried without mishap and returned to their owner two days later. If the cat laundry business continues to grow, the proprietor says, a new branch will have to be established because cats and dogs don't mix so well, even in a laundry.

A lot of people snickered and some laughed outright when Moxley started his business of washing dogs and cats. But they don't laugh any more. The business is far past the experimental stage and is prospering. A good many of those who laughed are wishing now that they had thought of it first. Los Angeles, as a municipality, is very proud of its dog laundry, just as it is proud of everything else it has that other cities don't possess.

When the Brandon Ring Curse Was Defied

The Matrimonial Disaster That Overtook Robert Daniel Who Scoffed at the Superstition Which Hung About the Historic Virginia Manor He Bought for His Bride.

NEW YORK.

THE evil prophecy of an age-old tradition has at last been fulfilled at Brandon Manor, and if this historic old Virginia estate, which finds its origin in the early colonial days of Captain John Smith, should be sold soon by its present owner, it will be because of the ominous legend that has for generations clung to its antique walls.

"Brandon-on-the-James," it is called because its white pillars stand among old gardens and winding paths on the James River in Prince George County, Virginia. It is one of the oldest estates in the country, and early records show that it was first granted to one John Martin, an officer under Captain John Smith at Jamestown and a member of His Majesty's first council in Virginia. Next it passed into the hands of Robert Quiny, an English merchant, whose wife, Judith, was none other than a daughter of William Shakspeare. Quiny left the estate to a great-nephew, Robert Richardson, who eventually sold it to Nathanial Harrison in 1720.

FOR more than 200 years the mansion has remained in the Harrison family, the Harrisons of Virginia, who have produced two Presidents of the United States and countless distinguished men and women. For generations "Brandon-on-the-James" was celebrated for its hospitality and as a gathering place of cavalier and aristocrat.

But somewhere along the course of years a tragedy was enacted under its roof, and out of this tragedy grew the legend, the evil prophecy which now, it seems, is being fulfilled at Brandon. For, according to the memory of the oldest inhabitants in the vicinity, there was once a wedding at Brandon, and that night the bride was killed. As she lay on her deathbed her young husband, frantic with grief, swore that he would remain true to her forever. As a reminder of his vow he took the newly-given wedding ring from his wife's finger and suspended it from a chandelier where he might look upon it whenever he entered the room. And then he breathed a curse that whoever removed that ring should forever be followed by misfortune in love.

For generations that ring hung untouched in Brandon Manor, and for generations members of the Harrison family have retold that legend and the evil prophecy that accompanies it. Soon the legend infected the estate with the evil air of a haunted place. Although the Harrison family still owned the property, they came to prefer to make their home elsewhere. Brandon fell into disuse and neglect. That gold ring hanging from the chandelier was a constant reminder of the tragedy, and the force of the old curse was so strong that no one dared to remove it. Then in 1926 the present owner, Robert W. Daniel, a prominent New York banker, descended from an old Virginia family, decided to buy the place. Three years before he had married Marjorie Durant, daughter of the financier and automobile manufacturer, and he determined to buy Brandon as a gift for her. He bought the historic estate from Gordon Harrison, and he and his wife immediately began to renovate it. They both were familiar with the old legend and the curse inherent in the ring, but they were inclined to regard it as an old wives' tale, something that only superstitious people would believe. And thus, while the house was being refurbished, they did not hesitate to remove the ring. It was taken to Tiffany's to be repolished and while there an expert remarked upon its age and fine quality, for it was so old that it bore no carat stamp. And when the large gold band had been burnished, the Daniels again hung it under its old glass chandelier. They put little faith in the legend, but they thought it was an amusing story and they believed the ring would add an interesting bit of atmosphere; provide an opportunity to retell the tale to curious guests.

IN DECEMBER, 1926, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel opened the doors of Brandon with a brilliant housewarming. Gov. and Mrs. Harry Byrd of Virginia, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, William McAdoo, Mr. and Mrs. John Davis and a number of other distinguished persons, many of them native Virginians, were among the guests. It was fitting and proper that Daniel should buy Brandon. He is the great-great-grandson of Edmund Randolph, first Attorney-General of the United States and a Governor of Virginia. Indian braves of the Chickahominy tribe brought gifts of friendship to Mr. and Mrs. Daniel, just as their Indian ancestors had done to former lords of the manor. The housewarming was a great success. The brightly polished gold ring, hanging from the chandelier in the music room, was shown to the guests, and the story of its origin was laughingly retold. And when some of their guests reminded them they had violated the tradition by removing the ring and having it polished, the young banker and his wife replied that they had nothing to fear, for they were still in love with one another and didn't put much faith in superstitious old stories anyway.

But now the guests who attended the brilliant housewarming at Brandon and who joined in scoffing at the old legend are shaking their heads uneasily, wondering at the strange way old prophecies have of proving themselves true. For the Daniel romance is now in the last stages of dissolution. Mrs. Daniel is now in Reno with the announced intention of divorcing her husband. Beyond admitting that their marriage is about to end, neither Daniel nor his wife is willing to disclose the reason.

In his home at Old Westbury, Long Island, Daniel is living with his 3-year-old daughter, unhappily waiting for the word that will inform him that he and Mrs. Daniel are no longer man and wife. Daniel is not willing to admit that his troubles can be traced to the old tradition of the ring, but he no longer scoffs when he speaks of it. It was not long after the housewarming that Mrs. Daniel suffered a nervous breakdown and spent some weeks in a Baltimore sanitarium in an attempt to regain her health. And on the heels of that misfortune follows her departure for Reno.

It is difficult to say just how much, if any, of Daniel's present ill-fortune is due to the disturbed bride's ring at Brandon, for even before he bought that historic old homestead his career had been marked by success in business and bad luck in love. He was born in Richmond in 1884, and after attending the University of Virginia, went to Philadelphia and became a bond salesman. He did very well and soon thereafter Daniel established his own banking business with branches in New York and London. After a business trip abroad in 1912 he took return passage to the United States on the ill-fated Titanic, then making her maiden voyage from Liverpool to New York. And he was one of the 2223 persons on board when the giant steamer, then the largest in the world, struck an iceberg 1600 miles out of New York and went down with 1517 persons.

While the boat was steadily sinking and it became apparent that there wouldn't be enough lifeboats to accommodate all the passengers, Daniel decided that he had only one chance in a thousand to survive. Holding tightly to his life preserver he dived off the foundering vessel into the sea. An hour later, almost numb and paralyzed by the waters, which had been abnormally chilled by the presence of the iceberg, Daniel found himself alongside a lifeboat. A woman in the boat saw him, and, with her assistance, he was hoisted into the craft, and as a result was among the 706 persons who were rescued when the S. S. Carpathia appeared to pick up the survivors. In the boat which had saved Daniel was Mrs. John Jacob Astor, whose husband went down with the ship. And another woman there who had been widowed by the accident was Mrs. Lucien Smith, daughter of Congressman James Hughes of West Virginia, who was returning from a honeymoon abroad when the giant ship went down.

IT WAS Mrs. Smith, then but 19 years old, who had espied the helpless form of Daniel near the boat and who made it possible for him to be saved.

Some months after the disaster Mrs. Smith became the mother of a boy, the son of her drowned husband. In the meantime, the friendship which had sprung up between Mrs. Smith and Robert Daniel grew in intensity. The common memory of the terrible disaster they had endured together was a strong bond between them, and Daniel furthermore had a profound feeling of gratitude for the woman who had made his rescue possible. In a short time it was seen that gratitude had changed to love, and not long thereafter they were quietly married. But their marriage was not a success. And two years later, without any publicity attending the affair, they were separated by divorce. No public explanations were made.

When the war came Daniel was commissioned a Captain and later rose to the rank of Major. In 1919, on account of his special knowledge of finance, he was appointed assistant army Liberty Loan officer and acted as personal aid to General H. M. Lord, director of finances of the United States Army and later Director of the Budget. Then, in 1920, he was appointed by the Secretary of the Treasury for special national bank examining work in New York.

IT WAS while engaged in this work in New York that he renewed his acquaintance with William Durant, millionaire financier and manufacturer of automobiles. The two men became very friendly and Daniel was soon a frequent visitor at the Durant home on Long Island. There he met Marjorie Durant. They were married in 1923. They built a comfortable home at Old Westbury, in the picturesque and aristocratic section of Long Island, not far from New York. There a daughter was born to them.

At the time of his marriage to Marjorie Durant, Daniel was made first vice president of the Liberty National Bank of New York, which was organized by Durant to handle the finances involved in his various large undertakings. Later the bank was reorganized as the Liberty National Bank and Trust Company, and in March, 1926, Daniel was elected president of the institution. He also became a director of Durant Motors, Inc., and of the Georgia & Florida Railway. His future was assured.

And then, in October, 1926, he decided to buy "Brandon-on-the-James" as a gift for his wife. It was a beautiful gift, a gift anyone would cherish, but the ancient gold ring that accompanied it has now turned the memory of that brilliant housewarming into a bitter reminder of the old Virginia legend and the bridegroom's curse: bad luck in love to anyone who disturbs that old symbol of a dead love.

Old Arctic Tragedies Re-Enacted in Italia Disaster

Adventures of Nobile's Men Offer Striking Parallels to Dramatic Episodes of the Scott and Greely Expeditions.

OUT of the Italia tragedy and its strange aftermaths have appeared a good many scenes and circumstances that are new to the dramatic literature of Arctic exploration. After melancholy review of all the unpleasant things that can happen to an expedition in the Far North, the most imaginative alarmist probably never thought of a mishap so weird and incredible as that of a great dirigible casting part of its hapless crew adrift on an ice field and sailing away into the unknown with the others. Never before was there a rescue quest in which the main activity became so markedly an effort to rescue rescuers. The records of polar exploration disclose no other instance of a rescuer exchanging places with the rescued, as happened when the Swedish Lieutenant Lundborg became marooned at the Nobile camp after he had carried General Umberto Nobile to safety. Never before were marooned explorers able to keep the world apprised by radio of their daily movements and condition. So far as mechanics and methods were concerned, therefore, the Italia disaster represented a new order of things in Arctic adventure.

But in its human side the Nobile drama advanced a different sort of claim for distinction. More than any other disaster of its kind, it constituted a recapitulation of those other tragedies of the ice wastes which had gone before. Human feeling doesn't change from one generation to another as do mechanical appliances. Similar circumstances bring about the same human reactions. Whether navigators are stranded from a dirigible or an old-fashioned sailing ship, the pangs of hunger strike in the same place and with the same power; hopes and disappointments are felt just as keenly and acts of courage and heroism shine out of the frozen wastes with about the same luminosity.

IN THE course of other polar expeditions there occurred certain happenings which stood apart as unique—things that ordinarily don't happen twice. It was a strange coincidence that the Italia survivors were destined to experience, with slight variations, a repetition of at least three of these dramatic incidents. Events which formed some of the high lights in the stories of the Greely venture, "Farthest North," in 1881-84, and of Capt. R. F. Scott's last expedition to the Antarctic were almost paralleled in the story of the Nobile party.

When men have been long in peril, with death hovering close and seeming to delay its final swoop from one moment to the next, they fall easily and naturally into the habit of hoping for what, in moments of less tension, they would pronounce impossible. Like drowning men, they clutch desperately at straws. A new hope is inspired by any favorable circumstance or no circumstance at all. It fails and they grasp at another straw.

But sometimes there appears in the offing, just out of reach, a real prospect of deliverance. After tortures of anxiety, safety seems at last assured. Hope soars to the heights of ecstasy. Failure then, and disappointment, amounts to despair, for disappointment is commensurate with the height to which hope has risen. It is the downward plunge. Both the Greely and the Nobile survivors were doomed to suffer for a brief period these agonies of exquisite despair. Safety, ironically, had come and gone. In the case of Nobile, it was the passing of rescue planes within plain view of the camp, the flyers continuing on their way ignorant of their proximity to the goal. In the case of the Greely expedition, 44 years earlier, it was the whistle of a ship.

RETURNING from its voyage to the pole, the Italia, on the night of May 24, encountered heavy fog and terrific headwinds over Barents Sea, off the coast or Northeast Land. All night the great craft struggled against the storm and the accumulating ice which threatened to bring it down. Finally, on the morning of May 25, came the crash. Proceeding at an altitude of about 1500 feet, the ship seemed suddenly to become heavy and started a rapid descent. Two minutes later it struck the ice. The cabin was torn off and smashed and the lightened craft was carried away by the wind, taking six members of the crew to a fate never clearly determined. Of the 10 in the cabin, one was killed and two were injured. These nine survivors, left upon the ice near Foyn Island, constituted the party for which the main search was at first directed.

By some stroke of good fortune the radio apparatus was undamaged and calls for help were sent out to civilization. Although these were picked up and rescue expeditions were speedily organized, the party's failure to receive answers to their signals made it appear that their S O S calls had not been effective. The gloom of uncertainty settled down upon them and, meanwhile, their condition became desperate. Most of their food supplies and Arctic equipment had been carried away with the bag. After five days of waiting, with the situation daily becoming more alarming, it was decided that a party of three should try to cross to the mainland of Northeast Land and make their way to North Cape for help. These three were Dr. Finn Malmgren, Swedish scientist, and Captains Alberto Mariano and Filippo Zappi, of whose journey more is to be said.

FIGHTING against starvation and Arctic madness, those who stayed behind waited through eight days before there came a sign. Then hope sprang up when Nobile's messages were answered by the Citta di Milano, the Italian supply ship at King's Bay, Spitzbergen. But Spitzbergen was far away. Would help arrive in time? For 10 more weary, hungry days they waited. They dyed Gen. Nobile's tent red, in the hope that it would be more easily sighted by passing planes. Finally, on the morning of June 18, there was heard the sound for which ears had been strained for three weeks. It was the hum of airplane motors. Immediately the little camp was the scene of unrestrained rejoicing. The planes were coming! They had been found, after all. They danced out to signal frantically to the two approaching specks in the sky. These specks, it was afterwards learned, were the planes of the Norwegian flyers, Captain Riiser-Larsen and Lieutenant Luetzow-Holm. They came nearer and actually passed over the camp at a height of less than a thousand feet. But so broken and tumbled was the ice field below they failed even to see such a conspicuous object as Nobile's red tent. They went on their way while the despairing castaways beat the air with their arms, shrieked at the top of their lungs and then broke down and sobbed.

As it happened, another plane found them and dropped food supplies two days later, but during those awful two days they sounded the depths of such disappointment as only a malicious fate can devise. Probably of all men alive today, only those few remaining survivors of the Greely expedition can fully understand what and how they felt. The Greely veterans know from bitter experience. Even after 44 years they have not forgotten the night of June 22, 1884.

Capt. Robert F. Scott.

Encamped near Cape Sabine, on the shore of Bedford Pim Island, the Greely party had for nine months fought a heroic but losing fight against the rigors of the Arctic. In their retreat from "farthest north" the preceding autumn their launch had been caught in the ice pack and they marched 100 miles, dragging their supplies on sledges. They arrived at Cape Sabine too late to catch the relief steamer, which had fled southward to escape the advancing ice. They found themselves marooned and human beings probably never lived through a more terrible winter. Indeed, most of them didn't live through it. Of the 25 who went into winter quarters, June found only seven alive. Starvation, cold and scurvy had all but wiped out the expedition. One member had been executed. That was Private Charles B. Henry, who was put to death by a firing squad on Greely's order after he had repeatedly been caught stealing food.

Of the seven survivors, one had lost both legs from frostbite, another's legs were paralyzed from the knees down, a third was virtually helpless from rheumatism and the others were growing too weak to keep up the fight. Lieutenant Greely had closed his diary. The food was exhausted. A few square inches of soaked sealskin was all the nutriment that had passed their lips for 42 hours. The end of all was approaching. It was about midnight of that fateful June 22 and Greely was trying to read from a prayer-book.

Suddenly the weakened sufferers sat upright in their sleeping bags. For clear and unmistakable, above the roar of the Arctic wind, came the sound of a steamer's whistle. Could it be possible? Of course, it could be nothing else. Rescuers had arrived in the nick of time. Lieutenant Greely hurriedly dispatched two men—the only two still able to walk—to a nearby hill to see if they could discern the ship. They went, they looked and strained their eyes, but saw nothing. Discouraged, they returned, finally reasoning that the sound must have been merely an auditory illusion. Despair followed quickly in the wake of hope that night. In the space of a few minutes there had been experienced the highest hope and the blackest despair which men are capable of experiencing.

"We had resigned ourselves to die," Lieutenant Greely wrote afterwards, "when suddenly strange voices were heard calling me, and, in a frenzy of feeling as vehement as our enfeebled condition would permit, we realized that our country had not failed us, that the long agony was over, and the remnant of the Lady Franklin Bay Expedition was saved."

It had been a ship, after all. Captain (afterwards Admiral) Schley, commanding a rescue expedition, had ordered the whistle blown to recall his searching parties from the shore. The next day they returned and found the stricken camp. So the horrible night of June 22, 1884, had a happy ending.

WHEN Dr. Malmgren and Captain Zappi and Captain Mariano of the ill-fated Italia crew plodded off across the ice floes to look for help on the mainland they made a fatal mistake. Had they remained by the radio with the rest of the Nobile survivors, all probably would be alive today. As it happened, Malmgren is dead and Mariano more dead than alive from frostbite and amputation of one leg. It appears that responsibility for the venture has not been definitely established, but early reports indicated Dr. Malmgren himself was the author of the plan. By crossing the ice to Northeast Land, he hoped they might encounter Norwegian tradesmen with provisions. It was a slim chance at best, a desperate gamble. And, like the gamble of Rice and Frederick of the Greely expedition, it failed. In this case the price of failure was the life of Dr. Malmgren. In the other it was the life of the intrepid Sergeant George W. Rice.

When the Greely party was starving by inches late in the spring of 1884 Rice proposed that he and Sergeant Julius R. Frederick, who were still among the more able-bodied of the survivors, should make a trip to Baird Inlet in an attempt to recover 100 pounds of beef which the party had been compelled to abandon the preceding November. Lieut. Greely at first refused and then, after repeated urging, reluctantly gave his consent. With the temperature 8 below zero, Rice and Frederick started, dragging on a sledge meager supplies for the 100-mile trek. Suffering greatly from exhaustion, they reached Baird Inlet, where, after a futile search for the beef cache, Rice collapsed. He was unable to go farther and realized the end had come. Frederick took off his own coat to wrap around the feet of the dying man and sat beside him, striving to make his last moments cheerful by lively remarks. From 4 in the afternoon until Rice died, at 7:45 that evening, Frederick sat there in his shirt sleeves, through a driving storm of wind and snow, holding his comrade's head in his lap. He had just strength enough left to reach his sleeping bag and sledge, which had been left six miles away. The next day he came back over those rugged six miles and buried his companion before starting back to the Greely camp. And when he finally arrived, he turned in the remainder of Rice's provisions.

LIKE Rice, Malmgren was accounted the man best fitted by experience and condition for a march across the floes, but he was the first to break. It appears the dirigible's crash had injured him more than he suspected. Anyway, after two weeks on the ice, with both feet frozen and an arm fractured, he fell on the march.

"He lay where he fell, knowing that his hour had struck and imploring us to leave him to his fate," Zappi said afterwards. "We did all we could for him, but his strength ebbed away very fast. Almost with his last breath he urged us to speed on and seek help for General Nobile and the rest of the stranded men."

What it was that Zappi and Mariano did for him is not quite clear, unless it was to scoop out a shallow grave for him in the ice. They did that and left him lying in it, still alive and without food. It appears they even took much of his clothing, for when rescued some three weeks later, Zappi was found to be wearing

NEW YORK.

AN ATMOSPHERE that might almost be described as dismal hangs over once carefree Greenwich Village. Shadows that are heavier and deeper than those which are cast by the great skyscraper apartments that have encroached on Washington Square from its Fifth avenue entrance darken this former stronghold of Bohemia.

This present-day gloom has its origin in the startling number of suicides and suicidal attempts in village garrets and attic studios. Except for a few obscure neighborhoods, such as Patchin Place, the village has long been deserted by successful writers and artists. Its population in recent years has been made up for the most part of poseurs, hangers-on and roisterers, who found the village conveniently careless about the ordinary conventions. There have been, too, hundreds of obscure beginners who have struggled, many of them for years, for recognition in some field or other of art. It is among this group that suicide has taken its largest toll.

The tragedy that recently centered about Maxwell Bodenheim, the novelist and poet, has merely served to call attention to the numerous precedents for the action of Miss Virginia Drew, poet and student of literature, who flung herself into the Hudson River after Bodenheim had pronounced her poetry "sentimental trash."

BODENHEIM is a survivor of two Bohemias. He was formerly one of the Chicago group that was known as the Dill Pickle Club. With literary success of a sort, he moved to New York and lived in the village. His latest New York apartment is in mid-town.

Another of Bodenheim's literary acquaintances, Miss Gladys Loeb, had previously attempted suicide. As is well known, she went to Provincetown, Massachusetts, where the novelist had sought refuge from the publicity that followed Miss Drew's death. There she found her father, Dr. Martin Loeb, who engaged Bodenheim in a fiery debate. "I'm a misunderstood genius," said the novelist. "You are too obtuse; you could never understand me."

"You are a coward and a spineless jellyfish," was Dr. Loeb's retort, according to published accounts.

Bodenheim's recent misadventures have recalled to many persons the character of Jules Ganz, hero of Ben Hecht's novel, "Count Bruga." Hecht was another of the Dill Pickle group. He says of his hero:

"He was a fairly tall, blond youth, with reddish eyebrows and possessed of a savage and capricious mind, abominable manners, and an arresting talent for the writing of an icily sensuous species of poetry.

". . . Jules Ganz's emergence on the literary horizon resulted chiefly in augmenting the numbers of those who considered him unfit for human society. His two different publishers each inserted clauses in their contracts that he was never to appear in person at their offices, and the editors of such magazines as had succumbed to the undeniable if eclectic beauty of his work, gave stringent orders to their underlings that Jules Ganz was to be barred from their sanctums regardless of what excuses or demands he might make.

"In the literary and social circles in which he intruded . . . . the outraged literati fought with each other for the privilege of throwing him out."

In his relations with women, Hecht described his hero as "a leering, prancing, gutter Dionysus, guffawing obscenely in their ears, pawing their evening gowns with the elation of a mangy dog digging the earth for a buried morsel—and demanding the immediate surrender of body and soul."

Yet there remained his poetry. "Women who slapped his face," said Hecht, "grew frightened as if they had made some incredible mistake, and sensitive gentlemen, while punching his head, were overcome with uneasy memories of the delicate and often beautiful words to which he signed his name as a poet."

It was this felicity of expression, and not his resemblance to the satyr-like Ganz of "Count Bruga," which drew to Bodenheim the two young women who sought to take their own lives, one successfully, their relatives believe.

Since the Bodenheim episode there has been another attempted suicide to further shock and sadden the dwellers in a slightly tarnished Bohemia.

GEORGE D. NOEBLING, long a resident of the village and a member of a wealthy Philadelphia family, the other day made a third effort to end his life. He leaped from a 75-foot wall in Morningside Park and, though he suffered severe injuries, he will recover. Failure to find employment as an actor was given as the reason for his act. Some time before Noebling had been involved in a duel, "distinctly an affair of honor between two gentlemen," over Miss Billy Netcong.

As recently as April, Perke Hamburg, stage director and musician, who had worked for both David Belasco and Robert Milton and possessed a fat contract from the latter at the time, barricaded himself in his suite at the Great Northern Hotel and shot himself through the heart.

Not long before the village had been badly shaken by the dramatic suicide of Hans Stengel, the caricaturist and critic whose Saturday night parties were very popular. While one such party was at its height Stengel rose—just at the stroke of midnight—went into an adjoining room and hanged himself with his suspenders from the top hinge of a door. His pipe which he had paused to fill was in his mouth, its contents half-smoked.

IN a recent issue of "The Bookman," a friend of Stengel's, Marcus Goodrich, described the tragic deterioration of character that at last brought the caricaturist to self-destruction. Separation from his wife and ceaseless bickerings with editors of newspapers and magazines had gradually undermined Stengel's confidence in himself until he plunged into a fury of self-forgetfulness. Goodrich writes of this period:

"He was drunk now nearly every night; curiously drunk. The buoyancy that formerly he seemed to have got from drink was now displaced by a sort of sultriness, and the aforetime thrilling play of his wit had given way to a lunging epigrammatic savagery that grew more and more cumbersome as the days went by. His Saturday nights had become sordid brawls. He would place a huge crock on a table in the center of his living room, fill it one-third full of straight alcohol and complete it with fruit juice. Then he would open his door and the riff-raff of the city would pour in; uptown slummers, Greenwich Village vagrants and that inadmirable swarm that hovers about the fringe of the artistic world as the Parasites used to do about the Roman banquet circle. Such filth as they splashed at each other! Such stupidity! Some would break chairs. Others would become frantic with sterile vulgarity and rip their own clothes off. Occasionally, Stengel would arise, as if out of a psychic coma, and throw a man downstairs. Once I saw him go mad and tell this ulcerous gathering in a drunken, feverish voice what I knew to be part of the very foundation of his whole miserable situation. There was a moment of silence. Then everybody tittered in embarrassment, tentatively—but not too loudly, for they all were afraid of Stengel's reputation for getting violent."

In a moment of sober reaction, following several months of this, when he saw existence as bare and futile, according to Goodrich, he determined to kill himself.

Aimee Cortez, girl "Mayor" of the Village, was found dead in a gas-filled room not long ago, and suicidal intent was unmistakable. She had come to Bohemia at 14 in search of love and life. At 17 she felt that she knew all there was to know about both.

Another, and perhaps the most picturesque of those to make the final gesture, was the Baroness Freitag von Lorinehoven, familiar to old-time Villagers. The Baroness, a woman of striking appearance, was said to be a veritable member of the German aristocracy. At 50 she still posed in the nude for various artists, but she is remembered less for her beauty of figure than for her eccentricities.

Her clothes were regarded as quite mad by even the batiked individuals about her, and the apex of her career as a designer was marked by her appearance in a hat trimmed with vegetables, the brim outlined with beer-bottle caps.

TODAY there are very few persons who have achieved genuine distinction living in the village. The more sincere artists and writers have long since become bored by the artificialities of Village life. The break-up of the old-time group, the majority of whom are now well-known, has been compared to the decline of the decadent movement in London in the '90s. The close of that literary movement was marked by the trial and subsequent death of Oscar Wilde as well as by the suicides of several minor figures and the death of the poet, Ernest Dowson, from drugs and dissipation. Still others, such as William Butler Yeats, left London to forge notable careers for themselves elsewhere.

In similar fashion the more sincere of the early Villagers deserted their old haunts, having gotten a start in attics and basement studios. This number includes Edna St. Vincent Millay, John Masefield, Hendrik Van Loon, Eugene O'Neill and many others who have since won, in a majority of instances, both fame and commercial success.

A NUMBER of former Villagers now live at Sunnyside, Long Island. Still others have homes in Connecticut and Westchester. Those who remained in New York have taken apartments in mid-town or even, in one or two cases, on Park Avenue.

Suicide is really not original any more and it should be given up, believes one of the Village's most hardened ancients, Arthur Caesar, lawyer, playwright, bon vivant and exponent of the theory that one gardenia in the button-hole is worth a sheaf of lillies under the crossed hands upon one's breast.

"To live as I have done is infinitely more romantic than to die at one's own hands," says Mr. Caesar, the same Caesar who so startled George Bernard Shaw on their first meeting, by turning out to be the author of "Napoleon's Barber," which Shaw had extravagantly praised, that G. B. S. is reported to have asked Caesar to "please go out and walk around the block until I get used to the idea."

"To grow up from a ragged urchin on Ludlow street to become a Broadway character, a successful playwright and boulevardier, is true romance," is Mr. Caesar's theory. He wouldn't, he says, give a nickel for "a guy who has to cut his own throat in order to create a ripple in the world."

The popularity of Caesar's view is attested by the increasing number of young poets, actors, decorators and playwrights who have graduated from the precarious ranks of the Village to success in the city's commercial marts.

Philip Moeller and Helen Westley and her daughter of the Theater Guild, Kathleen Kirkwood, whose Triangle Theater blooms in a Seventh Avenue cellar and who attained Broadway importance with her prosperous version of "Ten Nights In A Barroom," at Wallack's Theater; Frank Conroy, acting with Ethel Barrymore's company; Berkeley Tobey of Brentano's who has just sailed for Capri with the fifth Mrs. Tobey—all took their first steps in their various arts below Fourteenth Street.

Park avenue has taken its share, too, and one of the brightest luminaries in the smart night life of the east side is Don Dickerman, the energetic young Middle Westerner, who laid the foundations for his present chain of restaurants with the old original Pirates' Den in the Village, which he still owns and operates.

THE Blue Horse is also one of his establishments and he also has two fashionable supper clubs, Heigh Ho, which was the old Lido, and the Count Fair. Dickerman does the decorations for all his restaurants, and he still devotes his spare time to carving amusing toys which clutter up, in great profusion, the studio he shares with his beautiful blonde wife, Doris, above the Washington Square bookshop.

The Dickermans deny that their uptown affiliations constitute disloyalty to their native heath, but admit quite readily an intention to put their savings into a roomy house in the country which shall hold at least eight anticipated Dickermans, the small white rabbit which is constantly at their heels when they are home, and a large quota of dogs, cats, chickens and other important adjuncts of childhood in a true farm atmosphere.

Paris and Provincetown, Massachusetts, have drawn heavily on the Village. There is also a colony of ex-Villagers in Los Angeles, most of whom are writing for the movies or acting in pictures.

Even the outward appearance of the Village has changed in the past few years. It is being encroached upon on all sides by huge apartment houses. Many of the lovely old homes on the north side of Washington Square are being torn down to make way for more profitable structures. Old haunts have vanished and those that remain tend toward a self-conscious Bohemianism that is more than half put on for the benefit of tourists from the hinterland who "do" the Village.

"The Village isn't what it once was," say the last of the old-timers, who cling stubbornly to familiar hangouts, refusing to be driven out by the present depressing atmosphere or by the increasing exploitation by real estate agents.

CLEVELAND, Ohio.

CHARLES FRANCIS BRUSH had everything that the world could give him a little more than a year ago—wealth, prestige, high honors, a lifelong and passionate interest in various phases of scientific research that absorbed him.

But far more important than these material things was his son, Charles Francis Brush Jr. His son represented a living hope for the future. He saw him carrying on scientific research that might possibly prove as far reaching in its results as the earlier work of the elder Brush himself. It was generally conceded that at 35 the son showed most brilliant promise, that he was, in fact, close on the trail of significant discoveries.

Then a force interposed that reduced Brush's wealth and profound scientific knowledge to nothingness. His granddaughter, Jane, who was then 7 years old, contracted blood poisoning. Her condition rapidly became critical. A blood transfusion was necessary. Several friends of the family came forward to offer their blood, but it developed that only her father was of the correct type to permit a transfusion. He gave his blood.

WITHOUT avail, however, since the child died. Then, within a day or two, Brush Jr. himself began to develop symptoms of the poisoning. Every medical resource was employed. Nothing that money or power could do was spared. But within a week he was dead.

So closely had his hope and pride been allied with his son that it seemed to the father in those first days and weeks that everything had ceased to exist. It was the most devastating blow that he had ever received. In years, at least, he was old, and his family feared that he might lapse into a despairing apathy.

It was reasonable to expect that the memory of his sorrow might obscure every other interest that he had held. But in little more than a year he has worked out plans for a memorial to his son that is one of the most unusual philanthropic bequests ever made. Brush has lost a son, but he has expanded his interest to include the whole human race.

He has turned over to the Cleveland Trust Company a half-million dollars in sound securities, the income from which is to be used "for the betterment of the human stock." Brush believes that the world is rapidly becoming over populated to a danger point. He sees a rising tide of inferior humans, preserved through the new advancements of medicine. And he has given the half-million dollars as one means of checking this rising tide before it is too late. The latter phrase is Brush's own. The income from the fund will be employed to foster certain eugenic and sociological practices under the administration of a board of six members, to whom Brush has delegated entire authority. However startling this bequest may have seemed when it was announced a short time ago, it has logically come out of the environment which Brush created for his children in his great Euclid avenue home.

Born on a farm near Cleveland, his interest in science cropped out very early, and it has been the dominant influence in his life ever since.

"From early boyhood," he wrote in an article some years ago, "I was an omniverous reader of scientific literature. Such parts of astronomy, chemistry and physics as I could understand were a never-ending source of delight. I also constructed much crude apparatus—telescopes, microscopes and photographic appliances.

"In my early high school days I made, among other things, many pieces of electrical apparatus—static machines, Leyden jars, batteries, electromagnets, induction coils and small motors. But the electric arc as described in the textbooks, with its dazzling light and intense heat, was for a long time beyond my reach. I finally succeeded, however, in getting together enough batteries to make a small one—very small indeed. But it was the first I had seen, and filled me with unspeakable joy."

It was not many years afterward that Brush's patented application of the principle of the arc light was to dazzle the world and lay the foundation of the Brush fortune. The Brush Electrical Corporation, later merged with the General Electric Company, was formed and it was not long before the Brush arc light had spread to every important city of the globe.

BRUSH preceded Edison by several years and he is credited, in a history of the General Electric Company which is now being prepared, with giving the first impetus to the industry that has grown to such amazing proportions in the last 40 years.

Later he perfected and patented the type of storage battery that became the basis for all those manufactured today. But the basic patent rights to this expired long before the motor age and therefore Brush never realized any considerable sum from it. He estimates that if he still held those rights, and they had even five or six years to run, they would be worth from $50,000,000 to $60,000,000.

With increasing success came marriage and three children, Edna, the elder; Helene and Charles Francis. Now one of Cleveland's leading citizens, he built the imposing home on Euclid avenue in which he still lives. In the basement he constructed his laboratories.

THIRTY years ago he retired from active participation in the various businesses that had grown up about his inventions. He wanted to devote more of his time to pure science, to his family and to his rapidly growing art collection. These have been his three passions.

The Brush family for many years observed an interesting custom. Sunday night was always kept apart for the family. On that night they would all be together, sometimes with a few intimate friends, more often alone. These Sunday night gatherings gradually became a friendly forum for discussion of all manner of questions. Naturally, however, the debate often turned on some scientific problem. Not the least of these was the population problem. They all felt very keenly about it and had done considerable reading along sociological lines. Their views on this subject coincided more nearly than they did on any other.

The bequest which Brush made the other day seems quite natural in the light of these facts. It represents his contribution to the solution of a problem in which he and his son were vitally interested. The wording of the bequest best expresses the motive behind it.

"Whereas, my beloved son, Charles Francis Brush Jr., who died on May 29, 1927, was devoting his life to scientific research for the advancement of human knowledge; and,

"Whereas, in my opinion the most urgent problem confronting the world today is the rapid increase of population, which threatens to overcrowd the earth in the not distant future, which must certainly lead to grave economic disturbances, famines and wars, and threaten civilization itself; and,

"Whereas, beneficent and scientific research has contributed toward the prolongation of life and the preservation of the weak and the unfit, who, under former conditions, could not have survived nor added descendants to the race; and,

"Whereas, I believe that scientific knowledge cannot safely be used for these human objects, unless it be used at the same time to improve the quality and reasonably limit the numbers of those who are born into the world:

"NOW, therefore, out of my belief that such restrictions of the increase of population, and the betterment of the human stock are fundamental to the well-being of humanity, I give to the Cleveland Trust Company, trustee, for the benefit of mankind and as a memorial to my beloved son, Charles Francis Brush Jr., to be used for the purposes hereinafter described, the following property: securities in the amount of $500,000."

It was natural, too, that in selecting his administration board he should include several members of the Sunday night group that had so interested itself in this problem. He named his daughter, Edna, now Mrs. Roger B. Perkins, whose husband is a professor in the medical school of Western Reserve University; his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Charles F. Brush Jr., and Mrs. W. H. Weir, his grand-niece, whose husband is a gynecologist. Besides these members of his immediate family he appointed Dr. T. Wingate Todd, anatomist at Western Reserve; the Rev. Joel B. Hayden, prominent Presbyterian minister of Cleveland, and Jerome C. Fisher, Brush's attorney and a close friend of his son's.

The income from the half-million dollars shall be used by these six, according to the terms of the bequests, "to finance efforts contributing toward the betterment of the human stock, and toward the regulation of the increase of the population, to the end that children shall be begotten only under conditions which make possible a heritage of mental and physical health, and a favorable environment."

To Brush the problem is not one of the distant future but of the immediate present. He sees it as the greatest menace to our present civilization.

"IN MY own lifetime," he says, "the population of this country has increased five times. There are more than a million feeble-minded in this country today, to say nothing of the insane and the criminal population. War? Will war be the means of checking overpopulation? Why, I'm told that already the losses incurred in the late war have been more than made up. War—even modern warfare—couldn't keep up with it."

Brush holds no brief for any particular race of people, although he concedes that there may be superior races, just as there are superior breeds of cattle. He would like to see each race make the contribution of its superior, not inferior, stock.

It is as a scientist and a business man—and he has always combined with his inventive genius a keen business sense—that he approaches the entire problem. He believes that the intangible human values on which success or failure in any undertaking of this type depends can be directed rationally and logically. As a scientist he is not too optimistic for the future, neither is he pessimistic.

"Perhaps you've read H. G. Wells' 'Men Like Gods,'" he says. "Wells is a socialist, of course. Socialism won't work, and we wouldn't want it if it would. But the important thing in that book to me is the fact that in Wells' ideal world the population is kept down to 250,000,000 people, so that everyone could have plenty of everything."

This rational scientist would like to see birth control methods made scientifically exact and made so generally available that the families of the poor as well as the rich may be limited. He hopes that through a campaign of propaganda the wealthy can be persuaded to have larger families. And not only the wealthy but those of moderate incomes who can afford to rear well-educated children. He would also like to see sterilization of the feeble-minded made as effective in every state as it is in California and Virginia. He has no particular prejudice as between heredity and environment but holds that both are factors in the development of healthy and intelligent human beings. He points with pride to the opinion of Justice Holmes of the Supreme Court, upholding the Virginia sterilization law and containing the memorable sentence: "Three generations of feeble-minded are enough."

He believes that his bequest is the first step toward securing many of these things. It is his hope that other philanthropists will add to the fund, and already an inquiry has been made by a wealthy man, whose name cannot yet be disclosed, who proposes to leave a portion of his fortune to add to the Brush fund.

HUNDREDS of letters have come to Brush since announcement of the bequest. Almost without exception they are commendatory. Several requests for aid have already come from organizations engaged in work along lines which the bequest was intended to foster. Some of the income may go toward establishment of free birth control clinics, such as already exist in a half-dozen large American cities. President Clarence C. Little, of the University of Michigan, Albert Edward Wiggam, noted scientist and author, and many others have written letters praising Brush in the highest terms for his bequest.

The board has not yet had a meeting. Dr. Todd is at present in England, conferring with Sir William Beveridge and Leonard Darwin, son of the great natural scientist. Both are prominent eugenists. The board will have its first meeting in September.

Many of his theories and beliefs Brush has derived from the book, "Standing Room Only," by Prof. Edward Allsworth Ross of the University of Wisconsin. He buys copies in lots of a dozen and passes them out to his friends and acquaintances. And surely if the picture presented in this book be accepted at its face value, Brush's alarm is not exaggerated. Basing his theory on statistics from the past, Ross foresees a world in which there will be only room to stand.

Meanwhile, having taken what he believes to be an intelligent step toward the solution of a problem that long has worried him, Brush, at 79, goes ahead with his research in pure science. This is concerned chiefly with higher mathematics and physics. He has interested himself of late years in the Einstein theory of relativity, from which he dissents. He takes no vacation in the ordinary sense of the word. His laboratory is, he says, the coolest and most comfortable spot he knows of, winter or summer, and there, with the exception of the hour or two each day he concedes to his still numerous business interests, he may almost always be found.

TALES of REAL DOGS

Duke, "The Canine Station Agent."

HE LIVES in Azalia, Michigan. His name is Duke. He is half Airedale, half police dog. His master is Harry L. Strong, the local station agent. By the way, Strong has turned his back on a big salary, more than once, offered him to show Duke in vaudeville. So he and the dog are still in the amateur class.

Strong lives a lonely life at the wayside station, and three years ago he bought a crossbreed puppy and brought him to live there with him. Like many another lonely man, Strong began to talk to the bright young dog as if Duke were human. Also, idly, he began to teach Duke certain simple details of his job and of his daily life.

To Strong's amazement, the dog not only picked up these teachings with lightning rapidity and entire ease, but also did some independent studying on his own account. For instance:

The station's main door has a spring lock. One day Strong went out for a walk with Duke, shutting this door behind him and carelessly leaving his keys on the desk. On his return he could not get in. He did not want to break down the door. He could open only one of the windows—and that was too high and too small for him to climb through.

He lifted Duke in through the window and called to him: "Get my keys!" It was an order the dog understood. Often he had been taught to fetch various objects by name, the keys among them. But this time he did not obey.

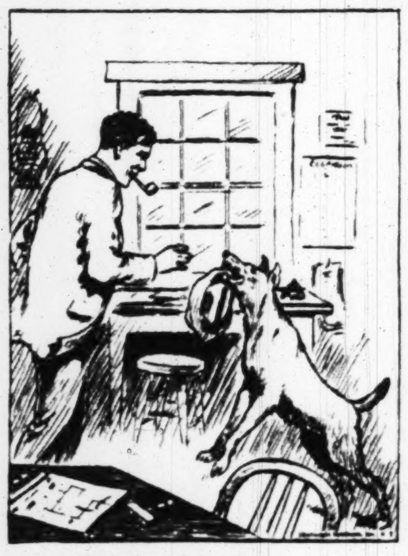
Instead, a second or so later, Strong heard him fumbling at the lock. Then the door swung open. With his paw Duke had shoved back the catch of the spring lock, as so often he had watched his owner do.

STRONG investigated. There were three doors to the station. He found that Duke could open any one of them at will, even taking the knob of one door between his teeth and turning it. Hundreds of times the dog had seen Strong do such things, and by observation and experiment he had mastered the trick of it.

To the average dog a closed door is an utter mystery. It baffles all his brain power. I have known of dogs that learned to slap a latch in such a way as to release it and make the door swing open, and several cats have mastered this. Also, Sunnybank Gray Dawn has learned to work at the half-doors of our front hall until he gets them open. But this does not involve turning a knob nor a spring lock catch. To me, this stunt of Duke's is unique.

Strong got his meals at a house in the neighborhood, and Duke had his own dinner when Strong dined. Thus, around dinner time, the dog used to become restless. But often Strong was delayed in leaving the station, because this was the time of day when most telegrams must be dispatched or relayed, and the operator could not leave the station until "Goodnight" was ticked off on the wire.

The signal, "Goodnight," meant that he and Duke could shut the station and go to dinner. To Strong's surprise, one evening, just as the signal had been clicked, Duke jumped up and snatched his master's hat from its nail and ran over to him with it, then led the way over to the door.



Duke snatched his master's hat.

It seemed impossible that the dog had learned to discern the Morse code clicks which spelled "Goodnight," and had learned to associate them with Strong's time to start for dinner. Strong experimented, evening after evening, thenceforth. He proved that Duke really understood what that final clicking meant, and that he could distinguish those particular dots and dashes from all others coming over the wire day and night.

Naturally, the dog did not learn to read Morse telegraphy. But he did learn to associate that one signal with his dinnertime and to tell it apart from any other. Long he had been listening and he had been drawing his own conclusions. When he found he was right, he never again failed to jump up when he heard it, and bring Strong's hat to him.

TO AMUSE some children who had bought tickets at the station, Strong let Duke press down the lever which stamped these tickets. The fame of this simple exploit spread fast. After that, nearly every passenger insisted on the dog's stamping the tickets purchased and Duke was vastly proud of the praise evoked thereby.

Still another surprise was in store for Strong when, once, he started toward the nearby semaphore to set it for an approaching freight train. Duke darted ahead of him and leaped up and seized the semaphore chain. Again he was putting his observation into practice. Since then, that is another of his regular stunts.

Meantime, Strong has been teaching him the meaning of many words. Never did the dog forget the meaning, after having learned it thoroughly. He has proved, past all doubt, his full understanding of these words. Says the Springfield (Ohio) Sun:

"The dog, by actual count, shows he understands more than 1000 words. He goes after and finds objects that are described to him. He flags slow trains with a red flag held in his mouth, and during his spare time he often acts as 'red cap' by carrying light luggage for passengers.

"Duke's mother was an Airedale and his father a German police dog. Both are on farms nearby. Neither they nor any of Duke's brothers and sisters show any unusual intelligence. Large sums of money have been refused by Mr. Strong for his canine helper."

TO ME the most interesting part part of the foregoing extract is the lack of special sense shown by Duke's relatives. He is a freak; not merely a result of certain crossbreeding. His brain is all his own. It is not inherited. Or possibly the owners of the rest of the litter did not use Strong's patience and wisdom in developing their dogs' brains.

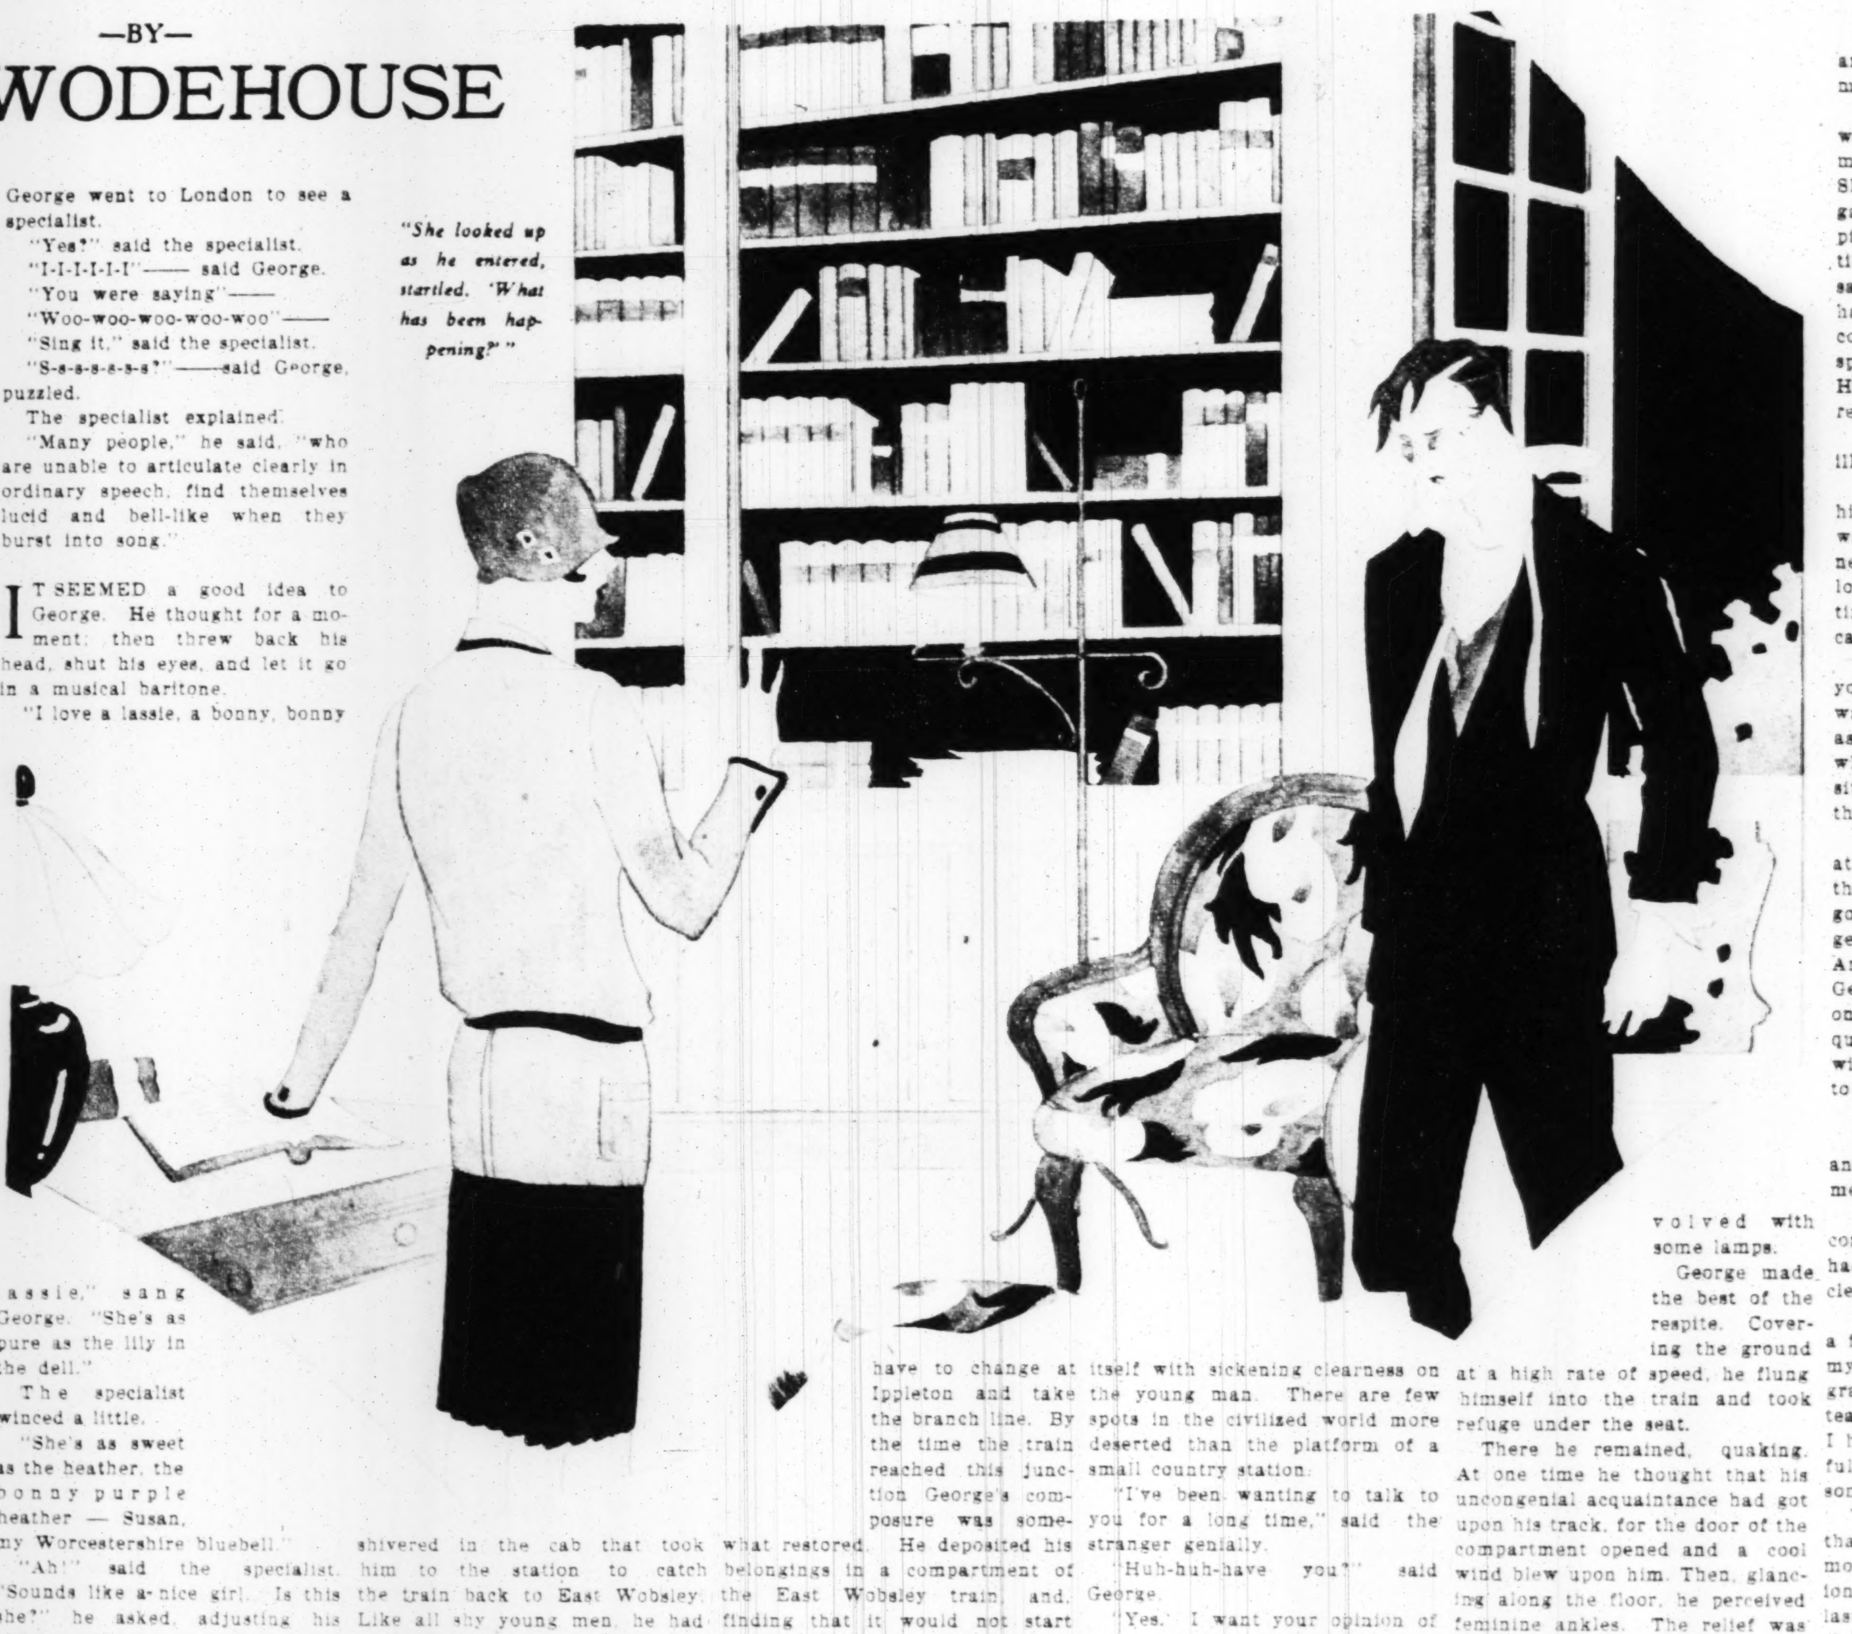
The TRUTH ABOUT GEORGE

—BY—

P. G. WODEHOUSE



"She looked up as he entered, startled. 'What has been happening?'"

TWO men were sitting in the bar-parlor of the Angler's Rest as I entered it; and one of them was telling the other a story. I could hear an occasional "Biggest I ever saw in my life!" and "Fully as large as that!" but, in such a place, it was not difficult to imagine the rest; and, when the second man, catching my eye, winked at me with a sort of humorous misery, I smiled back at him.

The action had the effect of establishing a bond between us; and, when the story teller finished his tale and left, he came over to my table.

"Dreadful liars, some men are," he said genially.

"Fishermen," I suggested, "are traditionally careless of the truth."

"He wasn't a fisherman," said my companion. "That was our local doctor. Besides"—he tapped me on the knee—"you must not fall into the popular error about fishermen. Tradition has maligned them. I am a fisherman myself, and I have never told a lie in my life."

I could well believe it. The thing that struck me first about him was the extraordinary candor of his eyes. They were large and round and honest. I would have bought oil stock from him without a tremor.

The door opened, and a small man, with rimless pince-nez and an anxious expression, shot in like a rabbit and had consumed a ginger beer almost before we knew he was there. Having thus refreshed himself, he stood looking at us, seemingly ill at ease.

"N-n-n-n-n-n"—— he said.

"N-n-n-n-n-n-ice d-d-d-d"——

His nerve appeared to fail him, and he vanished as abruptly as he had come.

"I think he was leading up to telling us it was a nice day," hazarded my companion.

"It must be very embarrassing," I said, "for a man with such a painful impediment in his speech to open conversation with strangers."

"Probably trying to cure himself. Like my nephew, George. Have I ever told you about him?"

I reminded him that we had only just met, and that this was the first time I had learned that he had a nephew.

"Young George Mulliner. My name is Mulliner. I will tell you about George's case—in many ways a rather remarkable one."

GEORGE (said Mr. Mulliner) was as nice a fellow as you would wish to meet, but, from childhood up, he had been cursed with a terrible stammer. If he had had to earn his living, he would have found this affliction a great handicap, but his father had left him a comfortable income; and George passed his days in the usual country sports and his evenings in doing cross-word puzzles. By the time he was 30 he knew more about Eli, the prophet; Ra, the sun god, and the bird, Emu, than anybody else in the county, except Susan Blake, the vicar's daughter, who had also taken up the solving of cross-word puzzles and was the first girl in Worcestershire to find out the meaning of "stearin" and "crepuscular."

It was his association with Miss Blake that turned George's thoughts to a serious endeavor to cure himself of his stammer. Naturally, with this hobby in common, the young people saw a great deal of each other; for George was always looking in at the vicarage to ask her if she knew a word of seven letters meaning "appertaining to the profession of plumbing," and Susan was just as constant a caller at George's cottage—being frequently stumped, as girls will be, by words of eight letters signifying "largely used in the manufacture of poppet valves." The consequence was that one evening, after she had helped him out of a tight place with the word "disestablishmentarianism," the boy realized that she was all the world to him.

And yet, every time he tried to tell her so, he could get no farther than a sibilant gurgle.

Something had to be done, and George went to London to see a specialist.

"Yes?" said the specialist.

"I-I-I-I-I-I"—— said George.

"You were saying"——

"Woo-woo-woo-woo-woo"——

"Sing it," said the specialist.

"S-s-s-s-s-s-s?"——said George, puzzled.

The specialist explained.

"Many people," he said, "who are unable to articulate clearly in ordinary speech, find themselves lucid and bell-like when they burst into song."

IT SEEMED a good idea to George. He thought for a moment; then threw back his head, shut his eyes, and let it go in a musical baritone.

"I love a lassie, a bonny, bonny lassie," sang George. "She's as pure as the lily in the dell."

The specialist winced a little.

"She's as sweet as the heather, the bonny purple heather — Susan, my Worcestershire bluebell."

"Ah!" said the specialist. "Sounds like a nice girl. Is this she?" he asked, adjusting his glasses and peering at the photograph George had extracted from the interior of the left side of his vest.

George nodded and drew in breath.

"Yes, sir," he caroled, "that's my baby. No, sir, don't mean maybe. Yes, sir, that's my baby now. And, by the way, by the way, when I meet that preacher, I shall say—'Yes, sir, that's my' "—

"Quite," said the specialist hurriedly. He had a sensitive ear.

"If you knew Susie like I know Susie," George was beginning, but the other stopped him.

"Quite. Exactly. I shouldn't wonder. And now," said the specialist, "what precisely is the trouble? No," he added, hastily, as George inflated his lungs, "don't sing it. Write the particulars on this piece of paper."

George did so.

"H'm!" said the specialist, examining the screed. "You wish to woo this girl, but, every time you attempt it, your vocal chords fail."

George nodded.

"A not unusual case. I have had to deal with this sort of thing before. The effect of love on the vocal cords of even a normally eloquent subject is frequently deleterious. There is only one cure."

"W-w-w-w-w—?" asked George.

"I WILL tell you. Stammering," proceeded the specialist, "is mainly mental and is caused by shyness, which is caused by the inferiority complex, which, in its turn, is caused by suppressed desires or introverted inhibitions or something. The advice I give to all young men who come in here behaving like soda-water siphons is to make a point of speaking to at least three perfect strangers every day. Engage these strangers in conversation, no matter how priceless a chump you may feel, and, before many weeks are out you will find that the little daily dose has had its effect. Shyness will wear off and with it the stammer."

And, having requested the young man—in a voice of the clearest timbre, free from all trace of impediment—to hand over a fee of five guineas, the specialist sent George out into the world.

The more George thought about the advice he had been given, the less he liked it. He shivered in the cab that took him to the station to catch the train back to East Wobsley. Like all shy young men, he had never looked upon himself as shy—preferring to attribute his distaste for the society of his fellows to some subtle rareness of soul. But now that the thing had been put squarely up to him, he was compelled to realize that he was a perfect rabbit. The thought of accosting perfect strangers and forcing his conversation upon them sickened him.

But no Mulliner has ever shirked an unpleasant duty. As he reached the platform and strode along it to the train, his eyes shone with an almost fanatical light of determination, and he intended, before his journey was over, to conduct three heart-to-heart chats, if he had to sing every bar of them.

THE compartment into which he made his way was empty at the moment, but, just before the train started a large, fierce-looking man got in. George would have preferred somebody a little less formidable for his first subject, but he braced himself and bent forward. And, as he did so, the man spoke.

"The wur-wur-wur-wur-weather," he said, "sus-sus-seems to be ter-ter-taking a tur-tur-turn for the ber-ber-better, der-doesn't it?"

George sank back as if he had been hit between the eyes. The train had moved out of the dimness of the station by now, and the sun was shining brightly on the speaker, illuminating his knobbly shoulders, his craggy jaw and, above all, the shockingly choleric look in his eyes. To reply "Y-y-y-y-y-y-y-yes" to such a man would obviously be madness.

But to abstain from speech did not seem to be much better. George's silence appeared to arouse this man's worst passions.

"I uk-uk-asked you a sus-sus-civil quk-quk-puk," he said, irascibly. "Are you d-d-d-deaf?"

All we Mulliners have been noted for our presence of mind. To open his mouth, point to his tonsils, and utter a strangled gurgle was, with George, the work of a moment.

The tension relaxed. The man's annoyance abated.

"D-d-d-dumb?" he said, commiseratingly. "I beg your p-p-p-p-pup."

He buried himself in his paper, and George sank back in his corner.

To get to East Wobsley you have to change at Ippleton and take the branch line. By the time the train reached this junction George's composure was somewhat restored. He deposited his belongings in a compartment of the East Wobsley train, and, finding that it would not start for some 10 minutes, decided to pass the time by strolling up and down.

It was a lovely afternoon. George began to feel so refreshed that he regretted that there was no one whom he could engage in talk.

It was at this moment that the distinguished-looking stranger entered the platform.

The newcomer was a man of imposing physique, simply dressed in pajamas, brown boots and a mackintosh. In his hand he carried a top hat, and into this he was dipping his fingers, taking them out and then waving them in a curious manner to right and left. He nodded so affably to George that the latter, though a little surprised at the other's costume, decided to speak. After all, he reflected, clothes do not make the man, and, judging from the other's smile, a warm heart appeared to beat beneath that orange and mauve striped pajama jacket.

"N-n-n-n-nice weather," he said.

"Glad you like it," said the stranger. "I ordered it specially."

George was a little puzzled by this remark, but he persevered.

"M-might I ask wur-wur-what you are dud-doing?"

"Doing?"

"With that hur-hur-hur-hur-hat?"

"Oh, with this hat? I see what you mean. Just scattering largesse to the multitude," replied the stranger.

"Deuce of a bore, but it's expected of a man in my position. The fact is," he said, linking his arm in George's, "I'm the Emperor of Abyssinia. That's my palace over there," he said, pointing through the trees. "Don't let it go any farther. It's not supposed to be generally known."

IT WAS with a rather sickly smile that George now endeavored to withdraw his arm, but the other would have none of this aloofness. He seemed to be in complete agreement with Shakspeare's dictum that a friend, when found, should be grappled to you with hooks of steel. He held George in a vise-like grip and drew him into a recess of the platform.

"We are alone at last," he said.

This fact had already impressed itself with sickening clearness on the young man. There are few spots in the civilized world more deserted than the platform of a small country station.

"I've been wanting to talk to you for a long time," said the stranger genially.

"Huh-huh-have you?" said George.

"Yes. I want your opinion of human sacrifices."

George said he didn't like them.

"Why not?" asked the other, surprised.

George said it was hard to explain. He just didn't.

"Well, I think you're wrong," said the Emperor. "I know there's a school of thought that holds your views, but I disapprove of it. I hate all this modern advanced thought. Human sacrifices have always been good enough for the Emperors of Abyssinia, and they're good enough for me. Kindly step in here, if you please."

HE INDICATED the lamp-and-mop room, at which they had arrived. It was a dark and sinister apartment smelling strongly of oil and porters, and was probably the last place on earth in which George would have wished to be closeted with a man of such peculiar views. He shrank back.

"You go in first," he said.

"No larks," said the other suspiciously.

"L-l-l-l-larks?"

"Yes. No pushing a fellow in and locking the door and squirting water at him through the window. I've had that happen to me before."

"Sus-certainly not."

"Right!" said the Emperor. "You're a gentleman and I'm a gentleman. Both gentlemen. Have you a knife, by the way? We shall need a knife."

"No. No knife."

"Ah, well," said the Emperor, "then we'll have to look about for something else. We shall manage somehow."

And, with the debonair manner that so became him, he scattered another handful of largesse and walked into the lamp room.

It was not the fact that he had given his word as a gentleman that kept George from locking the door. There is probably no family on earth more nicely scrupulous as regards keeping its promises than the Mulliners, but I am compelled to admit that, had George been able to find the key, he would have locked the door without hesitation. Not being able to find the key, he had to be satisfied with banging it. This done, he leaped back and raced down the platform. A confused noise within seemed to indicate that the Emperor had become involved with some lamps.

George made the best of the respite. Covering the ground at a high rate of speed, he flung himself into the train and took refuge under the seat.

There he remained, quaking. At one time he thought that his uncongenial acquaintance had got upon his track, for the door of the compartment opened and a cool wind blew upon him. Then, glancing along the floor, he perceived feminine ankles. The relief was enormous.

A voice spoke.

"Porter!"

"Yes, ma'am?"

"What was all that disturbance as I came into the station?"

"Patient escaped from the asylum, ma'am."

"Good gracious!"

The voice would undoubtedly have spoken further, but, at this moment, the train began to move. There came the sound of a body descending upon a cushioned seat and the rustling of a paper. The train gathered speed.

George had never before traveled under the seat of a railway carriage; and, though he belonged to the younger generation, which is supposed to be so avid of new experiences, he had no desire to do so now. He decided to emerge, and, if possible, to emerge with the minimum of ostentation. Little as he knew of women, he was aware that they are apt to be startled by the sight of men crawling out from under the seats of compartments. He began by poking out his head and surveying the terrain.

ALL was well. The woman, in her seat across the way, was engrossed in her paper. George extricated himself from his hiding place and, with a twist that would have been impossible to a man not in the habit of doing Swedish exercises before breakfast, heaved himself into the corner seat. The woman continued to read her paper.

The events of the past quarter of an hour had tended rather to drive from George's mind the mission he had undertaken on leaving the specialist's office. But now, having leisure for reflection, he realized that, if he meant to complete his first day of the cure, he was allowing himself to run sadly behind schedule. Speak to three strangers, the specialist had told him, and he had spoken to only one. True, this one had been a pretty considerable stranger, and a less conscientious young man than George Mulliner might have considered himself justified in chalking him up on the scoreboard as one and a half, or even two. But George had the dogged, honest Mulliner streak in him, and he refused to quibble.

"Ah-h'rm!" said George.

And he smiled a winning smi and waited for his companion make the next move.

The move his companion ma was in an upward direction, a measured from six to eight inche She dropped her paper and garded George with horror. O pictures her a little in the p tion of Robinson Crusoe when saw the footprint in the sand. had been convinced that she w completely alone, and lo! out space a voice had spoken to h Her face worked, but she made remark.

George was also feeling a lit ill at ease.

Then a happy thought stru him. He had just glanced at watch and found the hour to nearly 4:30. Women, he kne loved a cup of tea at about time, and there was in his case a full thermos flask.

"Pardon me, but I wonde you would care for a cup of te was what he wanted to say, as so often happened with when in the presence of the opp site sex, he could get no furth than a sort of sizzling sound.

The woman continued to sta at him. Her eyes were now ab the size of regulation standa golf balls, and her breathing su gested the last stages of asthm And it was at this point George, struggling for speech, one of those inspirations that fre quently came to Mulliners. Sa with music—that was the thi to do.

He delayed no longer.

"Tea for two and two for and me for you and you me"——

He was shocked to observe h companion turning Nile-green. had decided to make his meaning clearer.

"I have a nice thermos. I have a full thermos. Won't you share my thermos, too? When skies are gray and you feel you are blue tea sends the sun smiling through I have a nice thermos. I have full thermos. May I pour some for you?"

You will agree with me, I think that no invitation could have be more happily put, but his compa ion was not responsive. With last agonized look at him, closed her eyes and sank back her seat. GEORGE sat back in his her brooding. Rack brain as he might, he could think of no topic that could guaranteed to interest, elevate amuse. He looked out of the wi dow with a sign.

The train was now approachi the dear old familiar East Wob ley country. A wave of sentime poured over George as he thoug of Susan, and he reached for bag of buns he had bought at pleton. Sentiment always him hungry.

He took his thermos out of suitcase, and, unscrewing the poured himself out a cup of Then, placing the thermos on seat, he drank.

George was half-incli to renew his offer of tea, but only tune he could remember "Hard-Hearted Hannah, the Va from Savannah," and it was d cult to find suitable words to He ate his bun and gazed out the familiar scenery.

Now, as you approach Wobsley the train, I must tion, has to pass over switches; and so violent is sudden jerking that strong have been known to spill beer. George, forgetting this his preoccupation, had placed thermos only a few inches f the edge of the seat. The res was that, as the train reached first switch, the flask leaped a live thing, dived to the floor exploded.

Even George was distinctly set by the sharpness of the port.

It is a curious thing that, in spite of the railway companies' sporting willingness to let their patrons have a tug at the extremely moderate price of five pounds a go, very few people have ever either pulled a communication cord or seen one pulled. There is, thus, a widespread ignorance as to what precisely happens on such occasions.

The procedure, George tells me, is as follows: First, there comes a grinding noise, as the train stops. And, finally, from every point of the compass, a seething mob of interested onlookers begin to appear.

It was about a mile and a half from East Wobsley that the affair had taken place, and, as far as the eye could reach, the countryside was totally devoid of humanity. A moment before, nothing had been visible but smiling cornfields and broad pasture lands; but now, from east, west, north and south, running figures began to appear. We must remember that George, at the time, was in a somewhat overwrought frame of mind, and his statements should therefore be accepted with caution; but he tells me that out of the middle of a single empty meadow, entirely devoid of cover, no fewer than 27 distinct rustics suddenly appeared, having undoubtedly shot up through the ground.

Moreover, the train was disgorging passengers from every door. It was a sort of mob scene, George says, like guest night at the Royal Automobile Club. But, as I say, we must remember that he was overwrought.

All we Mulliners have been athletes, and George, when at the university had been noted for his speed of foot. He ran now as he had never run before.

And he had need to, for, after the first instant of surprise, the mob was pouring across country after him; and dimly, as he ran, he could hear voices in the throng

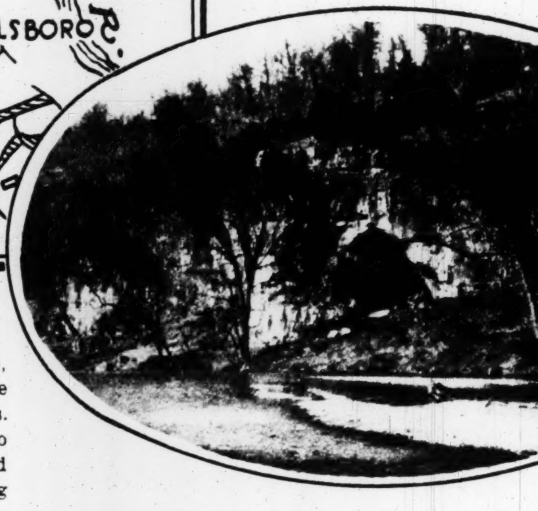
These deeply rutted roads nearly all go down hollows to some ancient lead or iron furnace. Any way you turn there is a cavern where the mouth is all but obscured by undergrowth, and the ambitious explorer might find in most any of them discarded whisky stills aplenty—or tracks of bears, traces of pottery making by Indians who once lived there. The new State park in Franklin County, for all one knows, may be a veritable treasure house. History has created a strangely favorable background. It is a country where "anything is rather more than likely" to have happened.

IN THE first place, Schoolcraft, the historian, tells about De Soto in his search for the land of the Cayas, a rich province presumably along the Meramec River. Prof. Broadhead's geological survey relates that Le Seur made his way to this same territory and found traces of gold and silver. Bancroft reports that De Lochon had uncovered a silver treasure along the Meramec in 1719. Charlevoix confirms this report to Louis XV. Then, in 1721, there was Antonio, the Spanish pirate. He was then a galley slave and came in bondage. The West Indies Company brought him because he had what was described as "the scent for gold." He had located numerous gold mines in Old Mexico.

Antonio was captured by the French off Pensacola and put to work under the close scrutiny of La Renaudiere, one of the King's miners. But Antonio found no gold while working for the French. He did find, however, a country strangely suitable to his kind. He found caves where pirates could hide and always be safe. The legend goes that when Antonio was returned to Pensacola he broke from the leash and again joined his mates in bold and profitable robbery on the high seas.



One of the caves on the Meramec.

Now Antonio was free and he was accompanied by numerous other Spanish pirates and men of the seas. They came up the Meramec in small rowboats.

TWENTY years the French mined in Franklin and Washington counties under a concession from Louis XV. Many mining companies were promoted under this concession by John Law, a super rogue. He told the French people there were immense deposits of gold and silver along the Meramec and he would pay them large dividends. The boom netted him millions. Renault and La Motte were sent out by Law and his several companies, but they found only lead and iron. Louis XV is said to have been a silent partner of John Law and profited nicely from the hoax.

MEANWHILE Antonio's band of pirates, who came and went up and down the Meramec, is said to have grown larger and bolder. The buccaneers came to friendly terms with these French miners who were working the concessions. And no doubt Senor Antonio continued to visit Franklin County as long as he lived, and brought other and younger Spanish pirates with him.

In 1848 a Frenchman died who had been a miner on one of these concessions. He was then an old man, and on his death bed he told that he had been a member of a band of French miners who had attacked some Spaniards out on the Meramec, near the Spanish grant—now in the Franklin County State park—had seized much gold and precious jewels from these Spaniards, and, after making off with all they could carry, buried the remainder in a cavern "beside the waters." This was presumed to be a room in a cave along the Meramec. Before they went away the Frenchmen sealed up this cavern and marked the place with a series of crosses and signs on trees and bluffs near by.

AND now we come to the present and our investigation will take us along a well-worn road leading to an old man who sits alone in a log cabin of two rooms and looks at the setting sun. He is a mild-mannered old man, with fading blue eyes, who puffs peacefully at his pipe and dreams when he may come into his own. This is James Henry Woodruff, who has spent 50 years searching for this buried Spanish treasure.

Now, he says, he knows where it is. The haze surrounding some of the early adventurers who came and went their way, the wealth they derived from the mines and the riches they left buried—those are the things the old man ponders over.

Woodruff is 73 years old. For half a century he has lived along the river, close to this buried treasure, which he says he knows exists, and which he has recently—by a process of his own—positively located.

"I have been a miner all my life," he told the writer. "Have drifted about a heap. Also been a tie hacker and a tie rafter. Went down this river on many a tie raft. Some job, too. That's how I found the cave. Hunting and fishing and rafting ties down the river. I found an old map. Yes, I've got it hidden away. Everybody here in these hills has heard about this buried treasure and about the old miners who used to hide their money in caves. I found out how to use this map, and that's how I located this treasure. I can find it whenever I get ready to open the cave where it is buried."

James Henry Woodruff.

That is about all the old man will tell you. He lives out there all alone in his cabin, and he has experienced many hardships, but he doesn't give you a hint where to locate this cave. Those who know him well say that Woodruff often goes out into the hills alone and stands there until the sun goes down. Then he starts off in the direction in which the sun has set, paces off so many steps, which guides him to a certain spot. For years he has been following the guidance of the sun, and it is presumed the old map tells him this is the way to find the cave. Old maps are sometimes like that.

Woodruff knows there are many legal difficulties between him and this treasure he tells of, if it is there. One is that the State of Missouri owns the land. The next is that the Meramec is a Government stream and nothing can be done to divert its course or obstruct its flow. A huge charge of dynamite might do that.

for the sitting high jump is, but she undoubtedly lowered it; and, if George had been a member of the Olympic Games Selection Committee, he would have signed this woman up immediately.

It is a curious thing that, in spite of the railway companies' sporting willingness to let their patrons have a tug, at the extremely moderate price of five pounds a go, very few people have ever either pulled a communication cord or seen one pulled. There is, thus, a widespread ignorance as to what precisely happens on such occasions.

The procedure, George tells me, is as follows: First, there comes a grinding noise, as the train stops. And, finally, from every point of the compass, a seething mob of interested onlookers begin to appear.

IT was about a mile and a half from East Wobsley that the affair had taken place, and, as far as the eye could reach, the countryside was totally devoid of humanity. A moment before, nothing had been visible but smiling cornfields and broad pasture lands; but now, from east, west, north and south, running figures began to appear. We must remember that George, at the time, was in a somewhat overwrought frame of mind, and his statements should therefore be accepted with caution; but he tells me that out of the middle of a single empty meadow, entirely devoid of cover, no fewer than 27 distinct rustics suddenly appeared, having undoubtedly shot up through the ground.

Moreover, the train was disgorging passengers from every door. It was a sort of mob scene, George says, like guest night at the Royal Automobile Club. But, as I say, we must remember that he was overwrought.

All we Mulliners have been athletes, and George, when at the university, had been noted for his speed of foot. He ran now as he had never run before.

And he had need to, for, after the first instant of surprise, the mob was pouring across country after him; and dimly, as he ran, he could hear voices in the throng informally discussing the advisability of lynching him. Moreover, the field through which he was running, a moment before a bare expanse of green, was now black with figures, headed by a man who carried a pitchfork. George swerved sharply to the right, casting a swift glance over his shoulder at his pursuers. He disliked them all, but especially the man with the pitchfork.

It is impossible for one who was not an eyewitness to say how long the chase continued and how much ground was covered by the interested parties. I know the East Wobsley country well, and I have checked George's statements; and, if it is true that he traveled east as far as Little-Wigmarsh-in-the-Dell, and as far west as Higgleford-cum-Wortlebury-beneath-the-Hill, he must undoubtedly have done a lot of running.

But a point not to be forgotten is that, to a man not in a condition to observe closely, the village of Higgleford-cum-Wortlebury-beneath-the-Hill might easily not have been Higgleford-cum-Wortlebury-beneath-the-Hill at all, but another hamlet that closely resembles it. I need scarcely say that I allude to Lesser-Snodsbury-in-the-Vale.

Let us assume, therefore, that George, having touched Little-Wigmarsh-in-the-Dell, shot off at a tangent and reached Lesser-Snodsbury-in-the-Vale. This would be a considerable run. And, as he remembers flitting past the Dog and Duck at Pondlebury Parva, and splashing through Brook Wipple at the point where it joins River Wopple, we can safely assume that, wherever else he went, he got plenty of exercise.

BUT the pleasantest of functions must end, and, just as the setting sun was gilding the spire of the ivy-covered church of St. Barnabas, a damp and bedraggled figure might have been observed crawling painfully along the High street of East Wobsley in the direction of the cozy little cottage known to its builder as Chatsworth and to the village tradesmen as Mulliner's.

It was George, home from the hunting field.

Slowly, George Mulliner made his way to the familiar door, and, passing through it, flung himself into his favorite chair. A slim, fair girl, attired in tweeds, was leaning over the desk on which he kept his Dictionary of English Synonyms.

She looked up as he entered, startled.

"Why, Mr. Mulliner!" she exclaimed. "What has been happening? Your clothes are torn, rent, ragged, tattered, and your hair is all disheveled, untrimmed, hanging loose or negligently, at loose ends!"

She gave him a glass of water. George smiled a wan smile.

"You are right," he said. "And, what is more, I am suffering from extreme fatigue, weariness, lassitude, exhaustion, prostration and languor."

The girl gazed at him, a divine pity in her soft eyes.

"I am so sorry," she murmured. "So very sorry, grieved, distressed, afflicted, pained, mortified, dejected and upset."

George took her hand. Her sweet sympathy had effected the cure he had been seeking so long. Coming on top of the violent emotions through which he had been passing all day, it seemed to work on him like some healing spell. Suddenly, in a flash, he realized that he was no longer a stammerer. Had he wished at that moment to say "Peter Piper picked a peck of pickled peppers," he could have done it.

But he had better things to say than that.

"MISS BLAKE — Susan — Susie." His voice rang out clear and unimpeded. It seemed to him incredible that he had ever stammered at this girl like an overheated steam radiator. "It cannot have escaped your notice that I have long entertained towards you sentiments warmer and deeper than those of ordinary friendship. It is love, Susan, that has been animating my bosom. Love, first a tiny seed, has burgeoned in my heart till, blazing into flame, it has swept away my diffidence, my doubt, my fears and my foreboding, and now, like the topmost topaz of some ancient tower, it cries to all the world in a voice of thunder: 'You are mine! My mate! Predestined to me since Time first began!' As the star guides the mariner when, battered by boiling billows, he hies him home to the haven of hope and happiness, so do you gleam upon me along life's rough road and seem to say, 'Have courage, George, I am here!' Susan, I am not an eloquent man—I cannot speak fluently as I could wish—but these simple words you have just heard come from the heart. Susan, I love you. Will you be my wife, spouse, consort, partner, or better half?"

"Oh, George!" said Susan. "Yes, yea, ay, aye! Decidedly, unquestionably, indubitably, incontrovertibly, and past all dispute!"

He folded her in his arms. And as he did so there came from the street the sound of feet and voices. George leaped to the window. Rounding the corner, just by the Cow and Wheelbarrow, was the man with the pitchfork, and behind him followed a vast crowd.

"MY darling," said George, "for purely personal and private reasons, into which I need not enter, I must now leave you. Will you join me later?"

"I will follow you to the ends of the earth," replied Susan, passionately.

"It will not be necessary," said George. "I am only going down to the cellar. I shall spend the next half-hour there. If anybody calls and asks for me, perhaps you would not mind telling them I am out."

"I will, I will," said Susan. "And, George, by the way, what I really came here for was to ask you if you knew a hyphenated word of nine letters, ending in k and signifying an implement employed in the pursuit of agriculture."

"Pitchfork, sweetheart," said George. "But you may take it from me, as one who knows, that agriculture isn't the only thing it is used in pursuit of."

And since that day (concluded Mr. Mulliner) George, believe me or believe me not, has not had the slightest trace of an impediment in his speech. He is now the chosen orator at all political rallies for miles around; and so offensively self-confident has his manner become that only last Friday he had his eye blacked by a man named Stubbs. It just shows you, doesn't it?

Malmgren's coat. Without a full understanding of the circumstances, it is not within the province of anybody to heap censure on men struggling for their lives on the ice floes, but the contrast between the treatment of Malmgren by his companions and that of Rice by the devoted Frederick refuses to be ignored.

Twenty-four hours after they had abandoned Malmgren, the survivors of the walking party related, they had advanced only 100 meters because of open water between the floes. They looked back and saw Malmgren, still alive. From his grave he feebly waved his hand and urged them on. They waited a moment, thinking he might try to join them, but again he begged them to press on without him and try to save the remainder of the Nobile party. As Zappi afterwards declared, there was nothing to do but obey him.

This exhibition of high heroism and self-sacrifice inevitably brings to mind the name of the gallant "Titus" Oates. His story remains, and must always remain, an epic of the polar wastes.

On Capt. Scott's disastrous retreat from the South Pole in February and March of 1912, the party was caught in a series of terrific blizzards, which swept the high Antarctic plateau. Struggling against a high wind and a temperature of 40 degrees below zero, the party marched desperately toward their supply depot, for rations were nearly exhausted. Speed meant a chance for life. In the course of that march, with the depot still many formidable miles away, Captain Lawrence E. G. Oates suffered frostbite in his feet and legs. He made a plucky fight of it, but finally it became apparent he could go no farther. He begged his comrades to leave him and save themselves. That they refused to do and Oates heroically relieved them of the burden which his helplessness imposed. Scott's diary, found with his frozen body eight months later, told graphically how Oates had "walked out." That day's entry, one of the most dramatic in the history of exploration, is herewith reproduced:

"Friday, March 16 or Saturday, 17.—Lost track of dates, but think the last correct. Tragedy all along the line. At lunch, the day before yesterday, poor Titus Oates said he couldn't go on; he proposed we should leave him in his sleeping bag. That we could not do, and induced him to come on, on the afternoon march. In spite of its awful nature for him, he struggled on and we made a few miles. At night he was worse and we knew the end had come.

"Should this be found I want these facts recorded. Oates' last thoughts were of his mother, but immediately before he took pride in thinking that his regiment would be pleased with the bold way in which he met his death. We can testify to his bravery. He has borne intense suffering for weeks without complaint, and to the very last he was able and willing to discuss outside subjects. He did not—would not—give up hope to the very end. He was a brave soul. This was the end. He slept through the night before last, hoping not to wake; but he woke in the morning—yesterday. It was blowing a blizzard. He said: 'I am just going outside and may be some time.' He went out into the blizzard and we have not seen him since."

THE FIRST RAILROAD THROUGH THE PYRENEES

After Centuries of Mountain-Bound Isolation Central France and Central Spain Are in Direct Contact.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

"THE opening of the new railroad from St. Louis to Jefferson City brings the two places into close contact for the first time in the history of the State. The new line does away with the round-about journey which took the traveler by way of Cape Girardeau, Springfield, Sedalia, and Boonville, and saves several hours of travel."

IF SUCH an announcement were to appear in the news columns of the Post-Dispatch it would afford a striking parallel to the new travel facilities between France and Spain as furnished by the first railroad to be built across the Pyrenees.

A few days ago the President of France and the King of Spain met at the mouth of an international tunnel and turned the world's attention to a vital change in the railway map of Europe—the opening of direct communication between the central portions of their two countries. With the opening of the new road the French and Spanish have stopped going around Robin Hood's barn, as the route now available brings them into close contact after centuries of mountain-bound isolation.

American tourists will be quick to recognize the significance of the revised map. Until now the traveler who sought to journey from Paris to interior Spain has had his work cut out for him by railway engineering which dates back almost three-quarters of a century, to a time when the builders declined to tackle the barrier presented by the Pyrenees. The rugged backbone of mountains along the frontier was too much for the engineering powers of those days, and direct routing was sacrificed in the interest of engineering expediency.

The plan saved money in the original cost of the railway lines, but placed heavy tax on the time and patience of succeeding generations in the matter of travel, because of the devious crooks and turns involved in going from Central France to Central Spain. In point of fact the tax was so great that there has been little exchange of travel between the two regions, despite their close geographical relationship. As far as international contact has been concerned there might as well have been no railroad at all.

TODAY'S traveler finds the situation entirely changed, by virtue of the opening of the first railway to make the crossing of the Pyrenees. More than 60 years of planning, negotiations and delays brought the completion of this pioneer line in July of the current year, and train operations were inaugurated towards the end of the month. The new service enables the French to visit their Spanish neighbors 50 or 100 miles to the south without traveling several hundred miles in the effort.

With the opening of Europe's newest important railway the continental traveler has his first opportunity to journey from Paris to Saragossa, in Spain, without rounding one end of the Pyrenees. In the past the trip has involved circuitous travel by way of Bordeaux, Hendaye and Irun, on the west coast, or by way of Narbonne, Perpignan, Cerbere and Barcelona on the Mediterranean seaboard. Until now these coast routes have afforded the only through railways between France and Spain for the full extent of the 250-mile frontier. To reach Saragossa, with its population of more than 150,000 and its important commercial environment, the traveler from Paris has been forced to journey to east or west coast and follow this with a tedious trip across the Spanish interior.

The new railroad affords direct communication between Paris and Saragossa, with a saving of many hours of travel. Similar importance attaches to the route because of its passage through the famous health and pleasure resort of Pau, enabling tourists to visit this watering place while they are en route to Spain. Previous routing made Pau an isolated community, remote from all main channels of communication.

In a sense more purely local, but of definite commercial significance, is the fact that the new line opens the first direct channel of contact between the Aspe Valley of France and the Aragon Valley in Spain — sections possessing mutual interests of a commercial and economic character. The trade possibilities for both sides of the border cause the new route to be regarded with the utmost enthusiasm by French and Spanish alike.

The completion of this first railway to cross the Pyrenees represents the consummation of a dream long cherished on both sides of the mountains. Initial steps were taken as early as 1865. At that time the route by way of Bordeaux and Hendaye had been in operation for a year. The Narbonne-Barcelona line was in prospect, but its opening did not take place until 1878.

In those days the spread of railways in other parts of Europe, with the attendant industrial and commercial development, awakened the French and Spanish authorities to the need for a road which would cross the mountains and break down the natural barrier between regions logically interdependent. Concentration on the coast routes in the early railroad building was due to the natural advantages offered by the topography near the Mediterranean and Atlantic seaboards. These routes followed lines of least resistance in that they skirted the mountains instead of attempting to cross them.

THE fundamental argument in favor of direct routes was the need for connecting the central regions of France and Spain. In the first conception, more than 60 years ago, the plan called for a combination of railroads and highways, in which the steam lines would penetrate the mountains as far as might prove feasible and the remainder of the distance was to be covered by vehicle roads through tunnels so located as to effect maximum savings in grades and mileage. With this idea in mind the French railway authorities, in 1865, opened offices at Toulouse with a view to studying the engineering possibilities of routes crossing the Pyrenees.

The studies of the French engineers evolved no less than a dozen possible routes. Little definite progress followed, however, and two generations came to feel that the project had been abandoned. Definite revival did not come until the early years of the present century, when an international agreement was reached by the French and Spanish Governments. The treaty took the form of a convention contemplating three roads through the Pyrenees. Ratfied in January, 1907, this engagement provided for the line from Pau to Saragossa; a second line from Toulouse to Barcelona by way of Ax-les-Thermes; and a third line from St. Girons to Lerida. A 10-year limit was fixed for the completion of the first and second projects, and for partial construction of the third. The time limit has been extended as required by various interruptions, including that caused by the European war.

THE line connecting Pau and Saragossa has been built piecemeal. The portion from Pau to Oloron was opened as long ago as 1882. Service from Oloron south to Bedous was established in 1914, just ahead of the outbreak of hostilities in France. The final section, now completed, extends from Bedous across the frontier to Jaca, to connect with the Spanish portion completed some years ago.

The construction of the road through the rugged mountains presented some fine problems in engineering. Fourteen tunnels were necessary between Bedous and Jaca. The longest and most difficult is the Somport international tunnel, approximately five miles in length, with one and three-quarter miles in France and three and one-quarter miles in Spain. At the French entrance the railway tracks have an elevation of 3510 feet above sea level. In penetrating the mountains the tracks rise an additional 460 feet, which involved some close calculations as to grades and curves inside the tunnel.

In familiar parlance the new route is known as the Pau-Saragossa line, because its terminals are at these points. At present, however, there is a growing tendency to refer to it as the Paris-Saragossa line, because of the operation of through express trains between these two commercial centers. The route is operated by the Midi Railway, one of the principal French systems.

The opening of the through route comes at an opportune moment in connection with the program of electrification undertaken by the Midi Railway in Southern France. By utilizing its great hydro-electric installations in the Pyrenees the Midi commands abundant power at low cost of production, permitting the use of electric locomotives on a basis extremely advantageous.

The Toulouse-Barcelona line, second of the trans-Pyrenean projects, will be completed in 1929. This road is considerably further east than the Pau-Saragossa route, and is nearer the Mediterranean than the Atlantic. Parts of the line have been in operation since 1862. The final section, now nearing completion, extends to the frontier from Ax-les-Thermes.

Much work remains to be done on the third road, crossing the Pyrenees from St. Girons to Lerida, by way of the Salau Pass. This route is midway between the other new lines. It will afford a short cut from Toulouse to Lerida and from Toulouse to Tarragona and Cartagena.

Postpones that day of motor overhauling

Change to Shell Motor Oil—use it exclusively—and forget about motor overhauling. Your motor will still be running sweetly when newer car fashions tempt you to trade.

A motor consistently lubricated with Shell Motor Oil seems never to wear out. It keeps running and running with tireless precision until changing styles and advanced engineering development make the car obsolete—and even then the motor is so good that the owner hates to give it up.

By adopting unusually liberal specifications—by selecting only those crude oils which are naturally adapted to lubricating purposes—by avoiding destructive heat refining—Shell Motor Oil has been given just the right body. It is thin enough to reach every moving surface instantly—thick enough to meet any emergency that may arise in modern high-speed motoring.

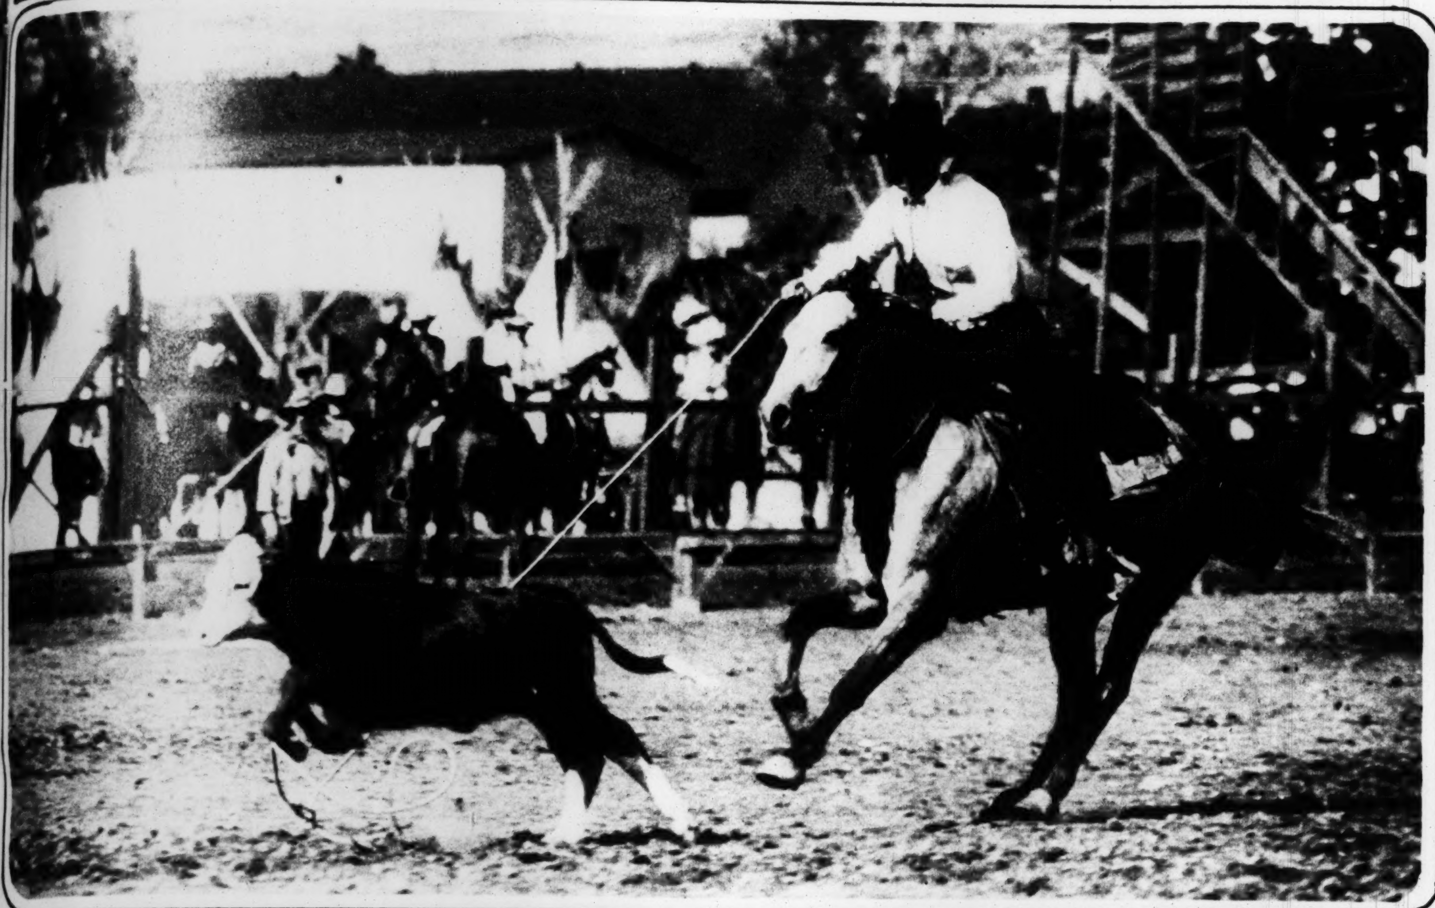
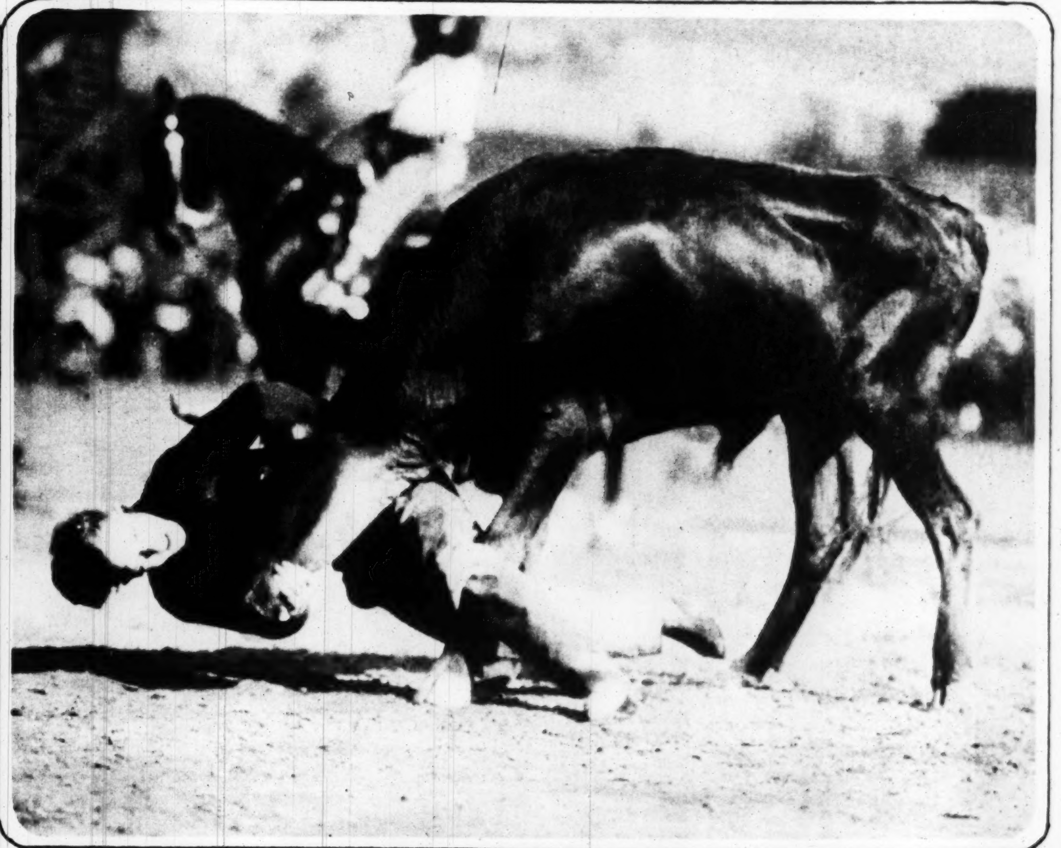
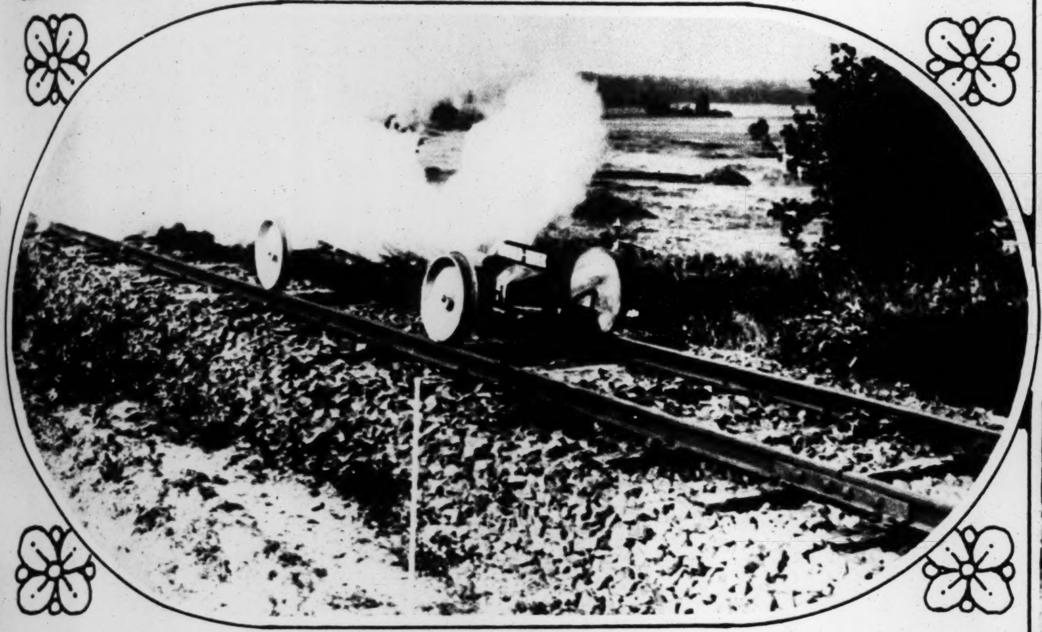
SUNDAY MORNING THE ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH AUGUST 19, 1928.



A PERFECT THROW—Because of greater agility, the roping of a healthy calf is more difficult than roping steers. This scene was taken at the famous Pendleton (Ore.) roundup. The little fellow had less than a second of freedom when this snapshot was made.

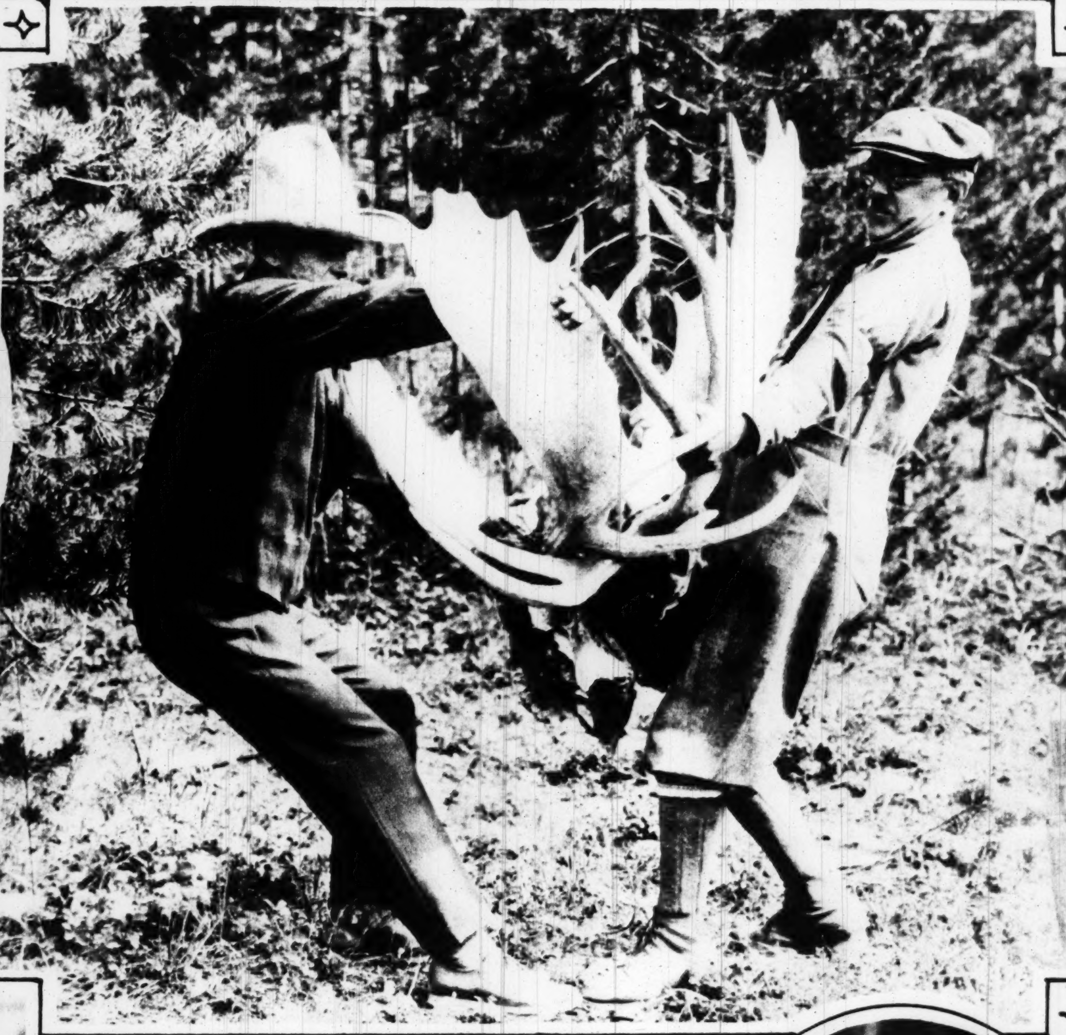


A TEST OF STRENGTH—A steer bulldogger at the Pendleton roundup all set for a final heave that will land the steer flat upon his side, much like a wrestler throws an opponent.



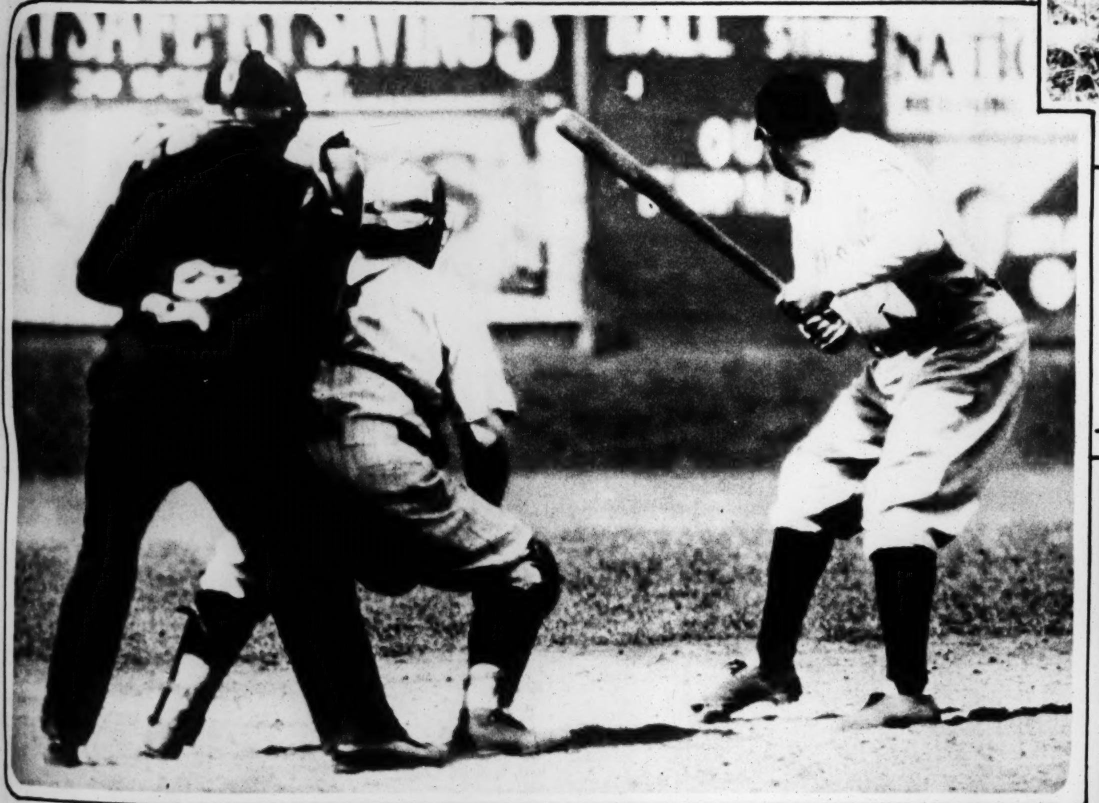
ROCKET CAR EXPERIMENTS CONTINUE—After one disaster, the backers of the Eisfeld-Valier vehicle are endeavoring to perfect the mechanism which provides the propelling force by means of rapid detonations of explosives. Here the rocket car is seen traveling rapidly over the rails, leaving a cloud of smoke behind.

—Herbert photo.



GRIM RELIC OF A BATTLE—Two sets of moose horns, locked together, found in Jasper National Park, Canada. Once their owners engaged in deadly strife and when inextricably locked together probably died of starvation or were killed by wolves.

—Herbert photo.



THE START OF A HOME RUN—A snapshot of Babe Ruth poised for a mighty swing with his long bat at the oncoming baseball.

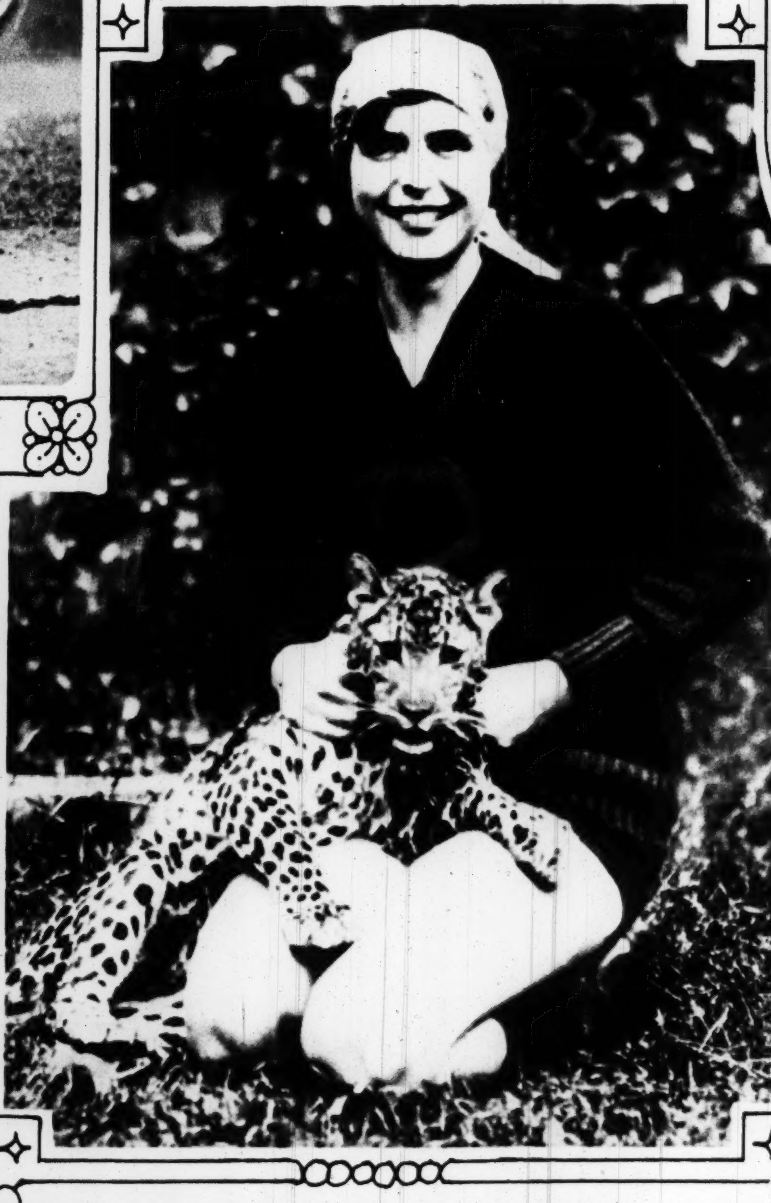
VIENNA'S SONG FESTIVAL—Thousands of Austrians, many in picturesque garb, took part in a huge celebration this summer in which the works of Schubert were particularly honored.

—Miller photo.



A PET NOT TO BE TEASED—Mrs. John L. Tyson of Philadelphia, and eight-months-old leopard which was presented to her by her husband.

Why should not men as well as women keep their figures, their health, their vitality? Excess fat blights both alike. And normal conditions are as easy for one sex as the other.

About 30 years ago science discovered a great cause of excess fat. It lies in a gland deficiency which science can supply. Physicians the world over now treat obesity in this modern way.

That method is embodied in Marmola prescription tablets. People have used them for 20 years—millions of boxes of them. Note the results in every circle. Ask your friends about them. Slender figures are many times as common as they were.

Abnormal exercise or diet is neither required nor advised, but moderation helps. Correct the cause. Simply take four Marmola tablets daily until weight comes down to normal.

A pamphlet in every package gives the formula complete. Also the reasons for the many good results. This is done to ward off any fear of harm.

Consider that Marmola has, for 20 years, been winning what you want. In an easy, pleasant way. Don't you think it time to learn how much this scientific method means to you and yours? The cost is a trifle. You would glaldly give many times as much for what a normal figure means. Then learn how easily people get it.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1.00 per box. Any druggist who is out will order from his jobber.
